SCORES JOIN IN COMMUNITY TREE PROGRAMME AT NORWICH TOWN GREEN

Crisp winter air welcomed the good attendance Tuesday evening which assembled on Norwich Town green to participate in the singing of Christmas carols and hymns, around the Christmas tree, which was illuminated with colored lights for this event, etc.

This celebration, sponsored by the Norwich Rural association a number of years ago, has been conducted each successive year under the same auspices.

From an elevated position Joseph C. Worth, song leader, conducted the community singing in a capable manner, the voices of the singers blending beautifully with the melody of the brass instruments played by John M. Swahn, leader, and Frank S. Galligan as cornetists, and Mr. Moran, bass. The children, who had been trained at school by Miss Mary Rogers, supervisor of singing in Norwich public schools, did especially well in their part in the community singing.

The Boy Scouts from Troop No. 2, Methodist Episcopal church and the scouts, Troop No. 10, of Sacred Heart church, Norwich Town, as well as others, were of efficient service in distributing the song sheets provided by the Rural association, also in collecting same at the close of the celebration for 1929.

The president of the Norwich Rural association, Willard J. Haugh, was most influential in seeing to it that with the assistance of the committees chosen to act this season, that the celebration this year would prove as eventful as in all previous years. Although for an entire change, the tree this year was not as elaborately trimmed, but in its simplicity was very attractive in its holiday attire. Besides the colored bulbs arranged on the tree proper, a large star of white lights as before was suspended from the top. There also was a large flood light placed in a proper location to furnish light for the singers. As in previous years the electricity was provided through the courtesy of Manager C. W. Taggart of the Norwich gas and electric department. The tree will be lighted for a period each evening during the Yuletide season, usually New Year's night being the last for the current to be turned on.

The select programme of songs included Adeste Fideles, the opening number, and Holy Night, Hark! the Herald Angels Sing, It Came Upon the Midnight Clear, O' Little Town of Bethlehem, We Three Kings of Orient Are, Once in Royal David's City, and in closing, Away in a Manger, the entire chorus of voices singing the first stanza and the good sized company of children singing the second stanza. The children also did themselves credit in singing one number all by themselves.

There were between 75 and 100 present and automobiles were parked all round Norwich Town green. Those attending entered into the spirit of the songs with much enthusiasm.

POST OFFICE EXPERIENCES LARGE HOLIDAY BUSINESS

That the employes and officials of the Norwich post office have well earned a respite today (Christmas day) is evident from the great mass of mail handled by them within the past week or so. No definite tabulation of the volume of mail coming into and leaving the post office could be obtained Tuesday evening, but it is the opinion of the officials that it has been the heaviest year in the history of the post office, especially in first class mail and parcel post matter.

Approximately 60,000 pieces of first class matter of outgoing mail have passed through the employes' hands on each day since the start of the rush, in addition to the various other classes of mail, incoming and outgoing which have been equally as heavy. The mail has been so heavy that the services of eight extra carriers and eight additional clerks were enlisted to cope with the situation.

Only a mere handful of parcel post packages remained undelivered Tuesday night. All mail of every description had been taken care of up to 6 o'clock.

A huge pile of letters, postal cards, packages and what not, which was amassed in the distribution room Monday, dwindled down to a mere nothing by 7.30 o'clock Tuesday evening, a half hour before the clerks' work was completed for the day. It was said by those who have been connected with the post office for many years that the post office this year had its heaviest Christmas mail. In order that the people of Norwich should receive their mail at the earliest possible moment the employes have been subjected to long hours, many of them having to work overtime and all day Sunday.

The local force is to be congratulated upon the fine showing this year under the able and efficient supervision of Postmaster Bailey, William A. Welles, assistant postmaster, William L. Fletcher, superintendent of mails and Maurice Kelly, in charge of the carrier and parcel post.

APPLE LAW VIOLATORS SUMMONED TO HEARING

(Special to The Bulletin)

HARTFORD, Dec. 24.—Connecticut apple growers are now assured that Commissioner of Agriculture S. McLean Buckingham is going to enforce the law relative to the grading and packing of apples. His stand on this matter became clear and emphatic when several growers were notified to appear at a hearing before the commissioner to explain why they should not be prosecuted for violations made during the past fall.

Commissioner Buckingham explained that the law which has been in effect for some time has caused considerable criticism on the part of fruit growers because it was not enforced. The establishment of an inspection service this fall disclosed the fact that several growers were not conforming to the law. Resulting from this the commissioner called the hearings which are required by law before prosecution proceedings.

The hearings, lasting the greater part of a day, disclosed the fact that the growers as a whole did not willfully disobey the law but were working under the assumption, in spite of numerous warnings, that the department of agriculture would not start enforcement proceedings this year. Commissioner Buckingham warned the men that he could take only one stand on the matter and if they wanted to avoid prosecutions in the future, their apples must conform to the state standards.

The men were also informed that if there was any uncertainty as to the requirements of the grade, the department would be willing to co-operate with the growers in the proper interpretation of the law and the grade requirements. Copies of the apple law, it was explained, have been distributed at demonstrations, meetings and by mail to nearly every section of the state, but if there are any growers who have not received a copy they are urged to communicate with the state department of agriculture.

FRANKLIN PASTOR PRAISES PAGEANT CHARACTERS' WORK

Rev. J. D. Waldron, pastor of the Franklin Congregational church, holds certain ideas about pageants. In an article on the pageant, At the Door of the Inn, given at the church Sunday, he said that if they are taken sincerely they can be given effectively by totally inexperienced people, with the guidance of two people who know.

Second, that long and tedious rehearsals waiting of many for one person's difficulties to be waved out are useless and therefore expensive.

Third, that "thinking" the part is the way and not imitation, though thinking does not rule out some determined conception if it does not take the place of immediate thinking.

And finally, that "movement" and keeping right on, never trying to correct an error is the way to success. That all amatur work is like Eliza crossing the ice, only possible by going on.

With these ideas he led the people of Franklin to attempt a pageant with 37 characters. The Biblical drama part where conversation is carried on by three people at a time, and 11 work together, had two rehearsals of about one hour each.

The pageant characters had one rehearsal and one the chief characters, and Ruth Waldron, who acted Joseph, just coming in time from Northfield, had an individual work out.

Mr. Waldron thinks Mr. Bradley, a student of Emerson school, gave the finest part he has seen in amateur work in his strangely beautiful character of the Beggar in the courtyard.

Next he thinks A. R. Race as the inn keeper, always on the stage, gave a clearly conceived and animated part.

Mrs. Marjorie Ayer as Mary, was beautiful and pathetic, and it would be hard to say whether this was an intellectural or character achievement.

Catherine Beckwith, five years old, as the youngest, ought not to be forgotten. Of the rest it is enough that no one failed.

The congregation gave a generous gift to Mr. Bradley. The pageant will be given December 29 at the Norwich Salvation Army, and January 5th, at 7.30, before the neighboring Y. P. S. C. E., and others at Franklin.

SCIENTISTS TELL OF LIFE ON HOTTENTOT RESERVATION

For three years home was a corrugated iron house on top of a sun-blistered, solitary mountain in an arid country for W. A. Hoover and Mrs. Hoover, their four-year-old daughter and Fred A. Greely, a fellow scientist, who have just returned to Washington from south West Africa.

Killing a charging leopard with a 22-calibre rifle, says Mr. Hoover, was the most exciting adventure of their lonely post. The ringhals cobra incident was a close second. The cobra spit poison in Mr. Hoover's face.

Mr. Hoover was field leader of the National Geographic society expedition in co-operation with the Smithsonian institution to establish a solar radiation observatory on top of Mt. Brukkaros, a dead volcano of South West Africa.

Betty, Mr. and Mrs. Hoover's daughter, was one and one-half years old when they went out to establish the observatory. Now she is four. A flock of chickens and a cow were her only playmates for three years.

The Hoovers and Mr. Greely were relieved by Louis O. Sordahl and Mrs. Sordahl and A. G. Froiland, who arrived at Mt. Brukkaros to carry on the work of "shooting the sun" six times a day.

The work of the expedition was to set up an observatory which would make reports similar to those made by Smithsonian institution solar observatories in Chile and at Table mountain, California. The three observatories on three continents are reporting daily variations in the heat of the sun that reaches the earth. Every activity on the face of the earth is dependent on the sun's radiation, the variation of which is the subject of this study.

While individuals are only conscious of such variation in radiation as earth itself brings about through the procession of the seasons, evidence of the variation in the strength of the sun itself is not far to seek. Smithsonian authorities think there is a definite connection between variation in solar radiation and changes of weather. The observatory Mr. Hoover established on Mt. Brukkaros, South West Africa, may some day help warn Chicago of a coming drop in temperature.

At Brukkaros the Hoover party lived 2,000 feet up a mountainside and 61 miles from a grocery store. The nearest white man, a German missionary, lived 3 miles away. Their nearest neighbors were Hottentots, whose beehive houses dotted the plain. Because the observatory stands within a Hottentot reservation Mr. Hoover had to get permission to hunt springbok from the local chief of the Hottentots, who is known as captain.

Isolated on a dry mountain, surrounded by African natives, the expedition was nevertheless in constant touch with civilization. The government of South West Africa, which built the 3-room corrugated iron home shoop, the nearest town. A radio, a on the rocky mountain top, ran a telephone line connecting with Keetmanshoop. Christmas gift from the National Geographic society, brought them cable news of the United States and the rest of the world via the station at Cape Town, although static interfered in warm weather.

The second year the observatory staff received the mechanical parts of an electric refrigerator. They built a refrigerator around this unit. Thereafter ice cream was served on the volcano top. The refrigerator also preserved vegetables, fruit and meat so that the 122-mile journey to the grocery store and back might be made less frequently. A gasoline engine, which was brought up the mountainside, piecemeal on donkey back, and a generator supplied current for the refrigerator.

"A man setting up a solar radiation observatory has to be a Jack-of-all-trades," says Mr. Hoover. "Greely and I were carpenters, plumbers, mechanics, electricians, and farmers alternately."

"One night we heard noises that sounded like a lion," he said telling about the leopard, "and next morning three of our chickens were missing. Then we suspected our visitor to have been a leopard and the following night set a big trap. The leopard got into the trap, but went off, trap and all.

"Next morning we trailed him and finally located him in a crevice. I fired, wounding the leopard, which at once leaped toward us. We were on a ledge. The animal just barely missed the ledge and, as it tumbled down the rock, Greely fired and killed it. Although neither of us was injured, the experience taught us never to go after leopards with a .22 rifle."

The ringhals cobra, a snake that grows to six feet in length, was a frequent visitor at the Mt. Brukkaros observatory. More than half a dozen were killed near the house. Snake bite serum is kept in the ice box at all times. Once a cobra coiled itself on the front porch. Another time, as Mr. Hoover entered the storehouse he felt moisture on his cheek and looked up to see a ringhals cobra lying above the door. The snake had spit its poison at him. He ran out, got his gun, and killed the snake.

The ringhals cobra shoots its venom as well as injecting it with the fangs. The poison shot through the air is not dangerous to humans unless it gets into the eyes.

The expedition kept an auto truck in a "garage" half way up the mountain. Every ten days someone would drive to Keetmanshoop for supplies and mail. On these trips the driver always took a "black boy" to walk back in case of accident. The Hottentots have no use for work, but they do not consider walking work. Fifty miles in a day they consider a nice jaunt. Hence the emergency "black boy" on the truck.

When Mr. Hoover broke an axle in the sand of a dried up river, the Hottentot servant trudged off 20 miles for help.

At other times this dry river was a raging torrent and on one occasion cut them off from Keetmanshoop for six weeks.

Getting water and supplies up the mountain proved a great trial. Mt. Brukkaros was chosen because of the lack of rain. The roof-cistern system yielded some water, but not enough. Two loads of water daily were brought up from a water hole on donkey back.

Taking of observations generally occupied the morning from soon after sun up until 9 or 12 o'clock. The rest of the day was spent in computing the results obtained by three instruments, each different. The computations require six hours or more.

The intricacy of the computations may be judged from the fact that once the data for six film exposures of solar radiation intensity have been taken, the figures have to be corrected for depth of the atmosphere, ozone, water vapor, dust in the air, absorption in the mirror reflection, absorption in the black strip used in the instruments, and absorption in the prisms.

At Brukkaros the expedition had on an average of 240 clear days per year. The observatory, Mr. Hoover believes, may prove especially valuable because its reports and accentuate deviations in computations reported from California and Chile. These variations have put the scientists on the trail of some unknown factor governing the check on the sun's radiation.

BUYING BY BEARS TURNED STOCK PRICES UPWARD IN DULL SESSION OF MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Stock prices turned upward today under the influence of a brief flurry of buying by bears not wishing to maintain short positions over the holiday. The covering movement was completed early in the day, and trading dwindled to a mere trickle, barely adequate to keep the ticker tape moving. The day's sales aggregated only 1,906,050 shares, the smallest turnover for a five-hour session since August of 1928.

The morning upturn carried a wide assortment of leading shares up 4 or 5 points, but the market gradually eased during the afternoon, and gains were mostly reduced by about half. The market was unusually thin, with few orders on either side, so that prices were extraordinarily sensitive.

The day's news served for the most part merely further to attest the current recession in industry. Freight car loadings figures, as announced for the second week of the month, indicated a moderating decline, and railway earnings reports for November reflected the slackening of industrial activity.

The weekly steel trade reviews, appearing a day early owing to the holiday, stated that total production of steel this month will be the lowest for any month in several years, but that inquiries from consumers indicate a substantial upturn after the first of the year. Iron Age stated, however, that a rush of January business is not expected, and leading producers do not expect first quarter activity will average 75 per cent of capacity.

A favorable indication of the volume of holiday trade appeared in an estimate placing Sears Roebuck's December sales at $50,000,000, or about 27 per cent above December, 1928.

Credit conditions were a little firmer, but were regarded as reflecting the temporary conditions of the holiday period. Call money renewed at 5 1-2 per cent and held at that figure all day. Upward revisions of bankers' acceptance rates for some maturities were made by leading dealers. The Federal Reserve condition statement of weekly reporting member banks showed an increase of $78,000,000 in loans on securities. Commercial loans, however, declined $106,000,000.

U. S. Steel sold up more than 4 points, and General Electric mounted 5 early in the day, but closed up 1 3-4 and 3, respectively. Allied Chemical gained 5 points, International Combustion preferred rallied 8. Among shares closing 2 to 4 points higher were included American Can, Atchison, Johns Manville, Macy, Norfolk & Western, Pacific Gas and Simmons.

There were several soft spots. General Cable A and Southern Dairies A dropped to new lows. Sears Roebuck and J. C. Penney sagged on abandonment merger plans. American Telephone, International Harvester, and Union Pacific lost a couple of points. Midland Steel preferred tumbled 15 in a few sales.

The commodity markets were featured by a jump of about 5 cents a bushel in wheat futures in response to a smaller than expected government estimate of the Argentine crop, and export demand. Corn and cotton closed a little higher.

Strength of the French franc continued to command attention in the foreign exchanges. The cable rate reached another new high for the year, at 3.84 1-4 cents. Sterling cables held at $4.88 1-4.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP)—The day before Christmas found the bond market so dull that followers of the list were reminded of one of last summer's stagnant sessions. Total sales fell below the $8,000,000 mark for the first time in months.

In view of the limited trading, price changes had comparatively little significance. Considerable irregularity developed in all departments and the broad gains and losses that characterize an exceptionally thin market were apparent in numerous instances. The rallie gave the best performance, manifesting an upward tendency as buying orders outnumbered offerings, but the turnover was far below the average. Industrials and utilities were highly irregular.

Expectations of firm money for the remainder of the year as banks and corporations prepare for the Jan. 1 payments in regular and extra dividends, as well as in coupons, lead to the belief that bonds will continue dull in the immediate future, although the outlook for 1930 is regarded optimistically. A large volume of new financing, especially by municipalities, is anticipated during the first few months of the new year and it would not be surprising if large customers of the market, who have been heavy buyers of short maturities, would shift to longer term issues, provided, of course, that money rates ease with the passing of the year-end.

The more popular foreign loans again took a prominent part in today's transactions. The undertone of the European governments was firm. British 5 1-2s, French and German 7s, and Norway 5s sold at little variations from their recent levels. Latin Americans were irregular and Argentine 5 1-2s equaled their 1929 minimum of 88. Rio Grande Do Sul and San Paul City and State listings weakened.

In the domestic industrial group, Fisk Rubber 8s and Shubert Theatre 6s sank to new minimums for the waning year on losses of 3 and 2 points, respectively. North American Cement 6 1-2s were likewise heavy. Utilities made fractional changes.

Convertibles lagged with the remainder of the list. American Telephone 4 1-2s advanced less than a point on the unusually small volume of $362,000. Missouri Pacific 5 1-2s lost a point, but Atchison 4 1-2s rose 2 and Allegheny Corp. 5s of 1944 advanced 1 1-4. International Telephone 4 1-2s picked up a full point on a movement of only $16,000, principal amount, one of the smallest turnovers ever recorded by this usually active convertible.

United States governments shaded off in sympathy with the firmness of money, but neither buying nor selling was of impressive proportions.

Demand from automobile companies for semi-finished steel is so great that the Otis Steel Co., of Cleveland, will operate its open hearth furnaces tomorrow. E. J. Kulas, president, said that one rush order from a large motor car manufacturer calls for enough auto body sheets for 135,000 fenders.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Tomorrow being Christmas day, the New York stock exchange, curb exchange and all other security and commodity markets of the country will be closed.

Stockholders of the National Distillers Products Co. today approved increasing the common stock from 200,000 to 276,000 shares. National Distillers will acquire the American Medicinal Spirits Co., in which it already has a large stock interest.

The Baldwin Locomotive Works has received an order for 39 locomotives from the Southern Pacific railway. The order is valued at about $4,150,000.

It has been estimated that the December sales of the Sears, Roebuck Co. will exceed $50,000,000 and if so, will set a new high monthly record, and bring sales for the full year to around $440,000,000, compared with $347,000,000 in 1928.

William M. Spencer, who formerly was engaged in the bond business in Erie, Pa., has been admitted to the stock exchange firm of Jackson Bros., Boesel & Co. He will be located in the company's Chicago office.

New construction contracted for in the 37 states east of the Rocky mountains during the past week reached a total of $62,233,200, according to the F. W. Dodge Corp., compared with $65,074,000 in the preceding week. Contracts awarded during the year up to Dec. 20, were valued at $5,675,839,800, as against $6,497,135,000 for the corresponding period last year.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

"The Trial of Mary Dugan," Bayard Veiller's all-talking picturization of the stage success of the same name, will begin an engagement at the Breed theatre, today.

Bayard Veiller, author of the stage play, went to Hollywood under a special agreement with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to direct the screen adaptation. Veiller, whose earlier plays include "Within the Law" and "The Thirteenth Chair," recently sailed for England and plans to produce his next piece abroad.

"The Trial of Mary Dugan" ran for more than a year on Broadway and is now being presented by eighteen road companies in this country and Europe. The picture has an all-star cast headed by Norma Shearer, Lewis Stone, who has the part of Edward West, the defense attorney; H. B. Warner, that of the prosecuting attorney, and Raymond Hackett, who played the role of Jimmy Dugan on the stage and has the same part in the photoplay. Others in the cast include Olive Tell, Lilyan Tashman, DeWitt Jennings, Mary Doran, Wilfrid North, and others.

When the film had its premiere at the Embassy theatre in New York city, unanimity of opinion prevailed among the critics that it was the outstanding all-talking film of its kind. It duplicated in melodramatic guise the smashing success of the all-talking musical, "The Broadway Melody."

"The most expert piece of work that has been delivered to the talking screen," commented the Morning Telegraph, New York's theatrical newspaper, and other newspapers expressed a similar opinion with equal force.

Special praise was voiced by reviewers for Norma Shearer's splendid recording voice and for the sterling work of Lewis Stone, H. B. Warner and Raymond Hackett.

Broadway Theatre

Feats of daring on the flying trapezes high up in the air, with no net to break a fall, hold no terrors for Charles (Buddy) Rogers in his latest all-talking thrill-drama, "Halfway to Heaven," which heads the ideal holiday program at the Broadway starting today. This fast-moving story of carnival life among the highest priced performers—the aerialists—was filmed from Henry L. Gates last "best-seller,"—"Here Comes the Bandwagon," and tells an authentic story of life under the big-top. Buddy secures a long-awaited opportunity to join a high class troupe, only to find that the "swing-man," the leader of the troupe (Paul Lukas) has a sinister habit of letting his partners fall—accidentally, of course—when their attentions to one of the girls (Jean Arthur) became too friendly to suit him. Buddy sizes up the situation, and when Lukas makes one such attempt to get him, makes his leap but cleverly foils the scheme, getting away with his life only to run into a series of arguments which nearly end in his literal downfall. The climax is thrillingly worked out, and the picture is a fast series of exciting adventures and mishaps that will keep the audiences keyed to a high pitch. The dialogue is exceptionally well reproduced, and the familiar sounds of carnival-land are so realistic as to be startling. Buddy's finely developed physique, a model for the young fellows of today, is shown at advantage in this drama, as well as his amazing strength. The accompanying bill is of perfect holiday calibre, including Willie & Eugene Howard, famous brothers, in "The Music Makers," and Born & Lawrence in "The Side Show," both Vitaphone specialties, in addition to "Americans All," a feature length revue of the great American melting pot, and a rousing comedy skit, "If Men Played Cards as Women Do," besides the latest Fox movietone news. Of great interest is the Broadway's announcement of the Connecticut premiere of Victor McLaglen's latest all-talking movietone riot "Hot For Paris," rated as hotter, funnier and friskier than his last opus "The Cockeyed World." Fifi D'orsay and El Brendel are fellow conspirators for fun in "Hot For Paris," which has its Norwich presentation on the same day as the New York, Chicago and Frisco openings. A huge midnite show is being planned for New Year's eve.

A cynic is a man who must be unhappy in order to appear happy.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Sweeping across the screen as a prairie fire sweeps the plains, "Tiger Rose," the new all-talking drama of romance and passion which comes to the Palace theatre for three days beginning today, is the greatest play of its kind that the movies have yet given the world.

Here is a romance as bright and hard as steel, as unyielding as granite, as swift as the stars in their courses, and yet as soft and beautiful as a lovely woman, as alluring as a sunset, and as satisfying as love. It combines passion and sweetness, favor and languor, emotion and brawling action. Nothing like it has been seen for years.

Lupe Velez, tiger-like and rose-like, herself, heads the distinguished cast which has been chosen for this drama. With her are playing such undoubted geniuses of the motion picture drama as H. B. Warner, Grant Withers and Monte Blue. The picture is every bit as good as its cast would seem to indicate. Were it not shameful to spoil the plot, we should like nothing better than to tell of the action. Suffice it to say however that the plot and action are things which Norwich will revel in, as it is bound to enjoy the beauty of the settings, the swift, hard, clean strength of the dialogue and the matchless atmosphere of passion and romance which is woven into the very fibre of the film.

In addition to "Tiger Rose," one of the latest features "This Thing Called Love," will be shown. The picture makes a marvelous holiday attraction inasmuch as it is chuck full of love, action, thrills and comedy.

Mention has already been made of the Palace theater's plans for New Year's eve. On this occasion a midnight frolic and gambol such as has rarely been staged in this city before, will be put on at the popular playhouse. Wait until you see the bill which has been prepared for this occasion, all the entertainment, all the extra fun makers. Wait until you learn the infinite variety of methods which Mr. R. R. Hamilton, the manager, is preparing in order to help the city ring out the old year and ring in the new in an appropriate and unforgettable manner. Later more will be told concerning the plans of the management. Until then take our word that it will be the biggest, brightest, finest, happiest ringing in and ringing out that Norwich has ever experienced. Just as in the matter of programs, it is not the policy of the Palace to do things in halves, even so is the theater determined to give the public a great show in a great, glad atmosphere of New Year's eve.

BELIEVE MAN CAPTURED TO BE GUNMAN BURKE

NOGALES, Ariz., Dec. 24.—(AP)—A man believed by Sheriff H. J. Paterson to be Fred Burke, wanted in Chicago for questioning in connection with the St. Valentine's day gang massacre there, was captured in the hills west of here by the sheriff and deputies late today.

SIX CAROLS WERE SUNG IN MADISON SQUARE PARK

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP)—The message intoned at Bethlehem by angel choirs—"On earth peace, good will to men"—re-echoed through a large part of the world tonight when a large assembly in Madison Square park sang carols that were heard by a far-flung radio audience.

Led by a small choir, and accompanied by the police and firemen's bands, the crowd stamped cold feet in the snow that insured New York its hoped-for "white Christmas," and sang six carols with hearts warmed by the holiday spirit.

A giant Christmas tree, aglow with myriad lights, stood in the background. Boy Scouts distributed printed copies of the old songs.

The program was arranged by the Advertising club of New York, in cooperation with nearly 2,000 of the city's churches and civic organizations. The National Broadcasting Co. sent the program out on a nation-wide hookup of 18 stations and WGY, operated at Schenectady by the General Electric Co., broadcast it by short wave for the benefit of European listeners and Rear Admiral Byrd at the south pole.

Police Commissioner Grover A. Whalen delivered a short speech for Mayor James J. Walker, who was unable to attend.

The Washington Square association also conducted its annual program of Christmas carols under a 40-foot Christmas tree in Washington square.

After an hour's singing under the tree, the carollers, accompanied by four trumpeters, made a tour of the Greenwich Village district. Carols were sung in front of brilliantly lighted houses.

The more a man accomplishes the less time he has to talk about it.

PILGRIMS JOIN IN THE BETHLEHEM CELEBRATION

BETHLEHEM, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Pilgrims from many parts of the world came to this historic biblical town tonight and joined in the simple, devout celebration of the birth of the Nazarene. A clear starlight night, following a day of brilliant sunshine, added to the impressiveness of the observance.

Among the faithful who visited the holy sites of the first Christmas were 300 Americans and Canadians. The celebrations in general did not attract the throng of other years. It was estimated that not more than 1,500 other than residents of Bethlehem and nearby Jerusalem, were in the little town tonight.

Anglican Christmas hymns were sung in the Greek convent adjoining the Church of the Nativity while at the same time choirs of boys and girls began the old Latin choral sas midnight was ushered in with the ringing of bells.

The Latin patriarch celebrated a pontifical mass in the presence of the governor of Jerusalem and consuls of the Catholic powers. After the service he led the whole congregation in procession down the steps to the grotto where the manger is said to have stood. He placed a figure of Jesus on the spot where there is a Latin inscription announcing "Here Jesus was born of the Virgin Mary."

After the ceremonies the way was left open for the balance of the night for visitors to come and go and to pray in the grotto.

CITY OF NEW LONDON MAY ADOPT CHEMICAL METHOD TO MELT SNOW

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 24.—The city of New London has been fortunate during the winter to date that there has been little snow to be removed and that there have been no accidents resulting in suits for damages for injuries. It would not be an improbable thing if, before another year's snow comes, the city would be supplied with a chemical that will dissolve snow and send the water into the river and sewers. Such a thing has been contemplated and representatives of the city have had the matter under consideration. Hartford has the experiment in operation and what is accomplished there is watched in New London. If the clearing of snow can be avoided, the saving to the city will be considerable.

Mayor as Santa Claus

Mayor Cornelius Twomey played the part of Santa Claus today, something that no other mayor ever attempted. The mayor visited the city hall and extended the customary Yuletide greetings and tendered a box of cigars to all male employes, and to the young ladies were given boxes of candy.

Visited Seaside Children

The Crowley club girls of St. Mary's parish visited the children at the Seaside sanatorium this week and carried dolls and other toys and candy to the children. The girls sang Christmas carols, accompanied on the piano by Helen V. Donovan. Miss Julia Sullivan read Christmas stories. Marcella Grimes and Mary Mansfield were the committee of arrangements.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Jane V. McBride, daughter of Mrs. Anne T. McBride, of Lincoln avenue, to Wilfred A. Couture, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Couture, of Norwood avenue. Miss McBride is typist in the office of City Clerk Julian D. Moran.

Dr. and Mrs. William P. Walker, of Bethlehem, Pa., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Sylvia Vail Walker, to Jerry Dillon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Dillon, of Ridgewood park, Waterford. Mr. Dillon is employed in New York by the firm of Dominick & Dominick, of Bethlehem.

Members of the Huntington Street Baptist church, at 8 o'clock this evening, had a carol sing in front of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris B. Flint and son, Walter, of Cleveland, Ohio, are visiting Mrs. Flint's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fritz Vogt, of Truman street.

Mrs. Jacob Kaplan and infant son, of Chesterfield, and Mrs. Winifred B. Shaw, of Fishers Island, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

The Hotel Lafayette, corner of Williams and Broad streets, is to discontinue business Jan. 1. Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bolton, who have conducted the business a year, have leased the former Verandah house, on State street.

HAD TO JACK UP AUTO TO RELEASE DRIVER'S WIFE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 24.—Slippery highways as a result of last night's storm caused innumerable auto accidents, but none of the crashes resulted in serious injuries to the occupants of cars involved. At 7:20 o'clock this morning a sedan driven by Antonio Coelho, Newark, N. J., with whom was his wife, was driven at such a fast rate of speed in rounding the curve at the Avery Memorial monument, Poquonoc, that it skidded about 200 feet and after ripping away a large section of wire fencing, overturned, pinning the occupants beneath it. Passing drivers went to the assistance of Coelho and wife. The former was extricated easily enough, but in order to release Mrs. Coelho the machine was jacked up. Mr. and Mrs. Coelho were taken to the office of a physician, where it was found that neither had sustained serious injury. Coelho was arrested by State Police Officer John Smith, charged with reckless driving, and posted a bond of $25 for appearance in Groton town court Monday next.

Bump on Fort Hill

An automobile driven by Herman E. Siegrist, of Cohasset, Mass., skidded on Fort Hill, Poquonoc, last night. The auto descended the grade and came to a stop only when it crashed with an auto being driven by Frank K. Calkins, 11 Jackson avenue, Mystic. Both cars were damaged, but neither Siegrist nor Calkins sustained injury other than bruises.

Boy Escaped Injury

An automobile, driven by Arthur C. Sheffield, Gardner avenue, in passing through Howard street this evening struck and knocked down Arthur Constantine, of 1 Moore court, corner of Hamilton street. The boy escaped injury beyond bruises and was taken to his home.

John Billings, colored, who has a police court record, was arrested this evening by Automobile Patrol Officer George Cockell, charged with evading payment of taxicab fare and intoxication. He was locked up and will be in court tomorrow.

Charles I. Smith was arrested tonight by State Police Officers Charles Hill and Michael Murphy, charged with breach of the peace and intoxication. Smith was arrested in Waterford where he created a disturbance and will explain in the Waterford town court next Monday.

All trains on the New Haven system, east and west-bound, were late in arriving in New London this afternoon and tonight. The delay was caused because of the storm and the large amount of travel, for hundreds of passengers were en route to New England cities to spend the holiday with their families or relatives.

BATES' WOODS WORKERS PAID AT RATE OF $4.25

INJURED MYSTIC BOY IN LOCAL HOSPITAL

An automobile driven by Mrs. James Watrous, of Mystic, struck George Hayes, Mystic youth, in that village last night. The young man sustained lacerations of the scalp and legs and multiple contusions. He was brought to this city and taken to Lawrence-Memorial hospital where it is said that his condition is favorable.

There was but a solitary case tried in the police court today. A young man, arrested last night charged with intoxication when he went to his home and created a disturbance, was given suspension of judgment.

An automobile driven by Henry W. Baker, 54 Cottage street, Groton, in passing through Main street, near Masonic street, last night, skidded on the slippery pavements causing it to collide with a parked auto. The latter car was damaged; its owner was not learned.

FRANCIS J. PERKINS, 12, DIES WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 24.—Struck by a commercial car driven by Thomas G. Connell, of 446 Montauk avenue, Monday night, Francis J. Perkins, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis H. Perkins, of Waterford, was fatally injured, dying after being taken to Lawrence Memorial hospital. The boy sustained a crushed chest which resulted in the puncturing of his lungs and caused almost instantaneous death. He also had a fractured left leg. Connell was arrested by State Police Officer Michael Murphy on a charge of manslaughter and will be given a hearing in the Waterford town court whenever Coroner Edward G. McKay, of Norwich, renders a finding. In the meantime, Connell is at liberty on his own recognizance.

The Perkins boy had been employed at the gasoline filling station at Moosbroker's corner, Waterford, and had started for his home. Going along the Niantic shore road and walking well into the traveled portion of the highway, the boy had reached a point about 1000 feet west of the corner and near Jordan school, when an automobile driven by J. T. Sherlock, of East Lyme, and headed toward New London, approached. About the same time the commercial car driven by Connell and which was following Sherlock's machine was driven well to the left of the road for the purpose of passing the other auto. When Connell's auto was pratically abreast of Sherlock's car, Connell observed the Perkins youth directly in front of the former's car. Connell attempted to stop his auto, but the boy was struck by the left hand fender and hurled to the highway. When Connell reached the youth the latter was unconscious. Connell rushed the boy to the hospital but he died while on the way.

TWO SOUND STEAMERS SEEK SHELTER FROM STORM

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 24—The sound steamers were forced to put into port during the severe storm of last night. The City of Lowell, bound from Providence to New York, anchored in the lower harbor until 8 o'clock this morning when she continued to her destination. Steamer Richard Peck, en route from New York for Providence, docked at the New London line pier, where her passengers were discharged and continued to Providence by train. The liner left here this forenoon for Providence. Steamer New Hampshire, which left her pier here last midnight, arrived in New York but a short time behind her schedule.

TUESDAY'S GOOD WEATHER FAVORED CHRISTMAS TRADE

Christmas business was fairly good in the stores of this city, although Monday evening the sidewalks were covered in sposh and travel was such as only a limited number cared to indulge in. Today the weather was improved and the stores had a busy time of it. Now will come a week of weeding out of stock and the effort to get rid of all that can be disposed of before the end of the year. The New London stores have never had a greater display of goods to select from, nor have the seekers for them been favored with greater opportunity to buy. It is expected there will be some business changes with the coming of the new year, but things will generally go along as they have been going.

DANIELSON ARMORY A. A. PLAYS FAST WORCESTER ALL STARS THIS EVENING

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 24.—At the State Armory here Christmas night the Armory A. A. will take on the Worcester All-Stars as their opponents in what is expected to be a real fast game. The Armory A. A. has had very hard luck in their last two starts, losing the games in the last few minutes of play. The Danielson team thinks that they are about due for a reversal of luck and will do their best to finish on the winning side.

On the other hand the Worcester All-Stars are so sure of a victory that they have agreed to come to Danielson on a win or lose basis. They have been guaranteed a bonus if they win so there is sure to be plenty of action throughout the game.

The Danielson team will be picked from the following players: Williams, Godreau, Armington, Burke, Jones and Normandin. There will also be a fast preliminary game between the Radio Five of Danielson and the Mandell All-Stars of Willimantic. The preliminary starts at 7:45 and there will be dancing after the main game.

PROTEST ENTERED AGAINST BARRING OF NEGRO ATHLETES

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Declaring two young Negro tennis stars have been barred from the national junior indoor tennis championship tournament because of their color, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, filed emphatic protest today.

In a letter to Edward B. Moss, executive secretary of the United States Lawn Tennis association, Robert W. Bagnall, of the colored people's organization, charged "class and caste snobbery" in the refusal to accept the entries of Reginald Weir, of the City College of New York tennis team, and Gerald L. Norman, Jr., captain of the Flushing high school team.

The letter said in part:

"Patrons of sport in this country do not relish the administration of public contests by a spirit of caste and class snobbery, and we are sure that the public, when informed of the methods used by the United States Lawn Tennis association, will be quick to characterize those methods in the way they deserve."

At the office of the U. S. L. T. A., Moss said the entries of Weir and Norman were rejected by the tournament committee, which consists of John J. Tucker, chairman; A. Castle Bostley, Herbert L. Bowman, W. Dillinson Cunningham, Benjamin F. O'Brien, Samuel A. Ritchie, Arthur S. Cragin, Richard Jones and Erdman Brandt. The committee, he said, gave no reason for its action.

The junior tournament begins here Thursday.

FOOTBALL PLAYERS GET NO REST ON CHRISTMAS

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 24.—(AP) — The Christmas holiday meant nothing in the lives of 44 football stars who will display their wares here New Year's day in the annual Shriners' hospital charity game.

Both the East and the West squads held stiff workouts today and will be out again in uniform tomorrow morning. Practice thus far has caused one casualty in the East's squad. Tom Dowler, backfield mainstay from Colgate, was on the shelf today with a wrenched knee, sustained in a scrimmage against Stanford university's team. The Eastern players are training at Stanford and their prospective Western opponents are working out in San Francisco.

Head Coach Andy Kerr of the East, seeking to perfect a starting combination, has switched his players in every practice session. With two full teams on the field, Kerr has had Jules Yablok of Colgate and "Frosty" Peters of Illinois in the quarterback position. Indications are this pair will divide the duties, each playing half of the game.

The Western squad has not shaped up any more definitely than the East's, with Coach Percy Locey trying out a different backfield combination every little while. Two sets of ball luggers have had several intensive sessions, they lined up as follows: Quarterback, Clark, Colorado; halfback, Lom, California and Fredericks, Olympic club; fullback, Gilmore, Oregon State; quarterback, Hunting, Gonzaga; halfbacks, Sloan, Nebraska and Waldorf, Missouri; fullback, Pomeroy, Utah.

PITT PANTHERS LEAVE TONIGHT WITH SQUAD OF 33

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Dec. 24.—(AP)—Even so international a visitor as Santa Claus tonight could not hope for a brief audience with the University of Pittsburgh football players so busy were the Panthers with preparations for the trip they start tomorrow night to Pasadena, Calif., to play the University of Southern California in the tournament of Roses on New Year's day. The last hard home drill was held today.

The list of 33 players to make the trip, announced today, includes 14 backfield men. The 33 are:

Quarterbacks: Baker, Edwards and Wagner; halfbacks, Uansa, Walinchus, Williams, Rooney, Murphy, Wilps, McDowell and Kelly; fullbacks, Parkinson, Clark and Hood; ends, Donchess, Collins, Loehr, Hirschberg and Schultz; tackles, McMurdo, Tully, Quatse, Babic and Ciper; guards, Dimeolo, Montgomery, Morris, Milligan, Lewis and Yentch; centers, Daugherty, Barnes and Morris.

KIZER MADE COACH TO SUCCEED PHELAN

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Dec. 24.—(AP) — The football system which James M. Phelan organized at Purdue university and which produced a western conference championship team for the old Gold and Black during the recent season, is to be perpetuated by the advancement of Noble Kizer, Phelan's assistant, to the position of head coach. President Edward C. Elliott today approved the recommendation of Col. Nelson A. Kellogg, directors of athletics, that Kizer be made the head coach to replace Phelan, who left Purdue to take charge of the University of Washington football team next season.

Kizer will have two assistants who also were aides to Phelan. They will be Earl Martineau and Mal Elward. Kizer and Elward are both former Notre Dame players, having learned their football under Knute Rockne as also did Phelan. Martineau is a former Minnesota player.

INTERSECTIONAL HIGH SCHOOL GAME AT MIAMI TODAY

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 24.—(AP) —Two fast high school football teams today wound up training in preparation for the Miami-Salem, Mass., intersectional game here tomorrow. The weather, slightly chilly, gave the northerners an edge over their southern opponents in the opinion of the fans who watched the workouts today. Weather observers, however, predicted warmer weather for tomorrow.

The Salemites, lighter and reputedly faster than the home team, were in good form today, but in the event of warmer weather may play at a disadvantage. Officials in charge of the game said they expected a crowd of 10,000 fans.

A VERY MERRY CHRISTMAS IS MY SINCERE WISH FOR EVERYBODY ON THIS MOST GLORIOUS DAY OF THE YEAR

ACADEMY STARS MADE GOOD AT COLLEGES

Former Academy sports luminaries fared well on college squads during the 1929 season. Twelve former wearers of the Red and White made the grade in college during the year now rapidly drawing to a close and, as every one of these boys is now at home for the holidays, there is no better time to review their work.

The list follows:

Pheno Tombari, varsity baseball and football at Conn. Aggies.

Billy Tirrell, freshman baseball and varsity football at Wesleyan.

Jim Moore, varsity football at Conn. Aggies.

Harold Disco, varsity football at Trinity (Hartford).

Jim Williams, varsity football squad at Conn. Aggies.

Johnny Greene, fall practice on freshman baseball squad and made remarkable showing working out with varsity track.

Sam Wilcox, varsity golf captain at William and Mary.

Pheno Tombari heads the list for he was connected with two varsity teams during the year. He played shortstop on the nine and was at end on the grid aggregation, being one of the mainstays of both outfits. He also did the passing for the Dolemen. Jim Moore made varsity center at Storrs this year and put up a creditable game while Jim Williams, former Academy grid leader, was a halfback.

Billy Tirrell followed up his freshman triumphs at Wesleyan at Middletown and made the varsity football team, playing both on the line and in the backfield. He caught and played in the outfield on the Frosh nine in the spring. Harold Disco was a varsity halfback at Trinity college of Hartford.

Lloyd Jarvis completed his freshman year at Holy Cross and continued his brilliant work of the Academy days by earning a place on the strong freshman nine. He played in the outfield and also pitched and is looked upon next year as a strong candidate for the varsity. Jarvis featured his work by appearing against his old teammates at the campus in June and winning easily, 16 to 1, allowing them but four hits and getting a home run for himself over the centerfield fence.

Little William and Mary college in Williamsburg, Va., drew the largest number of ex-Wildcats, no less than six having displayed their talents there. Mace Goldblatt, catcher and Steffy Cimikoski, third baseman, corralled positions on the freshman nine last spring and Goldblatt is being groomed for varsity receiver this year. Cimikoski has dropped out of school for a year. Johnny Greene, Jarvis' sidekick on the great baseball teams at the Academy a year or so ago, entered this school in September after working a year and has also showed signs of coming glory by working out against the varsity baseball team in fall practice and missing the school record only by inches in the broad jump. Sam Wilcox is varsity golf captain down there and Jack Marks and Amie (Bucie) LaCroix, another notable pair of Academy heroes, both made the grade in freshman football, playing in the backfield. LaCroix was captain, the only one of the former N. F. A. boys to gain this honor.

So it will be a Merry Christmas for these athletes after all, as far as their athletic abilities are concerned.

N. Y. COMMISSION REFUSES TO SANCTION MIXED BOUT

NEW YORK, Dec. 24—(AP)—The scheduled 15-round welterweight championship boxing bout at Madison Square Garden, January 3, between Champion Jackie Fields and Young Jack Thompson, was quashed today by the New York state athletic commission which refused to grant its sanction.

Holding that the proposed affair was not a logical championship match, the commissioners pointed out Fields has beaten the San Francisco Negro twice. They indicated a belief that Jimmy McLarnin has a better right to the shot at Fields' title.

Because of the dissatisfaction resulting from the Tod Morgan-Benny Bass junior lightweight affair of last week the commission was disposed to apply closer scrutiny to future title matches.

Further investigation of the bout in which Bass won the title from Morgan by a knockout in the second round was postponed indefinitely and the purses of the principals were still held up, but the commission relented sufficiently to allow Morgan and his manager, Frank Churchill, enough of their share to pay the railroad fare back to Seattle.

John Pesek, the powerful Nebraskan who is seeking a bout with Dick Shikat, recognized in New York and Pennsylvania as heavyweight wrestling champion, posted a $2,500 check as an evidence of good faith and this was passed on to Jack Curley, New York wrestling promoter.

NEW YORK AMERICANS WIN FROM DETROIT 5 TO 3

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, Dec. 24—(AP)—The New York Americans turned in their third victory of the National Hockey league season tonight, defeating the Detroit Cougars 5 to 3 in a comedy of errors. An awarded goal, at least one accidental score and a couple of lucky ones were recorded.

The opening counter was given to Detroit when Goalie Beeny Grant broke up a Cooper to Lewis passing attack by throwing his stick. The Americans got this back with the counter that tied the score at 2-2 in the second period when Carson Cooper drove the puck past his own goalie.

Most of the American counters came when Detroit players were in the penalty box and several came in odd ways. Besides Cooper's accidental goal, Sheppard made another that seemed to glance off Connors' stock in a rush on the net and McVeigh scored by skating behind the net when Goalie Beveridge was watching the other side. McVeigh and Sheppard combined on the last of three final period goals that decided the struggle.

SUIT FOR $250,000 BROUGHT BY GIANTS AGAINST FORMER TREASURER

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.—(AP)—Seeking damages in the sum of $250,000, the National Exhibition company, operating the New York Giants Baseball club of the National league, today filed suit against its former treasurer, Francis X. McQuade.

McQuade, who served as treasurer of the company from May 1, 1919, to May 1, 1928, is alleged in the complaint to have injured and destroyed the property, assets and earning power of the plaintiff to the extent of the sum asked in the suit. The defendant is a New York magistrate.

The document sets forth a claim that the defendant "attempted to induce and influence officers and directors to pay to him and other officers increased and unconscionable salaries." On refusal, the complaint says that "the defendant planned and schemed to wreck and destroy the property, assets and earning capacity of the plaintiff."

Other allegations are that McQuade stood at the gate of the Polo Grounds, playing field of the Giants, and admitted "vast numbers" to games without these patrons having tickets, that he "insulted, assaulted and falsely imprisoned spectators attending games," and "insulted and harassed employes."

The former treasurer is alleged in the document filed today to have accompanied the Giants on trips in spite of the objections of the plaintiff and made discipline among the players difficult.

Committees representing colleges renting the Polo Grounds for exhibitions are alleged to have been "harrassed and insulted."

Edward T. Brannick announced at the offices of the Giants that a copy of the complaint was served on Magistrate McQuade today, although the document is dated December 18.

While treasurer, McQuade "attempted to induce and influence officials and directors to pay him and other officers increased and unconscionable salaries" and formulated plans to divide the income of the corporation for the sole benefit of himself and other officers, the complaint states.

When officers and directors of the corporation refused to comply with his demands, it is declared he attempted to wreck the firm. Another accusation is that he harrassed and insulted committees representing colleges, thus preventing renting of the Polo Grounds for football exhibitions.

McQuade is also accused of insulting, assaulting and "falsely imprisoning" spectators at the Polo Grounds, this resulting in legal actions against the corporation; of harassing employes of the Polo Grounds; of accompanying the team to training camps and elsewhere without permission and acting so improperly that members of the team and officers of the corporation were invited to get out of quarters in which they were stationed; and of making public in advance information concerning the corporation's plans to secure new players with the result that the Giants were forced to pay higher prices for their services.

The complaint was filed by an associate of Leo J. Bondy, attorney for the Giants.

SPORTS WORLD LOOKS TO SANTA FOR RELIEF OF PROBLEMS

By BRIAN BELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 24—(AP)—Santa Claus, alias St. Nick, can do a good turn tomorrow for a number of watchful waiters in sports, but he probably will not.

There's Madison Square Garden with a yawning sock, only half filled with heavyweight boxers to clutter up a new and expensive arena at Miami, Fla., in February. No one connected with the commuting promoters would be sorry to find an opponent for Jack Sharkey dropped from Kris Kringle's capacious pack.

Sixteen managers of major league baseball clubs, would count Christmas a huge success if jolly old S. Claus, Esq., should leave them a few good righthand pitchers or even left hand ones if their control is good.

Donie Bush, of the Chicago White Sox will look through his packages to see if any are labelled "catchers" and Bob Shawkey, of the Yankees will feel much better over the holidays if his presents include field toys guaranteed not to break.

If Roger Peckinpaugh and Bill Evans find an infielder on their joint Christmas tree their first question will be "Does he bat righthanded?" If not, they will toss him back. For Wilbert Robinson, the best present will be news of peace, or an armistice, along the turbulent Brooklyn baseball front.

Bill McKechnie, of the Braves and Heinie Wagner of the Red Sox, will be among the most charitable of the recipients of Christmas tokens. They will not look gift horses in the mouth. If their presents include ball players they will not care what positions they play.

Hundreds of golfers, convinced that the game they misplaced last autumn will be found again if they can try their shots under southern skies, will start after Christmas for sunnier climes, where there is no snow on the greens. The best Christmas for these optimists will be a cure for a slice. They do not mind the hook.

THREE TEAMS HAVE STRENUOUS PRACTICE TILTS

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Calif., Dec. 24—(AP)—It was the night before Christmas, but to three very tired football teams quartered on the Stanford campus it was just an opportunity to recuperate after a strenuous day's work. Coach Lawrence "Biff" Jones, West Point Army eleven, here to play Stanford next Saturday, spent the morning seeing the sights of the campus, but had no such easy time after lunch. The varsity tested its offensive power against its own "B" team, with the agle-to-Carlmark and Cagle-to-Messinger passes, according to reports emanating from the locked gates of the stadium, much in evidence.

This was followed by a defensive drill, with a first year squad using Stanford plays trying to penetrate the Army line.

Jones today shifted Herb Gibner, second string quarterback, to a halfback post, and will hold him in readiness at that position for Saturday's game.

The Stanford first string players took things easy today, confining themselves to a light limbering up drill. The condition of Walt Heinicke, varsity center, who is ill in a hospital here, was still unimproved, and it seemed certain that his understudy, Perry Taylor, will play most if not all of the game against the Cadets.

Herb Fleischacker, the other Cardinal on the injured list, was released from the hospital, but was still limping badly on his wrenched knee. If he is unable to play Saturday, Coach Glenn Warner probably will shift Harlow Rothert to the fullback post and replace Rothert at right tackle with Guido Caglieri.

The all-star eastern Shrine eleven, here with Coaches Andy Kerr, of Colgate, and Dick Hanley, of Northwestern, got another taste of scrimmage today, this time with the Stanford third string. Tony Holm, powerful Alabama fullback, showed to advantage on the offensive, ripping the Cardinal line to shreds on straight power plays. Tommy Dowler, Colgate back who was injured yesterday was hobbling around the field on crutches but expected to get back in action in two or three days.

INDOOR BASEBALL GAME AT "Y" THIS MORNING

At the local Y. M. C. A. gym this morning there is to be another of those thrilling indoor baseball games between Platoon No. 1 of the fire department and the United Metal team. The firemen will put the following in the field: Farwell, c; Woodmansee, p; Ensling, 1b; Tracy, 2b; Gromko, 3b; Moody, ss; Blinderman, rf; Carbray, lf; Matthews, cf; Driscoll, ss.

The United Metal will have the following: Johndrow, p; Mathews, c; F. Kirchner, 1b; Wenzel, 2b; Cummings, 3b; P. Kirchner, lf; J. Wenzel, cf; Whitehead, rf; Hill, ss; Custy, ss.

Strange to say, the coming man is the one who has arrived.

GREENLEAF AND TABERSKI SPLIT IN SECOND BLOCKS

NEW YORK, Dec. 24—(AP)—Ralph Greenleaf, world's pocket billiard champion, and Frank Taberski of Schenectady, N. Y., former title-holder, split even in two blocks of their 12 block 1500 point match here today. Taberski, however, leads in total points, 490 to 371 and in blocks, three to one.

Taberski won the afternoon block, 125 to 118 in 14 innings. The New York state star's best run was 85; Greenleaf's 83.

Greenleaf took the evening block, 125 to 115 in 16 innings. The champion's high run was 28; Taberski's 29.

CASSIN'S CREW ENTERTAINS COUNTY HOME CHILDREN

For the two last years the children of the New London County home have been Christmas guests of the officers and crew of the United States destroyer Cassin, Captain Darby, on board the ship in New London harbor. This year an order for an early sailing made this impossible, so Tuesday 13 of these men came to the home and entertained the children for nearly three hours, giving them candy, nuts and fruit, besides a personal gift to each one. It was a merry party, seemingly enjoyed by the visitors as heartily as by the children as they renewed the acquaintances of the past two years.

The men who visited the institution were O. P. Landfield, chief commissary steward; M. B. Kirk, chief yeoman; J. Alligood, chief boatswain's mate; Frank Wier, chief machinist's mate; Victor Henkle, chief quartermaster; D. V. Sternberz, B. M. 2c; Labon Hooper, R. M. 1c; Carl Spicer, C. M. 2c; R. Lund, F. 1c; A. J. Perkins, R. M. 2c; Maurice Joubert, M. M. 1c; A. J. Belol, SE. 1c., and L. H. Dyer, chief water tender.

The children of the home were given a delightful entertainment Sunday afternoon by over 40 young people from St. Mary's parish, who were accompanied by Mother Superior Sister Andretta and six other sisters of the parish convent. Joseph Cummings, Jr., directed the programme of music and recitations and Mrs. Farrell added greatly to the success of the vocal numbers by her piano accompaniments. Following the entertainment, Santa Claus distributed a box of candy and a gift to each child in the home and left many nice books for future use. The children enjoyed a very pleasant afternoon, for which they were very appreciative.

MODEL OF VENETIAN HOME ON EXHIBITION

On display in a window of Schwartz Bros. store on Main street is a large, well-made model of a home in Venice, Italy, which is the work of Frank Connell of 52 Franklin street. It is constructed with considerable ingenuity, showing a two-story main building from which extend two wings to form a courtyard into which runs the canal by which gondolas approach the entrance to the house, in front of which is a bridge over the canal. Lanterns are attached at the corners of the wings, the windows in the house have silver shutters, there is a clock in the peak of the main building and brass ornaments in the peaks of the wings.

The whole gives a good idea of one of the finer houses of the Italian city.

GAVE RADIO TALK OVER STATION WTIC ON SWEETS

This is the season of the year when fond aunts and uncles, to say nothing of grandparents, are laying a campaign of sweetness that will put them in strong with the young folks, said Elizabeth C. Nickerson of the state department of health, in a recent radio talk over station WTIC, Hartford.

Already the manufacturers and the dealers are urging them on by handsome displays of sweets in dressed up packages, which will be found in stockings and on Christmas trees, and will form a part of the heavily-laden Christmas dinner table.

Far be it from me to discourage this exuberance of spirit at a time when happiness should abound, even though there may be a day of reckoning immediately following.

Let us rather consider the question of sweets during the other 364 days of the year, and should our reasoning be sound perhaps the 365th will also benefit.

To my mind sweets have to do with appetite while honest-to-goodness food has to do with hunger or body craving for its normal needs. Appetite is merely a desire for satisfaction, which, if not controlled will soon mask the hunger call which is nature's method of protecting health. Appetite does not always run to sweets—sometimes it is pickles, or queer soda concoctions, or rich pastries (with adults possibly other things) and these usually at any odd time during the day, which if allowed free play will destroy the zest for nourishing foods at the regular meals.

Now hunger, as I said before, is nature's way of calling for food. If we cheat nature by offering only sweets which because of the insistence of pleasurable appetite, are apt to be taken in large quantities, we are crowding out those other foods which are bone-building, and tooth-strengthening and muscle-enriching and generally health-promoting. I refer to such simple foods as milk, and fruits, and vegetables, and breads and cereals and eggs and meats. To be sure, appetite may again creep in and call for an over-abundance of any of these—for instance, if one craved only meats and breads, which while superior to sweets because of the protein and traces of other nutritive substances which they contain, would crowd out the more valuable milk, fruits and vegetables, which are prize packages for vitamins and minerals.

Growth cannot be supported by sweets, candy, sugar, etc., because these contain no growing or nourishing materials. Nor can bread and meat alone support growth; we must have each day as well milk, vegetables and fruits.

CONTESTS FINAL ACCOUNT OF HUSBAND'S ESTATE

Mrs. Katherine S. Desmond, widow, and counsel, Attorney George H. Gilman, at the local probate court Tuesday morning, contested the final account of the estate of the late Jeremiah J. Desmond, former county coroner, as rendered by George R. Fellows, trust officer of the Thames Bank & Trust Co., executor of the will, making their objections to the account upon nine particulars. As a result of the differences between the counsel for Mrs. Desmond and the executor, no action upon the acceptance of the account was taken by Judge Nelson J. Ayling.

According to the executor's report, the late Mr. Desmond left a total estate of $236,765.45 and after expenses, totaling $14,206.70, were taken out, there was a balance of $222,558.75. For its services as executor the Thames bank charged $4,500. Bequests were paid as follows:

Mary J. Birkery $1,000, Julia D. Donohue $500, Cornelius Birkery $500 and Rt. Rev. John J. Nilan $1,500, the last bequest to be used and expended in charity, at his discretion.

The account provides for the distribution of the residue of the estate as follows: To Mrs. Desmond, $70,000; to a son, Thomas G. Desmond of Washington, D. C., $68,000; and to a daughter, Catherine G. Desmond, $68,000. In accordance with the will, Mrs. Desmond will receive the income on the $70,000 for life.

Through her attorney, Mr. Gilman, Mrs. Desmond objected to the final administration account as submitted by the executor, in the following particulars:

To the sale of the office furniture and books for the sum of $350 on the ground that the same was not the best price obtainable for the property.

To the failure of the executor to collect any rent for the office premises in the Disco building.

To the failure of the executor to charge itself with the value of the personal assets, furniture, silver and pictures belonging to the deceased.

To the payment to Edward G. Moran the sum of $50 on the ground that no proper voucher appears therefor.

To the payment to Fred Nowatsky of the sum of $2.90 or so much thereof as is for papers furnished after the death of the decedent.

To the payment to Disco Bros. of $97.50, stated to be for storage of the books and office furniture of the deceased.

To the payment of Mrs. Alice Sarles of the sum of $75 on the ground that the same is excessive on its face and that it includes items after the death of the decedent.

To the failure of the executor to pay or provide for the sum of $500 for a monument as directed by the third clause of the will herein.

To the failure to apportion the assets on hand between principal and interest, and to provide for the payment to Mrs. Desmond of one-third of the income since the death of the decedent free from any trust.

ENFORCEMENT OFFICIALS RESENT BORAH'S CHARGES

Attorney General Mitchell Takes the Senator to Task For Aspersions Cast on U. S. Attorneys and Other Officials of the Department of Justice—Asserted That Such Deficiencies as Exist in Prohibition Enforcement Are Not Due to Lack of Will to Enforce the Law, But to Failure by Congress to Adopt Legislation to Carry Out the Administration's Recommendations — Commissioner Doran Deplores Statements Made by Senator Borah.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25.— (AP) — Aroused by the charge of Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, that the present prohibition enforcement personnel "from top to bottom" would never enforce the dry laws, two departments which administer the Volstead act tonight rebuked his stand in resentful statements.

Attorney General Mitchell for the department of justice and Dr. James M. Doran, commissioner of prohibition, speaking for the treasury, said Borah had overlooked what they called the marked progress made in prohibition enforcement under the direction of President Hoover. Mitchell said that when congress saw fit to provide more adequate law enforcement machinery, those who administer the law "will be able to accomplish more."

Senator Borah's statement, which followed the efforts of some dry senators to have the Hoover law enforcement commission make a preliminary report, contended the dry laws had been clearly defined by the supreme court and that the only thing needed was to find the "kind of officials who will enforce it."

"In my opinion," the senator said, "it will never be enforced with the present personnel from top to bottom."

Mitchell said the honor of the hundreds of public servants made it impossible for him to let pass without protest the wholesale charge leveled by Borah against United States attorneys, marshals, and other officers of the department of justice. He added that these men who prosecute offenses against the dry laws had been doing their best to enforce the law, and that there has never been greater zeal in the enforcement than now. For months, he continued, the department had been working on measures designed to improve personnel, relieve congestion in the courts and to reorganize the enforcement agencies.

"When congress is ready to consider and adopt legislation to carry out the administration's recommendations for more adequate law enforcement machinery, those whose duty it is to enforce the law will be able to accomplish more," Mitchell said.

"There has been improvement in the last six months. There has, also, under the president's leadership, been a noticeable change in public attitude toward law observance.

"All agencies in the executive service having any part in enforcing prohibition, have been too conscious of determined and unceasing pressure from the president for enforcement to leave any room for indifference. Such deficiencies as exist in prohibition enforcement are not due to lack of will to enforce the law either at the top or the bottom."

Commissioner Doran said the condemnation by Senator Borah of the entire prohibition enforcement personnel was "unfortunate and bound to have a disheartening effect upon the morale of the service."

"It is not to say that administration is not susceptible to improvement, but to say that prohibition cannot be enforced with the present personnel comes perilously near to saying that it cannot be enforced at all," he continued. "I can affirm that on the whole we are not likely to find a more loyal and conscientious group of men than are now serving under me."

Doran pointed out that the prohibition personnel is now appointed under the civil service law and said that Borah's statement overlooked the progress made in enforcement and set forth in Doran's annual report to congress.

"First there must be the will to enforce," Doran said.

"No one, I think, will deny that under the present administration there has existed wholehearted determination to enforce the law. This has been evidenced by the clean-cut declarations of the chief executive, which in my judgment have not only had an inspiring effect on the morale of public servants but have met with a very genuine response on the part of private citizens."

Doran related efforts being made to revise the prohibition laws, the proposal to concentrate the border patrols under the coast guard to stop smuggling of liquor into the country and the study made to improve relations between state and federal authorities in enforcing the law. As a result, he continued, a plan of prohibition enforcement reorganization will be submitted to congress, which he said he believed would promote enforcement of the law.

He said the treasury was prepared to submit to congress a plan for more effective prevention of smuggling of liquor into the country by establishing a limited number of points of entry and for patroling the territory between these points by a unified border patrol.

"In conclusion, I affirm that genuine progress is being made in the enforcement of the prohibition law," Doran said, "that the personnel in the federal prohibition service is steadily improving in morale and efficiency, that my observation leads me to believe that under the leadership of the president there has been a much more helpful attitude on the part of the public, and finally insofar as the administration is concerned, a program is ready for submission to the congress."

SLEW HIS WIFE, SIX CHILDREN AND HIMSELF

WALNUT COVE, N. C., Dec. 25—(AP)—Becoming suddenly insane, a Stokes county farmer today slew his wife and six children, and after laying them out for burial went into a patch of woods near his home and killed himself with a shotgun.

The body of C. D. Lawson, the 42 year old father and husband, was found about a half a mile from the home with the shotgun wound in his chest.

At the home were the bodies of Mrs. Lawson, 38; Marie, 17; James 7; Raymond 5, and Mary Lou, four months. The mother and her oldest daughter had been shot in the breast, apparently with the same gun the father used to end his own life. James, Raymond and Mary Lou had been beaten to death with a blunt instrument.

In a tobacco barn, a quarter of a mile away, neighbors found the bodies of Carrie Lawson, 14, and Maribelle, 20. They had been shot in the back. Big splotches of blood on snow outside the building led to the discovery of the bodies in the building.

The father, after he had killed his wife and children, carefully prepared them for burial. He closed their eyes and folded their hands over their breasts. The heads of the five victims found in the home were placed on pillows. Old sacks were placed under the heads of the two girls, whose bodies were found in the tobacco barn.

After he had done this, the middle aged farmer, believed to have become deranged from a blow he received on the head a year ago, went into the woods and shot himself.

Arthur, a 19 year old son, who was visiting an uncle, a few miles from Walnut Cove, was the only member of the immediate family to escape. He was prostrated when he returned home and learned of the tragedy.

PUBLIC KEPT FROM GRAVE OF FATHER P. J. POWER

MALDEN, Mass., Dec. 25.—(AP) — About a thousand persons visited Holy Cross cemetery here today, seeking to approach the grave of Father Patrick J. Power, visited by hundreds of thousands of pilgrims before the cemetery was closed pending an investigation by the Roman Catholic church, but none were admitted who did not have relatives buried in the graveyard. Of those who did, none were permitted within the fence built to enclose the grave.

AWAITING ARRAIGNMENT ON CHARGE OF MURDER

JAY, Okla., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Charged with murder, Wirt Hastings, nephew of Representative W. W. Hastings of Tahlequah, was in the Delaware county jail here today awaiting formal arraignment. Hastings was arrested last night, 24 hours after Charles Gearyrock, a neighbor, had been shot to death as he sat in the Hastings home, three miles southeast of Bernice.

GALE IS SWEEPING SOUTHERN ENGLAND

LONDON, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Ye olde Christmas day in England came in like a lamb and went out a lashing, roaring gale that sent ships scooting for shelter all around the British Isles. The storm area extended from the Orkney Islands to Spain.

Vigo, Spain, reported the loss of the Norwegian steamer Aslaug with all hands of 24 off Farrallones Bayona early today.

The storm blew out of the southwest, banishing the blue skies and summery weather of southern England. Rain fell in torrents and hail rattled on the streets of London this morning while wild weather ruled the south coast districts where Christmas visitors to resort towns watched great seas pound on the beaches and harbor walls at Folkestone and other ports.

Many ships sought sheltered water from Plymouth to Scotland, where a 70-mile gale swept toward the Orkneys. The mails were held up at Kirkwall and the North Orkneys were without Christmas letters, all sea services being suspended.

For the first time in 30 years no trawlers were in with fish at Aberdeen market today. The harbor bar was not passable. The Aberdeen district has been stormbound for a week, while southern Britain was enjoying warmth and sunshine. Not a vessel has entered or left Aberdeen since last Monday.

BIBULOUS CELEBRATION OF CHRISTMAS IN NEWARK

NEWARK, N. J., Dec. 25.—(AP) — Eleven persons were treated in the psychopathic ward at the City hospital last night and today for alcoholism and more than fifty others were locked up by police for too strenuous celebration of the holiday.

None of those taken to the hospital was in serious condition.

While there was no apparent scarcity of liquor, authorities said much of that available contained poisonous matter. Dr. Charles V. Craster, chief of the city health bureau, said that analysis by a chemical expert showed pyridine, a denaturing product, diethylphalate, a similar fluid, and other poisons to be present in much of the liquor offered for sale.

20 PERSONS INJURED BY RECKLESS DRIVER

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Dec. 25.—(AP) —Twenty persons were injured, some seriously, tonight at Cherry Creek, near here, when Stanley Rankowiski, 35, drove his car through a line of children waiting to receive presents at an outdoor community Christmas celebration. Mayor G. Sheldon Frost of the village sustained a fractured leg. Most of those injured were small children.

Rankowiski was arrested. The village was in a turmoil following the occurrence, the office of the only physician in the place being crowded with injured.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

BERLIN, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Germany today celebrated Christmas with less money than last year but with the same traditional cheer and devotion that has characterized the day for centuries.

MONTELIMAR, France, Dec. 25—(AP) —Without pomp or ceremony, former President Loubet was buried yesterday with the simplest rites of the Catholic church from which the French state was separated during his term of office.

LONDON, Dec. 25—(AP)—General Jan C. Smuts, noted South African statesman, sailed for the United States yesterday aboard the steamship Berengaria. He was in the best of health and said he anticipated keenly his visit to the United States and Canada.

NAPLES, Italy, Dec. 25.—(AP)— The famous San Carlo Opera of Naples will open its winter season tomorrow with Wagner's "Twilight of the Gods," under the conducting baton of Edoardo Vitale. A chorus of 100 and an orchestra of 124 have been engaged, and the list of artists who will sing here is one of the most notable in the San Carlo's history.

WAS SHOT BY MOB AND THROWN OVER CLIFF

JACKSON, Ky., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Chester Fugate, a tenant farmer held for the slaying of his landlord, was taken from the Breathitt county jail today, shot half a dozen times and thrown over a cliff where five hours later his prayers and groans attracted help.

Fugate was brought to a hospital here and when it was learned that he was not expected to live his signed statement was taken. He was said to have stated that he recognized several of the mob, but county officials declined to give any intimation of their names pending arrests.

The mob that revenged the death of Clay Watkins, lawyer and wealthy land owner, worked quietly and apparently under good leadership. Five men, about 2 a. m., slipped into the bedroom of Sollie Combs, the jailer, in his home adjoining the jail. Combs said that before he was fully awake his arms and feet had been bound. He woke to a warning to keep quiet if he valued his life.

"I couldn't make any outcry," Combs said. "They had guns on me and had my hands and legs tied. Then they took the keys and went and got Fugate. That's all I know. There were five in my room. There must have been 75 to 100 in the crowd."

PRISONERS RECAPTURED AT CHRISTMAS EVE PARTY

EAST VIEW, N. Y., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Two prisoners who escaped from East View penitentiary last September, today were back in their cells because they went to a Christmas eve party without investigating the source of their invitation.

The prisoners, Charles Sirigo, 20, and Harry De Stefano, 22, both of New York, had successfull evaded the police since their escape. Yesterday morning Sirigo, calling at an address in New York where he sometimes received his mail found a letter signed with the name of a prisoner he had known at East View.

The letter, which purported to have been smuggled from the penitentiary, said the prisoner was to get out yesterday and was to hold a party celebrating his release at a New York apartment. A cordial invitation was extended to Sirigo and De Stefano.

Last night, when both arrived at the party, they found four policemen awaiting them. They then learned that the letter had been sent by penitentiary authorities.

Rumors Of Perfidy Of General Sandino

Former Nicaraguan Rebel Leader Charged With Being Unfaithful to His Cause—Now in Mexico.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 25.—(AP)—The newspaper Universal reported today that the communist party of Mexico, the Mexican chapter of the anti-imperialist league, and the "hands-off-Nicaragua" committee were investigating rumors that General Sandino, exiled Nicaraguan liberal leader, had accepted a check for $60,000 as the price of his leaving Nicaragua.

General Sandino came to Mexico several months ago. He has been living at Merida, where according to charges brought by the three political groups he is leading the life of a millionaire.

Sandino is noted for the long guerrilla resistance that he made to the United States marine forces in northern Nicaragua. After his departure most of his followers were broken up into small bands of raiders.

The Universal says that he has been charged with being unfaithful to his cause and that the three political bodies accuse him of having been bought off from fighting in Nicaragua after supporters all over the world had contributed funds to enable him to resist American occupation.

The anti-imperialist league and the "hands-off-Nicaragua" committee have been among the most enthusiastic supporters of General Sandino and often championed his cause in public manifestations.

A prominent member of these groups told a reported for Universal that a photograph of the check paid to Sandino was in the hands of the investigators, but as the investigation is secret he refused to allow the reporter to see it.

Press reports from Merida recently said that General Sandino was living on a farm nearby. When he arrived in Mexico he was accompanied by five so-called staff officers, and he then declared that his operations in Nicaragua were by no means ended. He said that he planned to resume active command of the revolt.

Will Send Planes in Quest of American Aviators Lost in the Arctic Zone—Action Taken in Deference to the Request of Senator Borah and Appeal of the U. S. Department of the Interior—Semyon Shestakov, Soviet Air Hero, Will Lead the Rescue Expedition.

MOSCOW, Dec. 25—(AP)—The soviet government today dispatched an airplane to search for Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland off the Siberian coast and ordered two other soviet planes to join in the mission. It was believed the ice in the district to be covered was too strong to permit the use of icebreakers.

The Moscow authorities took prompt action on the requeust of Senator Borah of Idaho to Acting Foreign Commissar Litvinoff and the similar appeal of the United States department of the interior.

Semyon Shestakov, who has been a national hero since his recent return after making a successful flight from Moscow to New York, was selected as the most able man at the command of the Soviet Union to lead the rescue expedition. Lomen, director of rescue operations in Nome, informed the Seattle Times today. While not stated in the message, it is assumed that the plane was heard near the ship on November 9, the day it was last seen flying from the Alaskan mainland to the ice-bound Nanuk to take passengers and furs off the marooned vessel.

Lomen also said Crosson has had natives build a temporary hangar out of snow blocks near Northcape to shelter his plane and keep it out of the cold while warming the motor.

Richard Williamson, the boy's brother and a student at the University of Oklahoma was hunting with his brother in the field. He was not wounded.

HARVARD JUNIOR KILLED BY FALL FROM WINDOW

NEW YORK, Dec. 25.—(AP)—The pajama-clad body of Benson Boring, 20, a junior at Harvard university, was found in the courtyard of the home of his parents, Prof. and Mrs. William A. Boring, today by a Negro porter.

Police said he apparently had fallen from the window of his room on the 11th floor. His father is a professor at Columbia university.

The boy had arrived at his home Saturday to spend the Christmas holidays with his mother and his father. He was an only child. Christmas eve he went out and returned home at about 3 a. m.

His father told detectives that the boy had first gone to the ice box for some cold duck and wine and had then retired. Professor Boring said his son then became ill and apparently went to the window. It appeared that he lost his balance and fell to his death. In the fall he struck a fence which mangled his body.

Professor Boring scouted the idea that his son might have committed suicide.

A TREASURE SHIP SENT FROM GENOA TO ENGLAND

MILAN, Italy, Dec. 25.—(AP)—The Spanish argosies of old, their holds filled with gold from the Spanish Main, are far surpassed by the treasure ship of art that Italy recently sent from Genoa to England.

The cargo of the 7,000-ton steamer Leonardo Da Vinci consisted of 330 masterpieces of Italian art, with a nominal value of $70,000,000. Their market value, if they were permitted to be sold, would run into hundreds of millions of dollars.

Just as the Spanish argosies passed through many perils before reaching port, so the Leonardo Da Vinci passed through the peril of a terrific Atlantic storm on her way to England early in December.

The treasure of the ship was gathered from all the major museums and galleries in Italy and was destined for an exhibition of Italian art in Burlington House, London, opening Jan. 1.

PRESIDENT HOOVER TO HAVE EXECUTIVE OFFICES REBUILT

He had conferred with Col. U. S. Grant III, superintendent of public buildings and grounds here, who was requested to have contractors notified that bids would be asked early tomorrow. In the meantime some twenty carpenters placed timbers under sagging roof to prevent it from falling in.

THEORIES ADVANCED FOR TRIPLE SLAYING

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 25—(AP)—Robbery by an unknown person and a criminal attack by a Negro employe of the household were the theories advanced by officials today to account for the slaying last night of Dr. Barclay J. Jones, 61 year old physician, his wife, Mrs. Lucy Lane Jones, aged 22, and her nephew, George Lane, 13.

The bodies of the trio were found this morning. All had been beaten to death. A coroner's jury this afternoon returned a verdict of murder by some unknown person with robbery as a motive. Sheriff Walker Anderson and his son, Deputy Sheriff Anderson, however, expressed belief that the slayings had followed an attack on Mrs. Jones, and announced that they were seeking a young Negro named "Sam," who had been employed in the household for the past week.

"Sam," according to the sheriff, made his home in the basement, where Mrs. Jones' stripped body was found with that of her young nephew nearby. He also said the door of her bedroom had been broken open and her bed was in a state of extreme disorder.

The body of Dr. Jones, who was one of the most prominent physicians in Knoxville, was found, on the floor of a garage. A blood-stained axe and a pair of hedge clippers, also blood-stained, were found nearby.

AIR MAIL PILOT SURVIVES CRASH IN SNOW STORM

MICHIGAN CITY, Indiana, Dec. 25—(AP)—Thomas Hill, 26 year old Kalamazoo, Mich., air mail pilot whose plane, loaded with last minute messages of Yuletide cheer, crashed in the blinding snow storm last night, grinned from beneath a mountain of bandages at St. Anthony's hospital here today and observed that "it wasn't such a bad Christmas after all."

He had just been assured that his injuries, which physicians first thought might prove fatal, were not that serious. Hill suffered fractures of both jaws, a crushed face and minor body injuries.

First intimation that his ship was in distress was reported after flares were dropped. The plane was invisible in the blackness of mid-night, but the muffled drone of a motor, working faultly, sounded nearer as Hill circled in an attempt to land.

The plane crashed and Hill was pinned beneath the wreckage. He was lifted from the torn fuselage and rushed to St. Anthony's hospital.

Hill is employed by the Thompson Aerial corporation of Kalamazoo, and was flying his regular route between Chicago and that city when his motor failed.

JAR OF SMOKING TOBACO WAS PRESENTED DAWES

LONDON, Dec. 25—(AP)—Ambassador Charles G. Dawes puffed away on his underslung pipe in happiness tonight after Christmas dinner at Lady Astor's, for he got one Christmas present that pleased him mightily.

It was not from Lady Astor, but from the embassy staff, each and every member of which yesterday received a personal gift from the ambassador.

The appreciative staff sent scouts to find what General Dawes wanted in his own stocking. With great decisiveness the ambassador said that he didn't want anything to eat, wear or drink, and he added emphatically that he certainly did not want flowers.

After thinking for a while, he said that if anyone could find him some of his favorite American smoking tobacco, he would be pleased. The embassy staff found a big jar of it at a London tobacconist's and the old underslung pipe worked overtime tonight.

RECEIVED HIS LIBERTY AS CHRISTMAS GIFT

CADIZ, Spain, Dec. 25—(AP)—Dr. Francesco Franceschi Caballero has received his liberty as a Christmas gift from a Spanish court. The court found he was not responsible for the death of his one-man crew, Angel Carbo Rivera, who drowned September 3 at San Lucar de Barrameda the day after they completed a voyage from San Juan, Porto Rico, by way of New York, in a 40-foot yacht.

The stowaway, on the voyage, Roberto Lopez member of a wealthy Porto Rican family, bore out the statement of the boat's commander that Carbo Rivera had picked a fight with him and had fallen overboard.

Captain Dr. Franceschi Caballero said today, when informed that the general had approved of the finding of the court, that he would sell the yacht, the "Mary," and book passage back to Porto Rico by steamship.

THREE INJURED AS CAR CRASHES INTO BRIDGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 25—Three holiday tourists were injured and the driver of the car, Arthur Bedard, 24, of Springfield, Mass., was arrested for driving under the influence of liquor, as the result of a spectacular accident at the west end of the Willimantic river bridge just over the city line in town of Columbia today. The machine, a light touring car, bearing four adults and three children struck the right abutment of the bridge and turned a complete somersault coming to a rest upside down on the floor of the bridge some 20 feet from the abutment.

Joseph Biladeau, 66, of Aldenville, Mass., brother-in-law of Bedard was taken to St. Joseph's hospital where he was treated by Dr. Fred M. Smith for lacerations to the scalp, hands and right leg. He and one of the children were riding in the front seat. Mrs. Bedard, wife of the driver, sustained bruises on the right cheek and their three year old son, Hector, suffered concussion of the brain. The other occupants were Mrs. Biladeau, her 14 year old son, Arthur, and Doris, 2, and Alfred, 1, children of the Bedards. The infants escaped with scratches and shock. All members of the party except the driver and his father-in-law were taken into the home of Winfred Slater where they were treated by Dr. Nathan Spector. Several men guests at the Slater home including Theodore Kendall of Norwich, worked hard for several minutes to raise the overturned car sufficiently to release the occupants. That the injuries sustained by the occupants were not more serious was remarkable. The party was on the way to visit at the home of a friend, Pulias Taschereau, of 86 Spring street, Willimantic. Bedard was arrested at the scene by County Detective Howard H. Wheeler of this city who happened to be passing shortly after the accident. The accident is being investigated by Officer Roderick Lariviere.

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT IS MANIFEST IN WILLIMANTIC

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 25—Christmas as a holiday and a holy day was enjoyed today to its full significance by the populace. Church services of all denominations were thronged. The spirit of the day permeated even the most modest home and hundreds of gifts, some of them more valuable than others, but all tokens of appreciation, were exchanged. Everywhere were family gatherings, relatives and friends from far and near having arrived during the past few days in private cars or crowded trains and motor coaches.

The churches were filled to capacity. Special sermons were delivered by the pastors and assistants and excellent Christmas music was furnished by augmented choirs.

Civic, fraternal and welfare organizations responded to the annual appeal of the needy with great generosity, making it possible for many poorer parents and kiddies to sit about a well laden table today. Notable work was done in this connection by the local lodge of Elks which distributed 200 baskets, brimming with enough good things for the holiday and in some cases for several days to come. The work of the Elks was done with the co-operation of pastors of the churches and the Welfare Bureau. The Salvation Army party and the annual children's party of the Welfare Bureau are yet to be held during the remainder of the week.

Patients at St. Joseph's hospital have been remembered with boxes of oranges from William R. Sweeney and Bergeron & Grimley and ice cream and cakes from the Ladies' auxiliary of the hospital. Sisters of Charity and others connected with the hospital were remembered with individual gifts.

A great Merry Christmas is reported at the town almshouse by Superintendent Joseph Nolan and Matron Mrs. Nolan. Today's big feature was an appetizing turkey dinner served with all the fixings many of which were provided from the gardens of the home. The 15 men and 14 women inmates gathered at a Christmas tree party on the eve. Gifts were distributed from the tree by James Lynch, engineer of the state normal school, who carried well the part of Santa Claus. The inmates were previously guests at Christmas parties given by the Congregational church and the Catholic Welfare council at which time they were also presented with gifts. Excellent packages of candy were distributed as a donation of the Misses Edith Fenenbah and Ada Littlefield, normal school teachers. A basket of fruit was received from Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock of the Congregational church and there were other kindly contributions to the happiness of the aged people.

The Columbia townspeople gathered at a community celebration Christmas night with an out-of-door program of carol singing and a pageant in the Congregational church. The large gathering assembled on the green where Rev. John Powell, pastor of the church led in the carol singing. A group of young people sang at the several homes bordering the green. The Christmas pageant with 40 members in the cast was then staged in the church under the direction of Miss Leila Church of Rockville. Raymond E. Clark was chairman of the ways and means committee of the celebration and Mrs. Harvey S. Collins was chairman of the pageant committee.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 26—Postmaster Frank M. Smith was authority for the statement today that the present holiday mail rush had witnessed an increase of at least 10 per cent over any previous year in the history of the postoffice here. That excellent work was done in making deliveries is indicated in the fact that at closing time Tuesday night all first class mail matter received up to 1 p. m. had been delivered and all parcel post matter received up to 4 p. m. had reached its destination. The rush is not over, however, although the high peak was reached last Saturday. Trains Tuesday evening and today brought in another 100 sacks of parcel post and 10 pouches of first class mail. All this additional matter will be delivered by Thursday noon. The rush has now been on for some 10 days, the increase being noted in both outgoing and incoming mail. For the past five days the 10 regular carriers have had five assistants in the city delivery service and in the office the six regular clerks have had the help of two substitute clerks for the past week. Both rural carriers, George Arnold of Route 1 and William Cummings of Route 2, have had helpers for the past 10 days. These routes also felt the great rush over their territory which covers the outskirts of the city and the town of Windham and reaches into the towns of Mansfield, Columbia, Lebanon and Coventry. Postmaster Smith today commended the efficiency of Miss Mary Barber and her assistants at the Main street sub-station where a tremendous volume of business was handled.

The Willimantic Silk, Inc., and Kobe Silk company plants remembered their combined forces of 331 employes on the eve of the holiday with gifts of a silk scarf and a box of chocolates to each employe. The scarfs were the production of the Willimantic Silk, Inc., which employes 266 of the total of 331 hands. The presentations were made by President Max Stein, Vice-President Nathan Stein, Manager Abe Corn and Superintendent Joseph Corn. The gifts of the Kobe company were likewise made directly by the officials of that concern.

At four o'clock Tuesday afternoon the women of the winding, warping and quilling departments of the plants held a Christmas party around a tree that had been set up in the warping department. Plant officials and a few other guests attended, short addresses being made. Gifts were exchanged and refreshments served. Payroll checks, although not due until Thursday were also distributed before the holiday, the efforts of the company officials to brighten th elives of their employes proving a commendable work of far-reaching results.

SUFFERS BROKEN LEG IN AUTO ACCIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 25—A party of South Windsor people narrowly escaped being plunged down a 30-foot ravine about 9:30 o'clock this morning near the George Guay home in Chaplin on the Willimantic-Putnam highway, when a heavy sedan driven by John Lathrop, 69 of South Windsor skidded off the road in turning out for a New England Transportation company coach. With the driver were his wife, his sister and two children. The party were on their way to Fall River, Mass., to spend Christmas. On the curve near the Guay home Lathrop met the bus and in turning ou this car got onto the snow-covered shoulder and began to skid. The machine went almost head-on into a large tree and then swerved about so that it balanced on the edge of the ravine that borders the highway at this point. The precarious position of the machine was such that the occupants did not dare move until a group of men guests at the Guay home had tied the car to a tree to prevent the impending plunge. Lathrop sustained a fracture of the left leg, just below the knee and lacerations on the face. He was taken to St. Joseph's hospital and given treatment there by Dr. Frederick E. Wilcox. Mrs. Lathrop sustained facial lacerations but the other occupants escaped with a shaking up. The bus did not figure in the accident and it is understood that the driver continued on his way without knowledge of the accident.

A notable decrease in the evil effects of bootleg liquor at Christmas time has been experienced here over the week end preceding the holiday and on the eve. Although it is generally conceded that the police exercise somewhat of the Yuletide spirit by giving intoxicated an opportunity to avoid arrest, Chief of Police Thomas F. Grady said today that the general behavior of the drinking element was remarkably good. A careful watch of the bootleg business by the police kept the liquor dealings entirely "under-cover." This is believed to have contributed to an almost clean slate of arrests at police headquarters, none being recorded Christmas eve or morning.

Cases assigned for the short calendar session of the Windham county superior court to be held here Friday, beginning at 10 a. m., are: Feodosia Macko, appeal from highway commissioner, motion for appointment of a state referee to make a reassessment of damages; Everett E. Beckwith vs. Joseph P. Collins, default for failure to answer; Edwin Sugalski vs. George Gendron, motion to set aside verdict; George M. Coffin, receiver of The First National Bank of Putnam vs. A. Vito Construction Corp., judgment by default. There is but one uncontested divorce case listed, that of Lillian Martin vs. William Martin. The motion to set aside verdict in the case of Edwin Sugalski vs. George Gendron followed a jury verdict returned in this case last week awarding damages of $2,500 to the plaintiff.

Chief of Police Thomas F. Grady has received a letter from Charles A. Wheeler, superintendent of police at Bridgeport and president of the New England Association of Chiefs of Police, as one of a delegation to attend the funeral services of the late Chief of Police William J. Jarvis of Putnam, to be held Thursday morning. Other members of the delegation named are: Chief Linton of Norwich; Chief Foley of Worcester; Chief Hetherman of Webster, and Chief Brault of Southbridge. The untimely death of Captain Jarvis has spread much sorrow here. Captain Jarvis had many friends here within and without the police department. At the Christmas service in the Congregational church Sunday morning, Rev. E. L. The soloist for the Christmas anthem was Mrs. Homer Wood and the offertory solo was by Mrs. L. P. Oeling. A pleasant service was held in the evening at which a number were present from the South Windham church. The exercises opened with "It Came from the Midnight Clear" by the junior choir. The church was decorated with hemlock boughs, also a large basket of chrysanthemums given in memory of Mrs. Henry Gager by her children.

DANIELSON

LOCAL GIRL MARRIED IN BOSTON CHRISTMAS EVE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 25.—A Christmas eve wedding at the Algonquin club Boston, was that of Miss Charlotte Frances Bullard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Irving Bullard, of the Hotel Somerset, and of Danielson, and George Donald Wood, of Moline, Ill. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Roy Chamberlin of Hanover, N. H., a relative of the bride by marriage. A reception followed the wedding service.

The bride had Miss Dorothy Wood of Moline, Ill., as maid of honor and the Misses Vernon Ladd of Boston and Sarah Glover of Charlotte, N. C., as bridesmaids.

Her bridal gown was of white crepe de chine and her veil of venetian lace. Her bouquet was of calla lilies. Miss Wood wore a green lace-trimmed gown with which she carried poinsettias, and the two bridesmaids were attired in ecr-shell moire, made in princess style. Their bouquets were of yellow roses. Christmas greens and poinsettias constituted the decorations of the club.

Mr. Wood, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Wood, of Moline, Ill., had as his best man Morell Marean, and the ushers were Edward J. Bullard, brother of the bride, and J. H. Chadbourne of Danielson, the bride's brother-in-law. Following the reception Mr. and Mrs. Wood left for their wedding journey. They will make their new home on Beacon Hill, in Boston.

The bride is a member of the graduating class of Miss Wheelock's school. Mr. Wood is a graduate of the U. S. Naval academy, class of 1928, and a member of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity. His engagement to Miss Bullard, who lived in Danielson for a number of years as a child and as a young woman, was announced in September, 1928.

MRS. WILLARD HOPKINS TAKES OWN LIFE AT FOSTER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 25.—Mrs. Florence Evelyn Hopkins, 41, wife of Willard Hopkins, was a suicide early this afternoon at her home in the town of Foster, a few miles east of here. Mrs. Hopkins had been in poor health for several months and, after the dinner hour today went down into the cellar and hanged herself.

She was a daughter of Albert and Florence Burgess. She leaves her husband, one daughter, Mary, and there are other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Witter were dinner guests today of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. T. Tusych, at Putnam.

This Christmas day at the county jail in Brooklyn the 70 persons spending the day there as prisoners were given a holiday dinner. Roast veal and a variety of vegetables were served them in generous quantities, and the men were remembered also with packages of tobacco. The county is considerate of its charges at Brooklyn, they are under good care, and all of this is in keeping with the desire of the people of the county. The prisoners seemed appreciative today, many of them not unmindful that they are without homes and would have no particular place to go if the terms for which they are sentenced expired and allowed them to be at liberty again. Without any desire to extend invitations for terms at the institution or to advertise the humane policies in force there, it may be said that there are places where one might have been today and be much worse off.

At the Killingly town farm the 19 inmates were served a chicken and vegetable dinner today by Mr. and Mrs. Olive Bassett, respectively superintendent and matron of the institution. There was a wealth of food, and other circumstances to make the day seem like a real holiday for the elderly people who are living there. At present there are 12 men and 7 women at the farm, situated near Dayville.

Mrs Bassett said this afternoon that the Ladies' Aid society of the Dayville Congregational church had presented dimes enough so that each inmate would have five new and shining ones, and that the Catholic Welfare council of Dayville had presented aprons for the women, handkerchiefs for the men and ice cream for all.

The reduced personnel of state officers on duty at the barracks on North Main street here today—some of them being in distant parts of the state for the Christmas season—were so fortunate up to late this afternoon as not to be called out to investigate any serious accident. Over the holiday period practically nothing occurred to demand the attention of the state officers. Outwardly, at least, the public appeared to be interested in giving the officers a real holiday, unburdened by the necessity of ordering anyone into court.

Dozens of the employes of Powdrell and Alexander sang the praises of the concern today in harking back to the Christmas parties arranged for them on the eve of Christmas. The whole-hearted and bountiful manner in which the company entertained the workers employed in its Danielson mills and the relatives of the workers who were invited was not without its effect.

In a number of homes in Danielson today there was joy because those who have liked to include in their observance of Christmas the practice of being generous with those who are more or less unfortunate. This means in particular that holiday fare was the rule today in some homes where there would have been no feast except for the giving of the good people who never forget others at the holiday season. For years Danielson has had an organization that works at Christmas time to provide Yuletide comfort for worthy families. The money is obtained by offering the public an opportunity to give. Whence the money comes and how it is used, although very judiciously, is not a matter for publication. It may suffice to write into the record that every penny of it is employed to bring comfort and joy into homes where those elements are most needed.

Friday evening of this week the Brooklyn Young Farmers' club are to hold another meeting in Brooklyn. While the attendance has not been what it should have been in the past few months, the club, having the approval of the Windham County Farmers' association, hopes for better things. The members of the club are inviting their friends to attend.

Cashier Francis E. Storer of the Windham County National bank will end his duties here with the coming of the new year and take up the responsibilities of his new position as president of the Thames Bank and Trust company at Norwich. It is expected that Mr. Storer's family will remain here during the winter season.

Considered from a general standpoint, this was a quiet holiday in Danielson. It was observed without frivolity, but, nevertheless, in keeping with the traditional spirit of the day. It was a day for home gatherings, and there were many such here and hereabouts. The business section, so busy the past month, was practically deserted. Only such stores as regularly cater to the necessary wants of the public on Sundays and holidays throughout the year were open.

There were many at the midnight service conducted last night at St. Alban's church by the rector, Rev. J. Rees Jones.

Rev Antheleme Mollard, M. S., pastor of St. James' parish, after an absence of several months abroad, addressed the congregations at St. James' church Christmas morning.

Leslie Murray of Boston was at his home here for the holiday season.

A considerable number of the great many people who knew him and admired him will be in Putnam Thursday morning to attend the funeral services for Captain William Jarvis of the Putnam police department at St. Mary's Church.

A lone drunk, found wedged in between a partition and a radiator in the comfort station, was made happy by Judge W. Fenner Woodward presiding in the town court Tuesday afternoon when a sentence of 30 days in jail was imposed.

Today Mr and Mrs. L. E. Kennedy had as their guests Miss Nellie Sullivan, Mrs. Kennedy's sister, of Hartford.

William Scoville of Hartford was a visitor yesterday with Judge and Mrs. William Fenner Woodward.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Young and daughter, Ruth, were holiday guests of Town Clerk and Mrs. Frank T. Preston of Broad street.

JEWETT CITY

ELKS' PRACTICAL CHARITY CARING FOR LESS FORTUNATE

One of the beautiful charitable features of the holiday season was the distribution of Christmas baskets by B. P. O. E., No. 430, of Norwich. With a resident membership of 50 Elks in the borough, their benevolent activities locally are something worth while. This year, 17 families in this vicinity received their appreciated gifts.

Dr. Good, graduate optometrist, Finn Blk.; Fri., 3 to 5:30, 6 to 9. Don't delay. —adv.

Mr. and Mrs. Tyler O. Gilbert and daughter, Barbara Mae, of Norwich, are staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Gilbert for a time, as a case of scarlet fever has developed in the house where they live in Greeneville.

Turkey Cheaper than Chicken

Not many recall, if indeed such was ever the case before, in the local markets Tuesday prime turkeys were marked at a lower figure than native chicken.

Christmas in the borough was a day of quiet the family celebrations were many where home-comings and local visiting were the order. There was little travel on the streets and state road traffic was down to 20 or 30 cars an hour.

Officer and Mrs. Henry Vegiard had as Christmas guests Mr. and Mrs. John Oaks and two children and Miss Rosanna Goblet.

Radio fans all about the borough, Wednesday, were reporting to each other about the splendid programs received from England, Holland and Germany. There being low static and no local interference, the foreign broadcasts were received all through this section on 300 radio sets, clearly, and without interruption. Many were remarking this evening on the excellence of the British programs at 2:30.

Patrons of the bus service, Tuesday evening, as the coaches passed the hospitable home of the Palmers at Round Hill, admired the beautiful holiday decorations. In addition to the attractively illuminated windows, an electrically lighted pine tree in the grounds added its effect.

Local friends sent Christmas greeting cards to the Ross family at 2303 Fifth avenue, San Diego, Cal., where they are registered at the Kirkland, probably until the first of March.

Jewett City people, reading in The Bulletin Tuesday about the retirement of George A. Stanton, tea merchant of Norwich, recalled how, close to 50 years ago, Mr. Stanton's tea cart made weekly trips to Jewett City. One local man remembers the caller's way of inquiring, as his mother went to the door, if there was any tea wanted that day. The John C. Perkins big cart was also to be seen here from Norwich each week. When that great wagon arrived and was driven through the streets with its spanking span, and the suave Tom Holmes or Samuel K. Lovett or Henry Lee on the high seat, it was a sight to see, 40 years ago. An incident when Mr. Lovett drove the team and lived here, where Miss Ruby Thornton lives, is well remembered by some of the boys then. As Mr. Lovett was carrying an arm full of boxes of candy into the late A. F. Brown's, the top box fell off the pile and its contents, old-fashioned chocolates, rolled all about the sidewalk. The boys, who always haunted the candy wagon, were given the word to scramble. One man said Wednesday that hardly a chocolate since has compared in taste with those luscious home-made candies, well sprinkled with gravel.

Mr. Watson, whose hunting camp is away down in the Mt. Misery woods, six miles from nowhere, according to his own description of the locality, has a radio set that he made himself at the cost of a few dollars. Wednesday afternoon, he picked up the English broadcast, and heard the whispered conversation in one of the vaudeville programs from London. The question he asked over the telephone Wednesday evening seemed fitting to the case, "Can you beat it?"

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Burleson have had as guests their son, Charles, of Erie, Pa., Mr. and Mrs. Richard Meyer, of New Britain, and Miss Hallie Burleson, of East Orange, N. J.

Pachaug Community club is to meet this (Thursday) evening.

Miss Sybil Tracy, New York, spent Christmas at J. H. Tracy's.

Mrs. C. E. Spicer is ill with grip.

PUTNAM

CHRISTMAS JOYS BROUGHT TO NEEDY IN PUTNAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 25.—Though the morning was cold and traveling uncomfortable, the Christmas spirit, that elusive something which transforms grouchy men into happy human beings and brings angelic smiles to the faces of little children, blossomed forth in magnetic splendor this morning in this quaint New England town. Many hours before the light of day drove off the shadows of darkness, early morning church goers filled with true Christmas spirit were greeting friends and almost forgotten acquaintances on their way to early masses which were celebrated at St. Mary's church. Christmas eve was a happy one in many homes in the city, but in others misfortune had thrown a pall that was too overwhelming to be lifted even by the glad tidings of the season. Last evening manifestations of joy and happiness were displayed from the residences in the form of electrically illuminated Christmas trees, and in windows everywhere, the glowing incandescent candles reflected peace and affection within. The radio, too, brought joy to the numerous homes where receiving sets intercepted the age-old Christmas carols and inspiring hymns that were featured in all of the programmes of the air throughout the evening and during Christmas day.

At 6 o'clock this morning St. Mary's church was filled to its capacity for the first mass, the most beautiful of the three Roman Catholic services in honor of the greatest feast of the year. The music, which accompanied the Mass of St. Cecelia, was by a 12-piece orchestra and a choir of mixed voices and was most impressive. Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of St. Mary's, was celebrant and was assisted by Rev. Joseph D. Casey, deacon, and Rev. Ernest J. Bolleau, sub-deacon.

On the extreme right of the church, the altar in honor of St. Anne was removed and in its place was an art setting depicting a manger scene of the first Holy Night at Bethlehem. All characters of the Nativity were represented. This afternoon, special services were held at the church at which the children of the parish visited the crib.

Aside from the Christmas morning services, hundreds of homes were clothed in happiness early today when children arose to find that Santa Claus had advanced from the realm of fiction into pleasant fact, to bring gladness to those who only a few days ago were without hope. Charitable organizations impersonated the great Kris Kringle, going forth last evening with baskets of cheer, toys and games, books and candy and, most important, were the gifts of shoes and clothes for neglected children. The welfare workers this afternoon, with their annual task completed, rested confident that no one had been overlooked.

Mayor Charles A. Richard this morning expressed the gratitude of the municipality to all those who aided in brightening and gladdening the hearts of the needy in the city.

While Christmas, 1929, observed throughout the world today was a day of universal happiness in this city, a cloak of sorrow hovered over a little home on School street where the body of Captain of Police William J. Jarvis, who died a victim of pneumonia Monday, reposed. Not only is the loss of the popular police official felt by the members of his family, but his death is being mourned by the city at large and by a large circle of friends in Massachusetts and Rhode Island. As the sad news of Captain Jarvis' death spread through the countryside Tuesday, expressions of deep sympathy in the forms of floral remembrances, telegrams and mourning cards, came to the Jarvis home. Hundreds of friends and acquaintances visited the home yesterday and today to pay respects to the memory of the late police executive.

Officials of the Day Kimball hospital said this morning, following an examination of Francis Sheffler, 3-year-old boy injured Sunday afternoon in an auto crash in Thompson, that it is believed that the sight of the boy's left eye will be preserved. Francis, who has been unconscious since the accident took place, was slowly collecting his senses at a late hour tonight as hopes for his recovery steadily mounted. Besides suffering from a severe laceration about the eye, he has sustained a compound fracture fo the skull. Bernard, 7, brother of Francis, a patient at the hospital with both legs badly fractured, is reported tonight as considerably improved.

Christmas was a merry one for the 18 inmates of the community almshouse, on the River road, in a remote section of the city. Superintendent Harry Hill of the farm and Mrs. Hill served a turkey dinner to every one of the inmates, 12 of whom are men and five women. This morning, a member of the welfare committee of the Putnam lodge of Elks visited the institution and presented every member with a useful gift. The presentation was made in behalf of the Elks lodge, which donated the funds to gladden the hearts of the elderly inmates. Early in the Christmas season the Elks committee afforded those living at the town farm an opportunity of preparing a Christmas list of gifts they desired and an effort was made to fulfil their wants. The farm was decorated with holly and the seasonal colors adorned the walls. A Christmas tree social in the afternoon added in instilling the holiday spirit among all present. A varied assortment of gifts from the First Baptist and the Methodist Episcopal churches was received at the farm this morning. Superintendent Hill stated this afternoon that the entire "family" at the farm deeply appreciated the remembrances made them.

Attorney Irving H. Miron, counsel for Henry Deteau of School street, is authority for the statement that an insurance settlement has been made in death of Mrs. Doris Deteau of School street, who died at the Day Kimball hospital on the morning of Oct. 8 from injuries received in an automobile accident the previous evening. Attorney Miron said that an insurance firm for James B. Tatem Taxi Co., insured, had made the settlement to Henry Deteau, husband of the accident victim and administrator of her estate. When asked to comment, Attorney Miron declined, saying that the amount of the settlement concerned only the parties involved. Mrs. Deteau was struck at 6 o'clock on the evening of Oct. 7 by a Tatem cab operated by Rudolph Muire of Wilkinson street. After holding an inquest into the death of Mrs. Deteau, Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson returned a bill purporting to show that no incriminating circumstances existed on Muire's part that would warrant his being held on a charge of manslaughter and, consequently, the driver was exonerated. Mrs. Deteau's death resulted in a damage suit that was instituted by her husband, but with the insurance company's offer of a satisfactory settlement, procedure was dropped.

Wire Chief W. T. Jones of the local telephone exchange reported this afternoon that damage to the company's lines was created Monday evening while a severe sleet and ice storm was in progress. After a check-up of all communication lines there were discoveries of crippled cables at any point in the circuit, Mr. Jones said.

Miss Grace R. Murphy of Northampton, Mass., is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. John H. Bulger, of Farrows street.

Miss Anna Bibeault of Middletown was a Christmas visitor at the home of her father, John Bibeault, of Bridge street.

The condition of Mrs. Myra Brown of Florence street, a patient at the Day Kimball hospital, was reported as critical today. Mrs. Brown, who is 86 years old, sustained a fracture of the hip when she fell at her home last week.

Mrs. Thomas Light of Ring street was discharged from St. Vincent's hospital in Worcester, Mass., yesterday, and returned to her home in this city, Tuesday evening.

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 25—Mark Frissell, 77, a life-long resident of Quinebaug, Conn., took his life today by shooting. The motive for his act is given as ill health. Frissell had been brooding over his physical condition for several weeks and in a fit of despondency this afternoon went to the rear of a barn and fired a charge of buckshot into his heart. He died immediately. Frissell had been a recluse and had lived alone for several years. He is survived by two brothers, Frank and Frederick, and one sister, Mrs. James Robinson, all of Quinebaug. Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson viewed the body and gave permission for its removal to local undertaking parlors.

The Putnam passenger described the incident as being horrible, saying that every passenger was filled with terror as the coach bumped over the ties and turned on its side. Several were injured. Mr. Aylward said, but none seriously. As far as could be learned tonight, Mr. Aylward was the only Putnam passenger aboard the express.

A midnight candle service was held at St. Philip's Episcopal church Tuesday and was attended by a large number of parishioners. CHAMPION WILLIS STICKS 475-LB. PIG BY JAP. METHOD

Champion Pig Killer Walter Willis with his long green raincoat and hip boots on, carrying a bag of knives to kill a monster pig that weighs 475 pounds, for Patsy MacMullien, says since the blue laws of Sunday have been blotted out on the law books in Connecticut since the time you could not buy a stick of candy, I can kill a pig with the hot water all ready to give the monster his last shave for Christmas. A crowd of 173 was in the yard to see the knife wonder do his stuff like a golf player getting the 19th hole on the green. It was around 10:30 when Willis entered the 10x12 pen. The monster pig was sleeping in the mud but did not know that his time had come and the bugle would blow Taps. Champion Willis knows how to talk to a pig in a way that would make tears roll down their backs. It was taught to him by a Japanese pig killer with black whiskers, about the age of 88. Champion Willis met him when he went around the world four years ago in a small town in Japan.

That pig was wise—knew with a crowd around that he was to enter the death chamber never to return. Calling the monster of the pig family a few names, the race was on. The pig did not want to die but Willis wanted to get the operation over for the crowd was shaking with the cold, so getting a hold on the biggest pig ever seen on the shores of the fishing village, down went both. But the pig killer was up before the count of two by the owner, MacMullen. Then Willis got his trick; it was a hold that the crowd never saw before—like Billie Grant got on Phil Lauder in their hey-days. The pig could not move an eye-lid, still as a fox caught in a trap. Getting out the long knife with a sharp edge, ready for action, the champion was busy and the sweat was rolling off his face. The knife went out of sight into the windpipe of the pig and the job was done, with the pig's legs stuck up in the air without a move. The champion pig killer of Sherman avenue came out of the pen all weak, after one hour and 17 minutes of hard work. The crowd cheered him for ten minutes, more than a football player catching a forward pass and racing 100 yards to a touchdown. The crowd went wild as the champion had to rest. It was the first time in the history of any animal killing to do it all alone—which is a trick never will be let out by this pig wonder. The owner, MacMullien, and his helpers had a tackle and lifted the monster pig and into the barrel of hot water he went and was given a scraping like a battleship in dry-dock. Then it was left to dry off and sure was a dandy. MacMullen gave the champion pig killer an extra $5 bill for his expert work. So the monster pig will never be seen or heard of any more, except on the table of Mrs. MacMullien where 12 chairs will be placed around and where the pork will be served. A picture of the big pig could not be taken on account of the weather. Guesser C. Ashcraft's rain and snow storm and no sun smiling at the world, so it could be put in The Bulletin.

OCCASIONAL ENFORCEMENT

What results from the hit or miss method of enforcement, the practice of enforcing regulations for two or three weeks and then forgetting them for six months, is being illustrated in Providence at the present time.

In that city and state there are definite requirements concerning the headlights of automobiles. Vehicles must be lighted when parked as well as when in operation. Up to recently this has been observed more in the breach than in compliance with the law, the upshot being complaints and increased activity by the police. The court has been doing a rushing business as the result, a hundred or more cases not being unusual, showing that it is taking some time to get the motorists out of a well-developed habit.

Cars which are in motion should certainly be properly lighted. Cars which are parked on dark streets or away from electric lights should be lighted but Providence requires the lights regardless of the location of electric street lights. But in connection with the violations, Providence is finding that nearly two-thirds of the offenders are non-residents, indicating that either regulations in cities outside of Rhode Island are decidedly different or else there has been a laxity regarding obedience to the requirement in other parts of the state quite as much as in Providence.

It is easy to say under such circumstances that the violators are inviting their punishment, and it may all be true in most instances, but it is impossible to overlook the great degree of encouragement in the past by those very same authorities who are now insisting on adherence to the very letter of the law.

It is impossible to overlook the importance of uniformity in connection with such regulations and there is even more to be said about the upholding of regulations at all times instead of winking at them for the greater part of the year and then making it uncomfortable for those who get caught in the trap at one or two enforcement periods. If motorists get the idea that regulations do not amount to anything they are encouraged in that belief to a very large extent by lax enforcement.

A POOR EXCUSE

Proponents and opponents of prohibition use every conceivable method to carry out their purpose, and there are times when it seems as if they did not care what the effect might be so long as they accomplished what they sought.

When the St. Lawrence waterway development plan will be put through no one knows. There are those who are eager for its authorization while there are those who hope it will never be started. Recently such opponents introduced a resolution before the National Rivers and Harbors congress condemning the expenditure of government funds for the development of waterways outside the United States.

The idea of this is to make it impossible for the United States to spend money on this waterway development because part of the outlay would be for work that would have to be done in Canadian territory.

It is quite evident that if and when that waterway development is undertaken there must be adherence to any plan that is adopted by the two countries whether the work is to be done in Canadian or United States territory. The aim is to provide a benefit for both countries. It is pointed out by the Detroit News that this country spent the sum of $13,000,000 for the building of the Livingstone channel, nearly all of which lies within Canada, without the outlay being questioned, while the Amherstburg channel, also in Canadian waters, was built by Canada. Both of these improvements are used by vessels of the respective countries without regard to the country that furnished the funds.

That is the intention in connection with any St. Lawrence development and it is to be expected that if it is ever authorized there will be a pooling of funds regardless of where the work is to be done.

WHERE WERE THE PARENTS?

A few days ago two boys in the national capital were struggling for the possession of a rifle. It was loaded and in the tussle it was discharged with the result that the bullet struck and killed a younger lad.

There are regulations in Washington which provide that "no person under the age of 16 years shall carry, or have in his or her possession upon any street, avenue, road, alley or other public place in the District of Columbia, any pistol, gun, rifle, air gun, bean shooter, sling or other dangerous weapon of any character" and the question was probably asked: "Why weren't the police doing their duty and enforcing the regulations?"

Rather does it seem more pertinent to ask the question, "Where were the parents of those lads with the gun that they didn't require them to respect the law?"

It is all very easy to put the blame for such lapses upon the police force and to expect that they can be in all places at all times, see around corners and know by a feeling in their bones that someone miles away is violating a law. They are, of course, expected to be mind readers and to accomplish the impossible.

It may also be said that parents do not know all that their children are doing and that much of the time they do not know where they are. They are permitted to shift for themselves and it is perhaps to the credit of some children that they do not get into more trouble than they do from the manner in which they are thrown upon their own resources.

It is that apparent disregard for parental responsibility which develops such cases as that at Washington. Not because there is a general desire for firearms and an eagerness to shoot, boys are not satisfied until they get a gun or a weapon of some kind. Too often it is with the knowledge and assistance of the parents. In view of the Washington law the parents should have seen that those boys were not in possession of a death-dealing weapon. They were in a better position than the police to know of its existence and use and if they had stepped in and taken command the life of an innocent ten-year-old would not have been snuffed out.

Of course the police have broad shoulders and have to stand much blame but in this instance a prior and greater responsibility was not assumed.

THE HUNTING DANGER

When hunters shoulder their guns and go into the fields and woods, it is not expected that they will make targets of human beings. And yet that is what happens in too many instances.

There were the days when most of the deer hunting was done in Maine. It has been gradually extended until it includes many other states, although during a limited season. But, as was the case in Maine, the hunting has resulted not only in the killing of deer but in taking the lives of many hunters. Furthermore, it has meant the killing of numerous head of cattle, and householders have been rudely informed by bullets crashing into homes that those carrying firearms were abroad in the land.

On the recent opening of the deer hunting season in New Jersey, reports showed that one man had been killed and several wounded by hunters. It isn't to be supposed that these casualties were intentionally caused but it is evident that they were incidental to the discharge of firearms in an effort to kill deer. This discloses that the danger to humanity is quite a serious matter during the deer hunting season. There exists a menace which ought not to interrupt the freedom of New Jersey residents.

However careful a hunter who is using a rifle may be there is no telling where the bullet may find its resting place. Like the arrow that is shot into the air it falls to earth somewhere. If there is a person in the line of it, a cow or a home, it reaches its goal, taking life, causing injury or doing damage. Even if it causes no serious harm or damage it is by no means a welcome invader.

What comes from hunting, or target shooting, near settled areas, since rifles carry for long distances, was only recently demonstrated in Ledyard where a bullet crashed through a window and lodged in a sideboard, passing the point where the housewife had been busy only a few minutes before.

Hunting near farms or near highways, along which there is no telling when there will be traffic, is too serious a matter in thickly settled states. It repeatedly endangers human life for the sake of indulging someone's eagerness to hunt big game. No doubt states are overrun with deer, due to the encouragement which was given to their propagation through protection, but their control should be effected in such a manner that it doesn't mean the loss of human lives.

SPEEDING THE TARIFF

When congress returns after the recess the senate is committed to the task of getting rid of the tariff. After a long and uninteresting effort, one that has wearied the country, it is beginning to dawn upon the senate obstructionists that they have been a disappointment to their constituents as well as to others. They have made a sorry showing but they show evidence of seeing the light in the agreement that has been reached to devote all attention to tariff schedules until the job is finished. That, in view of the other necessary bills to be acted on, including appropriations, means much but by giving it close and conscientious attention the work of the session will be relieved.

There are plenty of controversial matters in what remains of the tariff bill, although the majority of the major rate schedules have been acted on. The bill that the senate will adopt will differ greatly from the house bill. That means that the conference committee faces an interesting struggle. Whether there will be any more favorable attitude displayed by the senate toward industry in view of the expression of western editors remains to be seen but dependence is placed upon the conference members to see that the debenture clause is removed and that the flexible provision is restored to the tariff. The time has long since passed when the senate should have finished with the tariff bill.

EDITORIAL NOTES

It is quite evident by the day after that there is a Santa Claus.

Christmas comes but once a year, but what a welcome it gets.

The man on the corner asks: Are all the mechanical toys in working order?

Now comes the lesser struggle of exchanging the misfits and the didn't-likes. Do your swapping early.

Everyone couldn't get a prize but many produced attractively decorated and lighted homes for the holidays.

It ought to be easy this morning to get an expression in regard to the looks and quality of Christmas cigars.

ROMANCE VOLUME.

Rose opened her eyes and stared at the gray walls of her room. Those walls were always depressing, but this morning they reminded her that the world was not all it should have been.

She smiled grimly and sat up. Lifting her hands towarld her face she scrutinized her palms. "You'll get on in the world by your courage," was what the fortune teller had told her.

Holding her thumb between the thumb and finger of the other hand, Rose said, aloud, "First, I'm broke."

To the forefinger she said, "Second, I have no job."

To the middle finger she said, "The only thing I can do is to design women's hats."

The ring finger trembled under "The shop where I've worked for six years is bankrupt."

The little finger bowed its head. "Nobody wants a millinery designer anywhere in the whole city."

Her eyes wandered on around the gray room. She appraised her possessions. She frowned at the bookcase in the corner.

The top row—poetry. Who could read poetry in poverty? The second row was lined with romantic novels. What romance was there for a girl who knew no one at all in a great city?

The last row—essays and philosophy. There was a rare edition of Matthew Arnold's essays. She reached toward the book. It was a very early edition that her grandfather had given her. She stared at its soft old binding. She picked out another book and another until there was a stack on the end of her bed. Then she dressed and, loading the books onto her arm, he marched down the street to Ye Olde Booke Shoppe.

The slumped shoulders, the dejected appearance, of the young man who stood staring in at the windows of the old book shop were entirely out of keeping with his well-tailored clothes, his jaunty hat and the sleek little roadster that stood waiting for him at the curb.

The window display in the window of Ye Olde Booke Shoppe centered around a little house with a red roof, green lattices and tall poplars. Books about gardening and decorating subtly suggested that any one might have just such a clean, quiet little haven as this miniature sample. The young man's eyes locked long at the little house. He had just squared his shoulders and regained his "Oh-don't-oe-sentimental" air when he saw Rose with her chin high and her arms loaded with books marching into the store. The young man followed her.

"But we don't buy old books," the man was saying.

"Oh, yes you do; you buy books like these!" she insisted. "These are very rare books." The jaunty young man thought as he watched them, "Gee! I didn't know girls like that lived any more!"

The girl thought as she opened her books for inspection, "Old moss back! I was demented to think I could get even a cup of coffee out of him for even good books."

And the bookseller thought, "Priceless! priceless! But this child will take a dollar for the lot."

In silence of self-preoccupation the young man looked at the books and then at the girl's eager face. "Have you a rare old edition of Matthew Arnold's essays?" the young man calmly asked the bookseller.

"No!" said the man gruffly. He was busy with the acquiring of invaluable firsts for very little money.

"Oh, yes you have," chirped the girl, "I'm just selling you one." The astonished bookseller took the book the girl offered. The young man come around the desk.

"I can see no reason for our having a middleman in this deal. I've hunted for one of these for five years." He took the book covetously and laid a $5 bill in the girl's hands. "And have you," he asked in as near a book collector's voice as he coud imagine, "have you other such treasures?" The girl nodded, still blinking at the bill.

"Shall we go look them over right now?" He led her toward the little roadster at the curb. As he passed the window he smiled at the little house with red roof. Had he considered it only a bit of propaganda several minutes ago? Impossible!

In the window on her side of the door was a display of romance literature. Rose smiled. Had she called fiction visionary only this morning? Incredible!

"It's a nice car," said Rose dreamily as she stepped into the roadster.

"A glorious day! said the young man as he started the motor.

YOUR HEALTH

The Comon Cold.

By Grady F. Mathews, M. D., Claremont, Oklahoma.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute.)

More people probably suffer from common colds than from any other single ailment. Vital statistics give no hint of the prevalence and importance of these minor affections because the mortality is nil and the morbidity reports are very imperfect and difficult to collect. Could the sum total of suffering, inconvenience, complications and the economic loss resulting from common colds be obtained, it would at once promote these infections from the trivial into the rank of serious diseases.

Common colds are perhaps most contagious during the early stages. If persons would isolate themselves by remaining in bed during the first three days of a cold, they would not only greatly benefit themselves, but would largely prevent the spread of the infection.

The prevention of colds consists, first, in avoiding the infection, and secondly, in guarding against the predisposing causes. Contract should be avoided with persons who have colds, especially in street cars, offices, and poorly ventilated places where the risk of persons coughing or sneezing directly in one's face is imminent. Contact with the infection may further be guarded against by a careful self-education in sanitary habits and cleanliness. Colds, like other diseases conveyed in the secretions of the nose and mouth, are often transferred by direct or indirect contact through lack of hygienic cleanliness and a disregard of sanitary habits. Kissing, the common drinking cup, the roller towel, pipes, toys, pencils, dirty fingers, food and other objects contaminated with the fresh secretions will transmit the disease.

Take special pains to keep up the general vitality of the body. If you are in good physical condition you will not take cold nearly as readily. If you have an annual health audit your general condition will help safeguard you.

The old adage of "starve a fever and stuff a cold" is an exploded idea. Next time you take cold, lie in bed for three days, eat nothing but grapefruit, oranges or other fruit, drink lots of good fresh water, and three or four times a day take a teaspoonful of common baking soda in a glass of water. You will be greatly surprised at the result.

IN DAY'S NEWS

Wiesbaden: Ancient but Modern.

The roar of motor busses has displaced the rumble of street cars over 39 miles of the streets of Wiesbaden, Germany. Wiesbaden is one of the first German cities to make such a marked change in transportation.

"The busses are only one of the modern features of the famous German Spa that hide the city's real age," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"No matter from what direction you approach Wiesbaden, you pass through modern, wide, clean streets, lined with modern buildings, or spacious parks, traversed by tree-arched promenades. It is not until you reach the center of the city that you find yourself in crooked, canyonlike byways of Wiesbaden's younger days. Even they are fringed with shops displaying merchandise of recent manufacture.

"There was a settlement on Wiesbaden's site before the Christian era. During the early centuries A. D. a Roman fortress was built there to stem the advance of German hordes southward. But there are only slight reminders of a long history in the city today.

"Normally Wiesbaden has slightly more than 100,000 inhabitants but when the season (April to October) opens, railroad trains and autos, victorias and airplanes deposit thousands of visitors until, when the influx of newcomers is computed at the end of the season, they number more than twice the normal population.

"There are fifty or more springs at Wiesbaden where sufferers from gout, rheumatism and neuralgia seek relief. And the overplump, in search of reduced waistlines, join the parade. Inside the palatial bath houses, the baths range from the common tub variety to those wherein sand, mud, hot air, electricity and steam are ingredients. You can comfortably lounge in rooms and even 'bake' your lungs with mists of mineral water.

"All Wiesbaden visitors are not there for the 'cure.' True, gouty feet, rheumatic body members, and neuralgic heads impel many visitors, but Wiesbaden, nestling among the forests and vineyards of the Rhine valley, about three miles from the Rhine river is also popular among healthy vacationists.

"Golf balls whiz over the numerous courses, tennis balls curve over numerous nets, automobiles tour the surrounding roads which penetrate picturesque villages near-by, and forest trails ring with the laughter of happy-go-lucky hikers.

"The Wiesbaden boulevards and streets, some tree-lined, are flanked with mansions that would enhance the beauty of any city. Many of those mansions, set amid spacious, tree-studded lawns and terraces, the guides will tell you, were occupied by wealthy Russians during the days of the Tsars, but the new era in Russia forced the sale of some of these show spots.

"The Kurhaus, on the edge of one of Wiesbaden's spacious parks, is a feature of the city's life. Beyond its pillared doorway are magnificent ballrooms, a 15,000-person capacity theater, and reading rooms; all richly decorated. There one may hear opera equal to that of Berlin, and excellent orchestras play at all hours of the day and evening."

"See if you can find the 'canary' in my motor," were instructions given by a tourist to Joseph Marshall, gasoline station attendant at Ashland, Wis. Marshall lifted the hood of the car and heard chirps and twitters. Seated on the carburetor was a live canary covered with oil and dirt. How the bird got there is a mystery.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Happy Jack Has a Shock

In most disputes that may arise
Advantage in possession lies.
—Old Mother Nature.

It was the day after Christmas. Happy Jack Squirrel awoke very early, as was his habit. Just as soon as it was light enough for him to see to run about, Happy Jack popped out of his home and started for Farmer Brown's yard as fast as his legs could take him. He wanted another look at that splendid new house he had found late the afternoon before, quite high up in a big maple tree in front of Farmer Brown's house. Happy Jack didn't wait to even get his breakfast. There would be time enough to get breakfast after he had once more inspected that house. He whisked up through the Old Orchard, he scurried across the driveway and so came to the big maple tree. Up the maple tree he scampered. He didn't pause a second. That was his house. Farmer Brown's boy had made it for him. He was sure of it. The nuts he had found inside had proved it to him.

Just before he reached the house he chanced to look down. There, scattered on the ground, were nuts. There could be no doubt about it. You can't fool Happy Jack on a nut and there's no use to try. Where had those nuts come from? Had Farmer Brown's Boy scattered some on the ground for him to pick up and store away? That must be it. He would attend to those nuts after he had inspected this new house. Those nuts would make him a good breakfast.

All these thoughts passed through Happy Jack's head as he continued to climb up to his new house. Then he popped inside. Less than half a minute later he popped out again much faster than he had popped in. And he was the angriest Squirrel that ever started his tongue to scolding or jerked a big tail. You see, he had had a shock—a most unpleasant shock. He had found that new home occupied. In fact, he had been told in no uncertain terms to get out and stay out. Now, as he clung to a branch close by that house, a face appeared in the doorway—a face with two glaring yellow eyes and a bill that snapped most unpleasantly. It was Spooky the Screech Owl.

"Thief! Robber!" shrieked Happy Jack. "Come out of my house!"

"Thief! Robber!" shrieked Happy Jack. "Come out of my house!"

"It is not your house; it is my house!" snapped Spooky.

"No such thing!" shrieked Happy Jack. "I found it first! It is mine! It was built for me, Farmer Brown's Boy put it up there for me."

Spooky gared at him and snapped his bill more than ever. "If it was your house, why didn't you keep it?" said he. "I found it empty. Now I've got it and I'm going to keep it. Let's see you get me out of it."

Now, this was more than Happy Jack could do and he knew it. He didn't dare to even put his head inside that house while Spooky was in there. He knew all about that sharp hooked bill of Spooky's. He knew all about those sharp stout claws of Spooky's. And he knew all about Spooky's temper. Were he inside he might be able to keep Spooky out. But with Spooky inside it was a different matter. He was the one who would be kept out and there was no help for it. There was nothing he could do but use his tongue, and this he did use. My, my, my, how that tongue of Happy Jack's did fly! It brought all the little people within hearing to find out what the trouble was.

Terrible Irritation From Rash on Face. Healed by Cuticura.

"I was troubled with blackheads. I squeezed them and a rash broke out on my face. It itched badly at first and naturally I scratched it. My face looked terrible and I was ashamed to go out on the street. The irritation was terrible for six months.

"A friend recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I sent for a free sample. After using it I could see a slight change so purchased more, and after using two cakes of Soap and one and a half boxes of Ointment I was healed." POETRY

Once Upon A Time

Once upon a time rare flowers grew
On every shrub and bush we used to see;
The skies above our heads were always blue,
The woods held secrets deep for you and me;
The hillsides and their caves where tales were told
Of swart-cheeked pirates from a far-off clime,
When cutlasses were fierce and rovers bold—
Don't you remember? —Once upon a time.

Once upon a time from sun to sun
The hours were full of joy—there was no care
And webs of gaudy dreams in air were spun
Of deeds heroic and of fortunes fair;
The jangling schoolhouse bell was all the woe
Our spirits knew, and in its tuneless chime
Was all the sorrow of the long ago—
Don't you remember?—once upon a time.

Once upon a time the witches rode
In sinister and ominous parade
Upon their sticks at night, and queer lights glowed,
With eery noises by the goblins made;
And many things mysterious there were
For boyish cheeks to pale at through the grime
That held them brown; and shadows queer would stir—
Don't you remember?—Once upon a time.

Once upon a time our faith was vast
To compass all the things on sea and land
That boys have trembled o'er for ages past,
Nor ever could explain or understand;
And in that faith found happiness too deep
For all the gifted tongues of prose or rhyme
And joys ineffable we could not keep—
Don't you remember?—Once upon a time.

—J. W. Foley.

Isn't Nature Wonderful?

The blazing sun is sinking in the West.
That's where I've always seen it go to rest.
Its habit is quite formal,
And its daily course is normal,
And I presume that really that is best.

The round full moon is rising in the East,
That's where the full moon always rises or at least
That's what I have observed,
And if the moon had swerved,
Our troubles, maybe, would have been increased.

At night the stars shine out when it is dark,
Each one a brilliant, glittering little spark;
And perhaps a shooting star
Throws its flashing light afar—
Which is fine for bashful lovers in the park!

—Somerville Journal.

"Take them away!" he cried. "Take them away, I tell you! If I refused them a year ago, what's the use of bringing them back now?"

"Well," said the outraged man, "you've had a year's experience since then."—Exchange.

VALUE OF CROPS IN STATE OVER $33,000,000

According to a joint report of the United States and Connecticut departments of agriculture farm crops produced in Connecticut during the 1929 season are valued at $33,218,000. This total is about 12 per cent above the value of last year's crops but practically the same as the five year average values. Decreases this year in the value of the principal fruit and feed crops were more than offset by increases in potatoes and tobacco or the main cash crops. These changes were brought about by changes in production totals as farm prices have held about steady with last year except in the case of fruits, potatoes and tobacco which show substantial increases.

There was a slight reduction in the total crop acreage this year from that of 1928 and the average for the past five years. This reduction is due largely to the abandonment of tobacco acreage, a result of the severe August hail storm. Slight reductions, however, are shown in the acreage of potatoes and oats. Yields per acre were generally below in the case of potatoes and above average for most feed crops but tobacco.

The 1929 growing season was first too wet and then too dry for maximum crop growth. April and May were very wet with temperatures averaging slightly above normal, then followed June, July, August and September with very little precipitation and temperatures averaging alternately above and below normal. August was quite cool while September was warm. The deficiency in rainfall lowered potato and hay yields considerably but helped tobacco somewhat.

A decreased acreage of potatoes was harvested this year as compared with 1928. Production at 2,030,000 bushels is somewhat smaller than the 2,210,000 bushels harvested last year and 2,260,000 bushels the five-year average.

Due to the small United States crop this year the December 1 farm price for Connecticut potatoes is double that of last year and somewhat above the average. Total value is placed at $2,744,000 compared with $1,989,000 for last year's crop.

Total apple production this year at 990,000 bushels is considerably below the 1,500,000 bushels harvested last year. Commercial production is also down, being estimated at 163,000 barrels compared with 251,000 barrels last year and 263,000 barrels the 1923-1927 average. The McIntosh crop is about as large as in 1928 but Baldwins are considerably lighter. Farm prices average $4.80 a barrel this year compared with $3.75 a barrel last year and $3.93, the five-year average price.

Tobacco, the money crop in Connecticut, had a harvested acreage of only 21,000 acres this year compared with 26,000 acres last year and 26,600 acres the average. Some 26,000 acres were planted this year, but about 5,000 acres were completely destroyed by hail. Production totals 27,686,000 pounds and is somewhat less than last year and considerably below average. Both the decrease in acreage and production was due to the damage sustained from the August hail storm. The total value of this year's crop, however, is $13,900,000, or about three million dollars greater than that of the 1928 crop, and two million dollars greater than the average value. The December 1 farm price advanced from 37.2 cents a pound in 1928 to 50.3 cents in 1929.

Not much change is indicated in the harvested acreage of hay and feed crops. The yield of corn was slightly heavier than a year ago while for hay and oats was slightly lower. The production of hay is estimated at 527,000 tons; corn for silage 345,000 tons; and corn for grain 990,000 bushels.

BOY SCOUTS START FOR HARTFORD WINTER CAMP

Several local Norwich Boy Scouts will spend a week at the Hartford council winter camp. The total enrollment at the camp will be about 20 scouts. Huge blanket rolls, skis and skates are most noticeable among the articles of equipment. Scout Walter Crandall left for Hartford Wednesday night with Arthur Adams, director of the camp, while Scouts Nicholas Tarrant, Edward Brodeur and Edward Lichenstein will leave this (Thursday) morning at an early hour with Scout Executive John L. Sullman.

The winter campers expect to have some wonderful adventures. The local office plans to make an exhibit of all handicraft made by the campers, together with a story in photos of the activities from the hour they leave Norwich until they return. The menu has not been published but it is understood that four chickens have been ordered for Sunday so it is hoped the campers will fare well.

A letter will be written each day by one of the scouts to the paper, describing some of the interesting activities scouts can find to do in a winter camp. The campers will return Jan. 1, in the evening. On the return trip they will stop off at the state capitol for a short visit.

LARGE CONGREGATIONS THRONGED NORWICH CHURCHES CHRISTMAS DAY

In unison with the other three hundred millions of Roman Catholics throughout the world, at the end of the Papal Jubilee year and of a local year of prosperity and fervor, the members of St. Patrick's parish in great numbers attended the four masses of Christmas morning, in adoration of the new-born King, the Babe of Bethlehem. The high mass at 5:30 was sung by the rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, the Mass by Marsh being given by choir and chorus, with Christmas carols and Novello's Adeste Fideles. The organist, Henry J. LaFontaine, had his singers well in hand and the music was very pleasing. Monsignor May delivered the brief Christmas sermon.

At 9, the Junior choir of 50 voices sang Missa de Angelis with fine harmony, according to the new Ward method, in which these youthful singers are becoming so proficient. The quartet and chorus gave Grindell's "Christmas" and Pietro Yon's "Jesu, Bambino" was an effective number for solo and chorus. The low mass at 9 was read by Rev. John J. Reilly. The 7:30 mass had been read by Rev. Myles P. Galvin. At all these services there was an enormous number to receive holy communion from two of the priests.

The climax of the day came with the solemn high mass at 10:30, sung by Rev. Father Galvin, with Father Reilly deacon and Monsignor May sub-deacon. Mr. LaFontaine preceded the service with a recital of ancient carols, ending with the hymn, Holy Night. Again the choir sang Marsh's "Mass in Honor of the Sacred Heart," a composition of great beauty. Especially strong was the number, "Qui Tollis," also Sanctus and Agnus Dei, while Van Bree's "Et Incarnatus Est" proved a dramatic and masterly setting of the sacred theme, in which Miss Sadie Driscoll's voice stood out pre-eminent and the choral effects were most pleasing. There followed the repetition of Adeste Fideles, Roderick F. Sullivan carrying the opening melody, enunciated in all its majesty, suggestive of the prestige and antiquity of this grand pronouncement of faith of the ancient Roman church. The chorus was strong and even and the great hymn was given by every individual singer at his or her best. Yon's Jesu, Bambino, afforded Horace F. Corning a fine opportunity, well improved, to bring out the finish and beauty of this notable composition by the organist of the New York cathedral, formerly organist at St. Peter's, Rome. During benediction of the blessed sacrament, given by Father Reilly, the choral rendering of Divine Praises was good and Mr. LaFontaine sang the invocation to St. Joseph with the fine phrasing always expected of him. Mrs. Bernard C. Coyle, Miss Blanche LaPre, Miss Eulalie Allaire and Walter J. LaFontaine were the other soloists who added so much to the effect of the service.

Rev. Father Reilly preached from a text found in the gospel for the third mass on Christmas day, the gospel according to St. John: "He came unto His own and His own received Him not." With characteristic eloquence he impressed the point that the Christ of Bethlehem is the Christ of the Eucharist and that those who had no welcome for the Infant Saviour so long ago differed nothing from the indifferent of today. Bethlehem was neglectful, yet in all its ugliness it is not more repellent than is the heart of man defiled by sin. The modern world hungers, yet there has been One who declared, "I am the Bread of Life," who is still not received because many, even Catholics, while professing to adore Him as a God, yet treat Him as a man. Much was said of the baby virtues of innocence and simplicity, especially as they characterize the Infant Saviour on Christmas day—a time when the shyest, the most friendless, the most timid, even the most sinful, may approach the Divine Babe with confidence and frankness; there is no sham, no deceit at the crib. The preacher's lesson was the welcome and frequency with which all those who truly love the Redeemer will receive Him into their hearts in the Bread of Life.

Members of the Altar society had adorned the sanctuary with palms, flowering poinsettias and ferns, the blossoms on the three marble altars being scarlet and white carnations.

Following the singing of the chorale, Holy God, We Praise Thy Name, Organist LaFontaine sent the congregation out to an inspiring movement from Handel.

The representation of the Crib of Bethlehem seen in this church was arranged by Raymond D. Fields.

MIDNIGHT SERVICE AT ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH

At the midnight celebration of holy communion on Christmas eve at St. Andrew's church, the Rev. E. J. Norris, rector, preached from St. Luke 2.14, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will towards men." The question is asked of each one, What Does Christmas mean to me? I think it means something very wonderful. It surely means God's Eternal Quest. Christmas speaks a message of great joy. The message to Mary while bringing joy untold, brought also the shadow of the cross with it.

Have you seen that famous picture which shows Joseph in a tent watching the Virgin Mary and the Christ child as they played just outside the tent door? The Virgin mother holds out her hands, the infant Christ is running, with both hands extended, into her arms. But the sun at his back throws a shadow between the mother and her boy. This shadow is formed by the body and extended arms of the child and is exactly in the shape of a cross.

The title to the picture is "The Shadow of The Cross." But this shadow has not yet fallen across her path. Mary felt at first only the great joy that expressed itself in a song of praise, justly called The Magnificat. The song that the angels sang to the shepherds was a message of peace and good will to the earth. It was a much needed message. There was no peace on all the broad earth. Men strove and contended for the mastery, and there was no good will between man and man.

Thus it is that Christmas brings to each a different message. It speaks to some of joy. It carries to others peace. To others it suggests selfish enjoyment the receiving of gifts. What message is Christmas bringing to you?

First—a solemn message as to the swiftness of time. Each Christmas is like the passing of a milestone of life. There is much that I personally ought to have done. Is there not much that you ought to have done. The burden of the Christmas message is as to the urgency of haste. "The night cometh when no man can work." We rush past the years as that famous 20th Century train glides past towns and villages to its destination. We are reminded of neglected opportunities and the importance of faithfulness in the future.

Second—Christmas means a message of other new gifts God still wishes to give us. Did God not send us His Son as the saviour of mankind, the great Christmas gift to the world? Yet the Father has more gifts yet for us if we will receive them.

I think he wishes to give us a deeper and more abiding sense of His presence. He wishes to grant us a larger share of His wonderful gift of holiness. He gives us power to overcome sin. The Father has other more precious gifts for us when we are ready to receive them.

Thus Christmas comes with a message of blessings still held in store for us.

Third—Christmas assures us of God's vital interest in man, as witness the gift of Jesus. A nearer and dearer and comforting message is evident by Christmas bringing a comforting message that nothing can rob us of those dear departed ones safe with Him in that home above. Into all hearts, homes, and lives this precious and sacred Christmas message speaks of this strong link between earth and heaven.

Fourth—Christmas brings a message of hope. The Babe in the manger was the fulfilment of a lively hope. Today the fulfilment of a lively hope. Today as in the past history of the race the child in the home is the symbol of a Holy hope. The future is wrapped up in that helpless Babe. Ideals that have become tawdry and stained by careless living take on their early hues. Aspirations that have been muted by disappointment sing again in the heart. Ambitions that were dead live again. Each generation finds its hopes vivid and vibrant in the life of its children. The Infant Jesus expressed in His helplessness the hope of the world, past, present and future. So the message is one of hope for the future.

But the glorious message still rings, "Glory to God in the Highest."

This Christmas message thrills us. The refrain shall be caught up by because it sees hope achieved. victors from every race and nation until again it shall ring throughout the world.

Conclusion—So Christmas means everything to me if Christ is in Christmas. With Christ, Christmas is filled with a new spirit and given a new worth. The Christmas that is a great tide of sympathy flowing into all the recesses of our common life today; the sense that we and the world are one today, and that there is not any hatred or dislike among us that is meant to live, but love and peace and good must come out everywhere. Where do we get this Christmas if not from Jesus?

The way of life has been enriched by the sacred friendship of Him, whose birth we celebrate this Christmas-tide. It is because of His coming that all the roads of travel seem easier now. I remind you that all areas of life have been transfigured with a new meaning, and all life's highways made smooth since Jesus' Holy feet pressed out the rugged paths for you and me. So we thank God for His wonderful and great gift of His Son, May the Christ of Bethlehem, Calvary and the Emmaus Road, be your constant companion, the source of your inspiration, the strength and song of your hope.

LIFE IS LIGHT, SAYS TRINITY CHURCH PASTOR

In Him was life; and the life was the Light of Men, St. John 1—4, was the text on which Rev. J. Eldred Brown, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, based his Christmas morning sermon at the church.

In large part the trials, difficulties and miseries of life are due to darkness or the want of light, said Rev. Mr. Brown. There is first, the darkness of ignorance. Early in life we fall into dangerous, if not ruinous straits or habits simply because we could not foresee the outcome of our actions. And despite all our boasted progress in philosophy and science, a single epidemic like influenza or infantile paralysis finds us comparatively helpless and obliged to confess that we are still groping in the darkness of ignorance. And if we are impressed from time to time with a sense of our ignorance in matters of practical every-day living, how much more is it the case when we consider the domain of speculation and inquiry?

Thousands of years ago an eastern sage asked the question, "Canst thou by searching find out God?" And from that day to this, men have searched philosophy in vain for answers to the ever-persistent questions, "Is the great creative force of the world personal or impersonal?" "Are we mere puppets in the grip of a great impersonal force or fate?" Or, "Is God a personal being, and does He care what I do or am, and what becomes of me?" For, my friends, even the best of us are at times beset, not only by the darkness of ignorance, but by the darkness of doubt or despondency.

If a man sets himself, or is impelled by and experience, to collect the facts and arguments which would tend to support a pessimistic view of God and the universe, he will find that they are many and weighty. Not that they are more and weightier than the counterfacts and arguments! But they are sufficient, taken alone and by themselves, to land us in the darkness of doubt, or at least, to start us off in that direction.

For, when we allow our minds to dwell on the famines, tornadoes, earthquakes, floods, pestilences and plagues, by which nature from time to time takes such heavy toll of human life and property, we find much that makes for pessimism. In fact, such huge disasters are not easily reconcilable with the doctrine that the author and governor of nature is the God of love set forth by Christ. If, for example, you take the recent Mississippi floods, and conclude simply from them and like phenomena, that nature is not only destructive, but designedly so, you are bound to arrive at a one-sided or pessimistic verdict.

For you utterly leave out of the account the many years of nature's bounty, when there has been no flood to interrupt its beneficent workings. Stunned and shocked by the awful devastations, the flood sufferers might well have been tempted, for the time being at any rate, to doubt whether God cared. Moreover, science, in revealing the immensity of the universe has not tended, for the ordinary mind, to bring God nearer, or to make it seem probable that He can care for the individual soul and its seemingly small concerns. "Does God Care?" is still at times a persistent question with us all.

Then, there is moral darkness. While we have our conscience, which is emphatic, and indeed imperative, we have also the weakness of the will and the deceitfulness and fascination of evil and temptation. Reason and conscience unite in upholding the distinction between right and wrong. So far we have light within us. But, alas, the light that is within us may become darkness. Evil tendencies and habits may so entwine themselves around our affections that we become blind to every higher suggestion or call. Or, groaning under the burden and slavery of evil habits, and seeing no way out, we may give ourselves over to complete moral darkness and walk as men that have no light.

Still again, there is the darkness of the affections. We all have within us an instinctive sense of perfection. We refuse to be satisfied even with our most unselfish deeds. There is never a time when we can imagine ourselves reaching the height of our ideals. And yet, by our very power of idealizing we are drawn forward and upward. The man, who has no ideals of this sort may win life's prizes and men's plaudits, and some of us, seeing their apparent success, may begin to ask ourselves whether our ideals are worthwhile in a world which is practical and unideal.

And yet once more, there is spiritual darkness—that ignorance of the essential supremacy of the spirit, that immersion in the lusts of the world, the flesh and the devil, that utter ignoring of the higher life which speedily grips all who walk with no conscious sense of the need or the favor of God.

Now, the life which is in Jesus throws its own divine light on all these problems and is fitted to dispel all this darkness. In the verse which precedes the text, St. John brings Christ before us as the eternal Son of God, the creator of the world and of all that is in it. "All things were made by Him, and without Him was not anything made that was made." Then follow the words of the text, "In Him was life, and the life was the light of men." By which, I understand, first, that when the Son of God who had life in Himself gave life to men, He gave them the light of reason and conscience. These we ordinarily speak of as innate in man part of his birthright. And so they are being found in man wherever man is found. So that while light is necessary to life, life precedes and conditions light.

But, if the Son of God was the light of men by reason of His creation of them, how much more is He their light by reason of His coming to earth and living a pure and spotless life in our own flesh and under our own conditions. Thereby He proved Himself to be not only a perfect exemplar to us, but also the source and medium of spiritual knowledge and holiness. He made the claim to be the light of the world. He was and is the world's light, because He gave life to the world and sustains that life. "I am the light of the world," says Christ, "he that followeth Me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life."

In a word life is light. It is true that, in a sense, light is life. We send our children to school that they may acquire certain knowledge necessary to an intelligent life. But the intellect is there before the knowledge, and, indeed, conditions the knowledge. And here, perhaps, is where many of us emphasize the wrong factor. We cry out for light upon our dark problems, and Christ has light to throw upon them all in His teachings and example.

If we want to know whether God cares, Christ answers He does care. Cares as a loving father, cares so much that He even numbers the hairs of our heads, cares, I. e., in infinite detail. And Christ lived out this teaching perfectly through all the trials and hardships of a hard life and a cruel death. And Christ proved that His Father cared by rising triumphantly from the grave. Therefore, when we are sunk deep in the pit of misery and sin our own hands have dug, Christ offers us the forgiveness of our sin and the promise that we shall be divinely aided in our efforts to rise.

Or, if we question the worth of clinging to our ideals in an unideal world, thus sacrificing many of the comforts and luxuries of life, Christ points us to His own life of purity, sacrifice and steadfastness in this same glittering world, and reminds us of the solemn truth, "What shall it profit a man if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" In a word, the light we really need comes only from true life, a life that is "hid with Christ in God."

DEPLORES CONTROVERSY OVER BIRTH OF CHRIST

It has never seemed right to me that on this holy, blessed and joyous day, we should desecrate it with futile controversy, said Rev. Thomas Richey, in his sermon Christmas morning at Christ Episcopal church. There was a large congregation and a special programme of music added much to the attractiveness of the service. In his sermon Mr. Richey said, in part:

In the message of the angel to the shepherds who were keeping watch over their flocks by night we are told in plain but beautiful words the wonderous truth, the good tidings of the abiding joy of Christmas day.

The whole account of the Nativity given to us by St. Luke is simply and naturally told. It is perfect in every detail. Other men have sought to express in different words what took place that first Christmas day, but none have ever improved upon the beautiful, holy and imperishable account St. Luke has recorded. It is due to him that mankind, no matter how long after that first holy Christmas day they have lived have been drawn to the lowly manger in Bethlehem to worship the Christ-Child.

In the alternate gospel for Christmas day we are given another man's interpretation of what occurred when Christ was born.

St. John the Evangelist opens his account of our Lord's life with a spiritually profound and inspiring preface. With a tremendous swing and uplift he carries us up, out, and beyond ourselves and the world in which we live. "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God and the Word was God. All things were made by Him and without Him was not anything made that was made. . . . In Him was life and the life was the light of men. . . . He came to His own and His own received Him not. . . . And the Word was made flesh and dwelt among us."

In grandeur, in eloquence, in spiritual perception, these opening verses of St. John's Gospel are unparalleled. Yet, I venture to say, comparatively few men and women have been brought to a deeper knowledge or a greater faith in Christ Jesus by the spirituality and grandeur of the Evangelist's words.

It is strange, but nevertheless true, that when man attempts to explain Christ he invariably fails in his undertaking. Nothing can so move the heart of man to faith in Jesus as the simple, plain, vivid account of the Saviour's life and of His teaching. From peaceful, star-lit Bethlehem, where in the stillness of the night echo the angels' songs, along the way of life over which He passed until on earth the way ended in the awful silence of Calvary, let all who would truly know Christ walk with their Saviour.

It has never seemed right to me that on this holy, blessed and joyous day we should desecrate it with futile controversy. It could be pointed out, for example, that no other religion but Christianity ever had any teaching concerning its founder, identical to that of the Virgin-birth. It is true that there is in the Buddhist writings a far-fetched and highly artificial story of Buddha's birth. But his mother was not believed to have been a virgin, and even had she been, does not the account of Buddha's birth appear grotesque and incredible when compared with the simple, natural and unaffected account of Christ's birth? Buddha, it is taught, in the form of an elephant entered his mother and emerged from her right side without any pain to her, in possession of full knowledge. Compare this teaching with the straightforward narrative of Christ's birth that we find in St. Luke's Gospel.

Though we, with our limited knowledge of God's wonderful power, may not be able to understand the manner of Christ's birth, yet we can see how it would be possible for Him, who is the Creator of all life, to send His Holy One into the world, as He did.

It is equally absurd for man with his limited knowledge to say it was impossible for God to send His Son into the world as He did—the evidence is that He sent Him. The Holy One from God was born in the form of a human babe.

The truth of the Virgin-birth can only be understood when we have come to know the Saviour, Christ the Lord. We do not believe in Christmas because He was born of a virgin. Rather is it the other way round; once we believe that Jesus is the Lord, the Holy One of God, then we believe in His birth.

LARGE CONGREGATION AT THE LUTHERAN CHURCH

With a large congregation present the annual Christmas day service at the First Evangelical Lutheran church, Franklin street, was held Wednesday morning at 7.30 o'clock. Rev. Carl Storck, the pastor, preached from the text, "There shall come a star out of Jacob, and a scepter shall rise out of Israel."—Num. 24:17. In part the pastor said:

Who was this Jacob? He was one of the splendid array of Godly men among Israel of old; a line that ended with John the Baptist. One of the men of vision like the wise men from the East. Men that were not guided by selfish impulses, but by the stars. There shall come a star. It must have been this very prophesy that prompted the wise men to start out for the land of Israel when they saw the star. Where there is no vision the people perish. On his flight to Laban Jacob had a vision (or was it a mere dream? of a ladder the top of which reached to heaven, and angels of God ascending and descending on it, and he called the place Bethel. This Bethel has become Bethlehem, the birthplace of Christ.

Not only angels, but God, himself, came to earth at this place. As far as we know this is the only place where communication has been established with heaven, yea more than that. There earth was joined with heaven. There a ladder is set up, the top of which actually reaches up to heaven.

Men have tried to reach heaven by different means, but failed. Some built a tower, others trusted reason. Some tried to penetrate the heavens by scientific means, others built their own ladders trusting their own merit and righteousness, but to no avail for these ladders are too short.

God so loved the world that He gave His Only Begotten Son, that who so ever believeth in Him shall not perish, but have eternal life. So simple and so beautiful. A child shall lead them, God loves simplicity. Everything about Bethlehem—the shepherds, the stable, the mother, the Christ child, the angel's message—everything suggests simplicity. Why do men distort their speech (even a gospel message) by trying to embellish it with newly or self invented words, when our Lord and Master told us to make plain and straight the way? Would Moody have won the multitudes by using unfamiliar terms? Would Luther have reformed the church by speaking over the heads of the people and writing only for scholars? Paul has tried to speak as philosopher to philosophers in Athens, but accomplished little. Why try to be "great" when the Lord said: "Unless ye become as children ye shall not enter into the Kingdom of Heaven?"

Let us cultivate the simple life and the single mind; then we shall better appreciate our Bibles, our churches, our homes, our children and the great things that were done in Bethlehem by Jehova himself in His simple way. The Christian martyrs, the pilgrims, the pioneers had a simple faith and a plain worship, but oh, they were strong men and their faith was so great! The Christmas carols of old are so simple, but oh, so full of meaning and we shall never tire hearing them even to the end of the world.

The music and singing at the service was heard up and down Franklin street at an early hour. A lighted star was seen suspended from the high altar arch. The altar was decorated with Christmas flowers and roses given as memorial gifts by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Burdick in memory of their son, Elmer, by Mrs. E. Thumm of their son, Elmer, by Mrs. E. Thumm Maria Meyer and by Mrs. P. Winkel in memory of her mother, Mrs. Marie Sabrowski. Also a living tree, loaned by W. Gross, was wired and set on the altar. Opposite the pulpit stood the large tree. The music was furnished by the regular choir and a violinist, Miss Alma Philipp, and Frank Decker, Sr., and Jr., and Otto Philipp who played on brass instruments with the organ.

SANG CHRISTMAS CAROLS AT CHRIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Over 150 children and their parents participated in the singing of carols Tuesday afternoon at Christ Episcopal church, Rev. Thomas Richey, rector. Two Christmas trees, one lighted and the other unlighted, were prominently displayed and the children were presented with boxes of candy. After the children had deposited their gifts at the manger, the unlighted Christmas tree was lighted, signifying the joy and happiness sent forth into the world throuhg gift-giving.

These gifts are later sent to mission fields to be distributed. Last year a box of presents went to North Carolina.

A pickle with a history is the possession of Marion Fletcher, of New Lexington, O. The cucumber was put in alcohol in 1877 by Mrs. Martha Newlon. It is seven inches long and remarkably preserved.

NEW LONDON KIDDIES' CHRISTMAS JOY THROUGH U. S. CAMDEN SEAMEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 25.—Children from the Learned mission were entertained and feasted on board the United States ship Camden today as they never were feasted and provided for at any previous time. There were so many boys and girls that they swarmed over the warcraft as that vessel lay at anchor in the harbor. Transportation was provided for the kiddies in the ship's launches and they were well guarded while being carried from the public landing to the ship. There a dinner that was the best money could provide was ready for them, with turkey, chicken, salads, pie, fruit, nuts, etc. There was nothing lacking that would bring pleasure and an abatement of appetite for the youngsters. And they saw what they never witnessed before — the interior of one of Uncle Sam's warships. For a couple of hours the little ones romped at the tables on the ship and they were safely transported back to the public landing, with toys, candy, fruit and knickknacks as a reminder of one of the pleasantest experiences they will ever enjoy. Later the children were guests of the ship's officers and crew at the Capitol theatre. The Elks entertained other children at the Garde theatre in the forenoon, so the little folks of New London were well diverted on the anniversary of the birth of the Savior. The experience was one they will always remember.

Sanded At Last

A gang of men and carts in the public works department of the city was engaged this morning sanding the walks. The work was started Tuesday, but all the city could not be given the attention necessary so the work was continued this morning.

Church services in New London and in Groton were well attended this morning. The regular Christmas services were held in the Episcopal and Catholic churches.

Fewer sidewalks were cleared of snow after the storm of Monday than have been cleared in many years. Rain, sleet and hail followed the snow and left the walks in most treacherous condition for pedestrians. When the ice and snow has been removed it is the general opinion that the police should enforce the ordinance and see to it that the walks are made safe. Suits in damages for injuries to pedestrians have been frequent in past years and will be again unless the ordinance is enforced. Even the walks about city property were not cleared after Monday's storm and are in even a more dangerous condition than are the walks about the property of individuals.

Some enterprising marketman might turn a few dollars to the good by making and selling brine for the removal of snow and ice. The cost of the reparation would be small and it could be readily sold to remedy the existing trouble.

E. G. Wigle, U. S. Coast Guard, reported to the police last night that while he was driving north on Willetts avenue, a Ford automobile collided with his car, ripping off the left hand fender, also the tail-light. He requested that an endeavor be made to ascertain the identity of the colliding driver and effect his arrest.

Boatman Boisterous

Edward Devine, of New York, employed on lighthouse boats, was arrested last night, charged with intoxication and breach of the peace, being arrested on Bank street. He was in a disturbing mood and was taken in by Automobile Patrol Officer Augustus Ray.

Evaded Fare-Paying

John Billings, an old time offender, will be in the police court tomorrow, charged with evading taxicab fare and intoxication. He was arrested yesterday when he drove about the city in a public service automobile and then refused to pay the driver.

THREE BRAWLERS GET BY BECAUSE OF CHRISTMAS

George McCulley, a warper; Harold Cole, a sailor, and Armeda Canouette, a mill worker, were arrested at 1 o'clock this morning, charged with intoxication and breach of the peace. The men were on Bank street, near the corner of Tilley street and there engaged in a fight, which was not ended until Sergeant Samuel Hick and Patrolman Louis Tooker appeared. All three were released with a warning for their offense did not appear to be an aggravated one and in view of the fact that today was Christmas, the court officials decided to permit the men to have their freedom and not be compelled to answer in court.

Herbert Anderson, a marine fireman, was arrested at 2 o'clock this morning, charged with breach of the peace and intoxication. He was on Truman street and while attempting to navigate smashed a window, only to be arrested by Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey and Patrolman Louis Tooker. He will be in court tomorrow, for recently the court officials decided to refrain from holding a session of court Christmas day unless emergency circumstances demanded.

Woman Celebrates Noisily

A woman resident of Washington street, evidently engaged in whoopee" last night, for she roamed to Lincoln avenue where she became a nuisance. A communication was sent to police headquarters that the woman was irresponsible and in danger of sustaining personal injury. Automobile Patrol Officer Elwood Bailey and Patrolman Louis Tooker went to Lincoln avenue and arrested the woman. She was not held, however, for she was released with a warning as to her future conduct.

Numerous uniformed men were arrested last night, most of them for intoxication, but in view of the fact that the offenders had not caused a serious infraction of the law, they were allowed to return to their respective bases, where they would receive such discipline as their offenses merited.

GEORGE O. WRIGHT STILL BEING SOUGHT FOR

No trace of George O. Wright, formerly of 319 State street and a nurse, has been obtained by either the local police or the state police, following Wright having failed to present himself in the police court a week ago on a charge of violation of the state law prohibiting the practicing of chiropody without a license. By his failure to appear, Wright forfeited his bond of $200. Since then the New London and state police have endeavored to determine Wright's whereabouts that he could be arrested and prosecuted. Complaint was made to Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer three weeks ago because of Wright having started the practice of chiropody without first applying for and obtaining license from the state. The day after his arrest Wright's case was continued a week and when it was again called, a continuance of two weeks was granted. Several days ago when Wright was scheduled to be tried, he did not appear in court and his bond was forfeited.

The unemployed continue to seek work from the city and City Manager William A. Holt is constantly receiving applications from laborers. As fast as possible the men seeking employment are put to work in Bates' woods, where the city is causing the woodland to be removed as well as the undergrowth. The men in most cases have been without work for many weeks and are eager to be provided with means to support themselves and their families.

Uniformed men were conspicuous about the streets and in the dance halls tonight celebrating and making whoopee, and as a result numerous arrests were made. It is doubtful, however, if any of the offenders will be presented in the police court Thursday for the sailors will probably be taken in charge by guards and returned to their respective bases for military discipline.

Rooming house proprietors find business slower than it has seen in many years. There are fewer mechanics employed here than have been engaged in years past, so there are a smaller number of transients to require rooms. Prices of accommodations have been lowered in some cases, but that does not bring the patronage, owners say.

The stores of the city of every sort were quite generally closed today. Even the places that usually remain open all day were closed for a few hours and all shut up earlier than usual in the evening.

New Year's parties will be numerous a week from today, for there appears to be more than the usual number arranged. Some of them are for elaborate festivities.

There were so few autos in use in this city today that the small number was very noticeable. The condition of the streets made motoring hazardous for ice covered the highways, making skidding common and dangerous.

A Live Mayor's Greeting

Mayor Twomey published greetings to the people of the city Tuesday and expressed the hope that they would experience a greater degree of success during the year now at hand than they had during the twelve months just passed. Mayor Twomey appears to be alert to every opportunity to advance the interests of the city and to be watchful that no chance shall pass unappreciated.

Thomas Cummings, of Tilley street, employed at the plant of the Robert Gair Co., Montville, is visiting relatives in Springfield, Mass.

William Dooley, who has been arrested many times on charges of intoxication and vagrancy, was arrested tonight on the latter charge by Sergeant Frank Howard and will be in court tomorrow. Dooley, who is without employment or friends, has been occupying a bunk in the tramp room many weeks. When he again applied for lodging tonight he was arrested.

CITY'S SPLENDID CHARITY SEES NEEDY ON CHRISTMAS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 25.—The unfortunate ones of the city were remembered and most generously today by charitable organizations and where Christmas with the good things that ordinarily grace the table would be lacking, bounteous supplies were provided. The Salvation Army furnished baskets of foodstuffs for 30 families, the baskets containing a chicken, besides various vegetables, tea and coffee, butter, bread and milk. The quantity was sufficient to feed families from four to six in number. The Seventh Day Adventists provided edibles for 25 families, but instead of the chicken there was a good sized piece of roast pork. The Harbor club sent baskets to eight families, while the Italian Ladies' Aid society provided 16 families with baskets. The Crowley club sent baskets to eighty families and the Elks fed about 150 families in the baskets from the Elks were a roast of pork, potatoes, turnips, onions, celery, tea and coffee, bread and butter, sugar and milk and the supply was sufficient to provide for families numbering six or eight. The Elks also provided pleasure for the children today, for at 10 o'clock this forenoon about 500 kiddies, boys and girls, were entertained at the Garde theatre where a motion picture performance was provided. At the close of the entertainment the children were given toys, candies and articles of apparel.

The inmates at the county jail and Hillside home, the latter the residence for the aged poor, were given typical holiday dinners with all the accompanying good things.

The American Legion provided Christmas cheer to the needy families of Veterans of Foreign Wars and the children were given articles of apparel.

Also a tree "for others" on which the annual offering for the work of the White Cross would be placed.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

High adventure—literally high— on the flying trapezes of a traveling carnival show, falls to the lot of Charles (Buddy) Rogers in his latest all-talking picture "Halfway to Heaven," which opened at the Broadway to delighted audiences yesterday. Buddy is a small town acrobat with a yen to hit the highroad of adventure and his big chance comes when one of the members of a trapeze troupe is accidentally killed, when he incurs the jealousy of the "swing man," who conveniently misses a handhold, and lets the lad hurtle to his death. Not knowing the circumstances, Buddy grabs his chance at the vacancy and nearly meets the same finish but is clever enough to outwit the schemer and drive him from circus life forever. Dainty Jean Arthur comes into her own in this picture and shows that she can really make love rather than play the more sinister roles she has had in the past. Paul Lukas is the vindictive "swing-man" of the troupe and the three stars offer a performance, startling, thrilling and thoroughly satisfying to everyone. The dialogue and sound effects are particularly outstanding in their excellence. The snappy short featurettes include Willie and Eugene Howard, premiere funsters, Born and Lawrence, pantomimic comedians, a patriotic song and musical dancing novelty "Americans All" and a side-splitting comedy sketch "If Men Played Cards as Women Do," together with the Fox movietone news. This exceptional program continues today and tomorrow, and will be succeeded on Saturday by the Connecticut premiere performance of "Hot for Paris," Victor McLaglin's screamingly funny comedy-feature in which he surpasses his previous success in "The Cockeyed World." The Broadway showing is timed at the same moment as the New York, Chicago and Frisco release of this picture. Plans are underway for a big midnite show at the Broadway for New Year's eve with a surprise feature as the highspot of the long program.

Palace Theatre

A big double feature show at the Palace theatre for today and tomorrow and a wow of a show, header by Warner Bros. latest masterpiece Tiger Rose.

Magnificent against natural backgrounds of the wilds that have seldom been equalled, "Tiger Rose," at the Palace theatre today and tomorrow is the last word in Vitaphone entertainment.

That the talking screen can enhance the entertainment value of a stage play is amply demonstrated by this picture, which Warner Bros. have made from the Willard Mack melodrama which was produced some years ago by David Belasco. It was a hit for several seasons.

Monte Blue, as Devlin, the blarneying Irish sergeant of the Northwest Mounted, who loves Rose, and eventually helps her escape because she loves another, is at his very best in this picture. It is by far the finest thing he has done in the past year.

Grant Withers again gives a sincere, youthful performance. Gaston Glass as Pierre plays a highly sympathetic role. As the mad doctor H. B. Warner proves his histrionic ability and versatility. Tully Marshall didn't have to step out of character to be the Scotch factor of the Hudson Bay trading post, while Bull Montana's Italian dialect and ugly mug went together like the now famous cream in the coffee. Of course this story would not be complete without mentioning Rin-Tin-Tin, who takes the part of Lupe's faithful dog Scotty, and who performs some excellent acting in the picture.

And the picture that will keep you talking for a long time after you have seen it, "This Thing Called Love," with an all star cast and a thousand laughs. This is one of the greatest double features that has ever played in this city, 100 per cent singing, talking and laughing show, at the regular Palace prices.

Palace Theatre Midnight Show

The Palace theatre midnight show for New Year's eve promises to be the biggest event of its kind ever offered to the patrons of this popular theatre. The bill will be headed by eight of the finest acts in vaudeville and a 100 per cent singing and talking feature picture, a complete big city midnight show with plenty of novelties that will keep you surprised for the entire show. Music will be furnished by John Egans' Palace Serenaders and the ticket sale is now on, all seats being reserved. Make your party reservations now.

Bread Theatre

"The Trial of Mary Dugan," an all-dialogue screen version of Bayard Veiller's stage success of the same name, opened at the Bread theatre yesterday. Directed by Veiller himself, the film retains all of the elements that made the drama a world-wide hit. It is not beyond the realms of possibility that many persons who witness this dialogue film will consider the talking motion picture version of that famous dramatic hit even more effectively thrilling dramatic entertainment than was the original stage play.

The cast in "Mary Dugan" is headed by an all-star one. Norma Talmadge plays the title role, the accused girl, who goes on trial for murder. Raymond Hackett plays her young brother, an attorney, who comes to her defense when he thinks her lawyer is not handling the case properly. Hackett played that same role in the stage production. H. B. Warner is the prosecuting attorney. Lewis Stone is the deposed defense attorney. Others in the huge cast are Lilyan Tashman, Olive Tell, Adrienne D'Ambricourt, Mary Doran, Dewitt Jennings, Wilfred North, Landers Stevens, Mary Dorne, Myra Hampton, Westcott Clark, Charles Moore and Claud Allister.

LEFTY O'DOUL FORMALLY NAMED AS LEADING BATTER OF NATIONAL LEAGUE

By BRIAN BELL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Dec. 25.—(AP)— Frank J. (Lefty) O'Doul of the Phillies was formally proclaimed champion batsman of the National league today with the issuance of the official averages for the 1929 season. O'Doul, a former pitcher and cast-off by other major league clubs, led the pack with an average of .398. Unofficial averages had credited him with an even .400.

O'Doul procured 254 hits during the campaign, establishing a new major league record. This topped by four safeties the record of 250 established by Rogers Hornsby for St. Louis in 1922. O'Doul and Lloyd Waner of the Pirates each registered 181 singles.

Rogers Hornsby, who won the most valuable player award as a result of his consistent efforts for the Chicago Cubs during the season, also broke a National league record by scoring 156 runs. Hazen Cuyler, now a Cub with Hornsby, scored 144 runs with Pittsburgh in 1928 to establish the previous high. Hornsby led too, with the most total bases, 410.

Hornsby, however, saw one of his league marks shot away by another newcomer in such select class, Chuck Klein, also of the Phillies, making a new home run record with 43. Hornsby hit 42 in 1922.

Johnny Frederick's 52 two-base hits were enough to create another record and Lloyd Waner led in triples with 22. Freddy Maguire, Boston, topped the sacrifice hitters with 26 and Kiki Cuyler showed the way to the base stealers with 43.

The hitting in 1929 was better than in 1924. Sixty players hit for .300 or better while in 1928 the .300 hitters numbered only 47.

Only five players participated in all the games their teams played and Philadelphia had three of the exclusive quintet. O'Doul, Arthur Whitner and Frank Hurst. The others were Hornsby of the Cubs and George Sisler of the Braves, who probably has played his last season as a regular.

O'Doul is the fourth player to lead the National league while wearing the uniform of Philadelphia and the first for nearly 20 years. Sherwood Magee had the honor in 1910. Ed Delahanty had topped the heap in 1899 and Billy Hamilton in 1891.

O'Doul won the batting championship by 17 points from Floyd (Babe) Herman of Brooklyn. The Robin outfielder took the runner-up position from Hornsby by a single point.

RAY CAMPBELL, YOUTHFUL SPORTS CRITIC, IS DEAD

CLEVELAND, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Ray Campbell, 32, boxing writer for the Cleveland News for several years and one of the best known American sports writers, died at his home here tonight after a month's illness of influenza and typhoid fever.

Campbell was one of the original "Tunney men" in the country and was an intimate friend of the former heavyweight champion.

Campbell was one of the few sports writers to pick Gene Tunney to win from Jack Dempsey in their first fight.

He was unmarried. His parents and sister live here.

SIXTEEN SEEDED IN JUNIOR INDOOR TENNIS

NEW YORK, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Sixteen youthful tennis players, including nine college students, are seeded in the draw for the national junior indoor tennis singles championship, which gets under way tomorrow at the big Seventh Regiment armory on Park avenue. Unless some member of this charmed circle comes through to win the title the result will go down as a decided upset.

The chosen group is headed by William Jacobs, of Baltimore City college and Sidney Sellhman, of New York university. The others are Richard K. Hebard, of White Plains, N. Y.; E. D. Donovan, Fordham prep; Walter Rothschild, New Rochelle high school; Charles T. French, University of Maryland; Donald Frame, Harvard; Charles Abelson, Yale; W. G. Mundy, Yale; Franklin Whitbeck, Loomis school; Jack Laimbeer, St. Paul's school, Garden City, N. Y.; Richard Solomon, Brown; Nathaniel T. Winthrop, Boston; Herman K. Goldberg, Johns Hopkins; Ben Cohen, Wilmington, Del. high school, and Edward H. Luchs, University of Pennsylvania.

Richard Murphy, of Utica, N. Y., now a Harvard freshman, won the title last year at Baltimore but because of illness, will be unable to defend it.

EAST AND WEST SQUADS HAVE EXTENSIVE PRACTICE

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Snappy workouts this morning were included in the Christmas day festivities of the football stars who will meet here New Year's day in the annual east-west Shriners' hospital charity game. The two squads concentrated on perfecting the half dozen formations given them by the respective coaches, Andy Kerr of the east and Percy Locey of the west.

This afternoon the players were guests at Christmas dinners. The easterners assembled at a private home in Menlo, near Stanford university where they are holding their practice session. The western boys making their headquarters in San Francisco, had "turkey helpings" at the Lakeside Country club.

Tom Churchill, University of Oklahoma end, who is expected to be one of the cogs in the west's passing attack, turned up today with an ankle injury. It was not considered serious, howeyer, and he is expected to be in uniform again within a day.

An injury to Tom Dowler, halfback from Colgate continued to work the east team's coaching staff today. Dowler wrenched a knee in a scrimmage against Stanford Monday and may not be in shape in time for the game.

The practice sessions to date indicate the eastern team will depend largely on ground plays while the westerners will go after yardage via the air. The eastern boys have been installed favorites.

LIBERTY HIT FOR MARK OF .255 IN N. Y.-PENN LOOP

News of interest to local baseball fans is disclosed in the annual averages of the New York-Penn league, recently released.

Nap Liberty, Jewett City boy and Riverview and J. B. Martin star, who had a tryout with York at the start of the season, appeared in 13 games and batted .255. He was at bat 47 times and made 12 hits, two of them doubles.

George Sheffiot, former Bulkeley high of New London player, appeared in 26 games with Scranton and made 10 hits in 42 times at bat for a mark of .239. One of Sheffiot's wallops was a triple and two were for two bases. Sheffiot is a catcher and Liberty an infielder. Sheffiot finished the season with Columbus in the American association.

Johnny Tillman, manager of Harrisburg, who has appeared here in post-season games, had a pitching mark of 21 victories and 12 defeats, the average being .636. Tillman had an earned run mark of 3.75 per game. Tillman's batting average was .257.

BOROTRA LOSES DINNER WAGER TO TILDEN

PARIS, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Jean Borotra was compelled to play host to his tennis rival, Big Bill Tilden, this evening for a Christmas dinner at one of the most expensive restaurants in Paris as the result of a friendly wager between Tilden and the Bounding Basque concerning their prowess on the courts.

Tilden, paired with Charles Kingsley of Great Britain, with whom he will play in the covered courts Christmas cup tournament beginning tomorrow, defeated Borotra and Luis Torralva of Chile, 7-5, 17-15, in a practice match. Borotra had anticipated an entirely different result and had backed his opinion to the extent of the best dinner in town.

Like the wager, the match proved to be a personal duel between Tilden and Borotra in which Big Bill had a slight advantage.

PLAINFIELD VS. WHIRLWINDS FRIDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PLAINFIELD, Dec. 25.—On Friday evening the Boston Whirlwinds come to Plainfield from the second engagement of the season, which means another fast game. In the last encounter the Plainfield team took the decision 34 to 31 in an overtime period in one of the fastest games seen here this season.

"Fiddle" Morley, who is managing the Whirlwinds this season, informs the local management that his club intends to even the series with the Plainfield boys and that the last defeat was more or less a matter of luck. But, he adds, that is as it may be, but he is taking absolutely no chances on losing the second game and will endeavor to have Leo Martin in the line-up. Martin retired from basketball last year and has not been playing. When Martin left the game it lost one of the best players in the country. Morley feels that he can persuade Martin to play at least one more game with his teammates. If Martin plays it means that the Plainfield club will have a very hard time to beat the visitors.

Manager Salisbury plans to use the same line-up that performed so brilliantly against the Whirlwinds last week. This team has been going strong and has made a name for itself that is known far and wide in basketball circles.

Those attending the game on Friday evening can rest assured that they will see as fast basketball as any in the country. Both teams play a fast and brilliant game and rate along with the best teams in basketball. There will be no reserved seats for this game and those that arrive early will be assured of some of the best seats in the house.

A fast preliminary game between the Buddies and another fast five in the state has been arranged and will be announced later. The Buddies have been playing fast basketball and are as fast a club as can be found outside the semi-pro ranks. These youngsters have been playing for several seasons and have developed a game well worth watching.

And was Santa Claus good to you, huh?

Now that Christmas is over we can look forward to the end of the year with cheerfulness (?) and watch the pretty little bills roll in.

I hope all you folks got just what you wanted for Christmas. I know plenty of you said "Oh, my, just what I wanted," when you thought "Gosh, how dumb some people can be." Am I right? Be honest.

Yes sir, that phrase "just what I wanted" sure took a lot of abuse yesterday—and how. When you expected a fur coat from the husband and got a volume of Shakespeare did you say "just what I wanted?"

Yes, you did aloud but under your breath you probably muttered something far from the spirit of Christmas. You should remember that it is more blessed to give than to receive—even if it isn't so profitable.

Can you imagine? I wrote Santa Claus I wanted a set of Elinor Glynn's books and what I got was a dictionary. I suppose the dictionary would do me more good but who wants to sit up nights reading it?

Can you imagine me getting a thrill out of reading over the latest edition of Webster? I'll admit I would get the same words that Elinor Glynn would use—but not in the same order.

They say it is the spirit in which it is given that counts, more than the gift and they are right. Yesterday I received a gift that cost less than a dollar and I'm not ashamed to say that it was one of the gifts that nearly brought tears to my eyes.

Little Jimmy, who has just turned 11 years, gave it to me. He bought it out of money he had earned and had selected it himself. There was true love with that gift and I knew it. Those are the kind of gifts that make you realize the true spirit of Christmas.

I see where Santa Claus made the traffic cops on the corner of Broadway a present in the form of a shelter. Some unkind citizen remarked that the Humane society was instrumental in getting it for them.

It sure is a great thing for now we will know where to find an officer when we want him. The only thing that I can see wrong with it is that it was not big enough to put a bunk in. But I suppose that those who built it know their business, and also their cops.

But, all joking aside, it is a darned good thing and I'll tell the world I have never envied the officer who had to stand on the corner in all kinds of weather and direct traffic. He sure earned his money.

And speaking of cops, who was the officer who mistook one kind of paper for another at the police headquarters?

FUMBLED PUNT GIVES MIAMI TEAM A VICTORY

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 25.—(AP)—Recovery of a fumbled punt behind their opponents' goal line, paved the way for Miami high's 7 to 6 victory over the light and speedy Salem, Mass., high eleven in an intersectional football game here today. A crowd of 10,000 saw the contest.

Eckhoff, Miami tackle, recovered a punt that rolled across the Salem goal line after Cullen, visiting quarter, had fumbled it. This tied the score in the last quarter of the game and a moment later Brumbach, Miami's left half, booted the extra point to give the southerners a one point margin which they held to the final whistle.

Salem's touchdown was scored in the first quarter on a short pass from Cullen to Rand, northerners' flashy halfback, but the try for point failed. All through the afternoon, Rand was a steady gainer for the Salem eleven, but the Witch City's aerial attack failed generally to click, although both teams made some ground by the air route.

Although Frank and Beckwith showed great power as ground gainers for the southerners, Miami was outplayed most of the game. The Stingarees' heavy forward line functioned well only in the first period. After that time the Salemites advanced almost at will by straight football except at critical moments near the Miami goal line.

The weather was crisp and cool despite a bright sun shone.

TROJANS HAVE DAY OF REST BEFORE GAME

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 25.—(AP)—Christmas brought a lazy day to a hard working squad of University of Southern California football players and turkey and Yuletide cheer replaced class rooms and a gridiron in the athletics' grind for the New Year's day game in Pasadena with Pittsburgh.

Tomorrow the Trojans will trek back to Bovard field to smooth the rough spots in the attack with which they hope to wrest victory from the powerful Panthers of Pitt.

Pitt's invasion of the west will find a welcome proclaiming them favorites over the storm tossed Trojans, whose erratic football record of the past season was in strong contrast to the even tenor of victory credited to the easterners.

This weighing of odds against the Southern Californians was a hopeful sign, however, for their mentor, Coach Howard Jones.

Jones feels that his team will enter the Rose Bowl mentally fit as well as physically capable. He believes that the heralded strength of Pitt has offset any over confidence which the Trojans' emphatic victory two weeks ago over Carnegie Tech, might have given his squad.

The few remaining days before the struggle will bring the Trojans a schedule of final polishing on defense against the deceptive Pitt plays and practice on their own tricky field maneuvers.

ARMY TEAM HAS FINAL SCRIMMAGE BEFORE GAME

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Dec. 25.—(AP)—The Yuletide spirit hovered over West Point headquarters here this forenoon but gave way in the afternoon to grim business as Coach "Biff" Jones sent the Cadet footballers through their final scrimmage before Saturday's game against Stanford university.

The West Pointers awoke to find a huge Christmas tree in Branner hall. Grouped about were gifts from their friends and families. Coach Jones was presented with a wrist watch by the squad. Major Frank Wandle, the team's trainer, played Santa Claus.

After a sightseeing tour the Cadets donned their moleskins for the final test of their defensive strength against Stanford plays. McWilliams, yearling backfield ace, whirled loose for long gains on some of Pop Warner's lateral pass creations, but otherwise the varsity stopped the Plebes dead.

Johnny Murrell, Chris Cagle and Dick Hutchinson spent a long session kicking the ball around. Murrell, who will handle the punting assignment against Stanford Saturday, has reached his Notre Dame form. Cagle and Hutchinson practiced drop kicking and place kicking for the extra point after touchdown.

A grand reunion was staged today between Jack Cannon, Notre Dame guard here with the All-Eastern eleven, and Harry Hillsinger, the Army guard. The two men, according to their own report, tangled in every play of the Army-Notre Dame game last month, and both came out of it badly bruised up, but they fell on each other's necks as they met today.

Comparative quiet reigned in the Stanford and Eastern Shrine camp today. The Cardinals confined their activities to a light workout this morning, while the easterners, with Dowler, Colgate fullback, E. Calderwood, Nebraska half, on the injured list, took things easy. All three teams enjoyed turkey dinners.

NO PENALTY FOR SLAYING OF DEER

An act concerning deer passed at the last session of the legislature does not provide a penalty for the slaying of deer in Connecticut. Observers of the law now have an opportunity to demonstrate their respect for the law as such when no penalty for transgression is involved therein.

Deer slayers may be arrested, have their hunting licenses revoked and the state may confiscate the carcasses of the slaughtered animals, but punishment for such violation of the law is not specifically included in the statute which supplants previous legislation relative to killing deer.

John W. Titcomb, superintendent of the state board of fisheries and game, admitted that such was the general situation, but it was his belief that "no true sportsman will violate the law." He cited a supreme court case which invoked a general provision in the laws (section 6653) wherein a statute was intended to provide a penalty for the commission of every misdemeanor known to the law for which penalty was not provided.

The act in question is a substitute for house bill No. 374 and reads as follows: "Section 1. No person shall hunt, pursue, wound or kill any wild deer or sell or offer for sale or have in possession the flesh of any deer captured or killed in this state, provided, whenever, on land used solely for agricultural purposes, deer shall have injured or destroyed within 30 days any fruit tree or growing crop other than grass growing or uncultivated land, the owner or lessee of such land, or any member of his family or any person regularly employed by him in regular farm work may kill with a shotgun any wild deer found thereon. The state board of fisheries and game may, in its discretion, upon application of any owner or lessee of land used for agricultural purposes, issue a permit to such applicant or to any person named by him authorizing the use of a rifle under such terms and in accordance with such rules and regulations as it may prescribe, for killing deer under the provisions of this section. Any deer killed in accordance with the provisions of this section shall be the property of the owner or lessee of the land upon which same shall have been killed, but shall not be sold or offered for sale and the person by whom or under whose direction any deer shall have been wounded or killed, within 12 hours thereafter, shall report all facts relative to such wounding or killing to the state board of fisheries and game in a writing signed by him provided any such person may report such facts by telephone or telegraph to any fish and game warden of the county wherein such deer shall have been killed or wounded. Such report shall state the time, when and place where such wounding or killing occured and shall include a description of the damage done by such deer. Any fish and game warden receiving any such notice shall forthwith notify the superintendent of fisheries and game, who may order any fish and game warden to investigate the circumstances of such killing for the purpose of ascertaining whether such deer was wounded or killed in violation of any provision of this section. Any deer killed other than under the conditions provided for in this section shall remain the property of the state and may be disposed of by the superintendent of the fisheries and game at his discretion to any state institution or may be sold and the proceeds of such sale shall be remitted to the state treasurer, who shall apply the same to the fund for the protection and propagation of game, and no person, except said superintendent, shall retain, sell or offer for sale the whole or any part of any such deer. No person shall make, set or use a trap, snare, salt-lick or other device for the purpose of taking, injuring or killing any deer.

"Section 2. Section 36 of chapter 269 of the public acts of 1929 as amended by section seven of chapter 123 of the public acts of 1925 is repealed. Approved June 25, 1929.

Mr. Titcomb said, "It is true that the act of the legislature instead of amending the then existing law was a direct statute changing the law. It enacted the new law and repealed the old one. They did not make it a section of part four for which there is a penalty clause. The legislature without doubt looked upon the act as an amendment and there seemed to be a difference of opinion among lawyers whether there was a penalty clause.

"There have already been several convictions treating the act as if it had been an amendment to part four and the convicted persons have been fined under the existing penalty. Part four deals with deer and other quadrupeds in the first section of the fish and game laws. In section 41 fines of not less than $50 or imprisonment of not more than 30 days or both penalty and imprisonment are provided.

"Regardless of existing conditions there is no question that it is the law and no sportsman will violate it. In instances of violation we will take carcasses and revoke licenses if we know the killer.

A man is never sure that he knows until he makes good.

(Special to The Buletin)

WESTERLY, Dec. 25—Charles Maxson of 56 Elm street, Stonington, was held under $200 bonds at the Liberty street lockup tonight, charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. His companion, John Loppez, 21 Diving street, Stonington, was held under $25 bond on an intoxication charge.

The arrests were the result of an automobile crash on West Broad street, Pawcatuck, at 9.30 o'clock tonight. The rear end of the Dodge car of Thomas P. Patton of 2 Newton court, Westerly, unoccupied and parked in front of the Grills Service station on West Broad street, was struck by the Buick sedan driven by Maxson. The bump drove the Dodge some 20 feet ahead. Considerable damage was done to both cars. No one was injured. The occupants of the Buick claimed they pulled over to that side of the street to allow another car to pass. Patrolman George L. Seidell and Constable A. D. Hill after investigating took both men to the Liberty street jail where Dr. John Coughlin, jr., was called and pronounced both to be under the influence. They will be given a hearing before Judge William A. Wilcox in a special session of Stonington court Thursday morning.

Officers Seidell and Hill had barely finished their investigation of the drunken driving case when they were called to lower Mechanic street by the report of a man lying in the middle of the street in danger of being run over. They found the man had been moved to the side of the roadway out of danger. When lodged in the lockup at 10.30 he was too intoxicated to remember his name. He too will be in court in the morning.

LOCAL JEWISH PEOPLE TO CELEBRATE FEAST OF LIGHTS

The Feast of Lights known in Hebrew as Hanukkah, will be celebrated by the Jewish people of Norwich for a period of eight days beginning this (Thursday) evening and ending Friday, January 3, 1930. This feast is characterized by its beautiful ceremonial of lighting candles in the home and the synagogue, the number of candles being increased by one each consecutive evening. It has its origin in a historic experience of the Jewish people, embracing memories and achievements so unique and heroic that it is ardently cherished and commemorated by Jews of every rank and affiliation, of every sentiment and cultural aspiration.

Following the death of Alexander the Great in 323 B. C. E., Palestine was the bone of contention between the Seleucids who ruled in Syria and the Ptolemies who ruled in Egypt. In the year 168 B. C. E., Antiochus Epiphanes, having political control of Palestine, sought to root out the Jewish religion and its practices. He converted the Temple of Jerusalem into a sanctuary to Jupiter and set up the statue of the Greek god on the temple-altar. He erected heathen altars in many country towns and commanded the Jews to eat of forbidden foods. He ordered Torah scrolls to be rent to pieces, and placed the practice of Jewish rites under penalty of death. In this way, Antiochus Epiphanes sought to uproot every vestige of Judaism from the land of Judah.

In this critical hour, Judaism and the Jewish people were saved by the heroic zeal of the priestly son of Modin, Judah the Maccabee. Spurred on by the religious devotion of his father, Mattathias, and aided by his four valiant brothers and a select group of brave men, he waged an open rebellion against the tyrannic rule of Antiochus Epiphanes. He routed the prodigious Syrian hosts in a number of combats, till he finally dealt them a shattering blow in the year 165 B. C. E. He tore down the heathen altars and rededicated the Temple of Jerusalem to the worship of the One God. With prayers of thanksgiving and songs of joy this glorious victory of the Jewish spirit over the forces of tyranny and oppression was celebrated for a period of eight days.

The commemoration of this historic event is as unique and significant as the event itself, since it revives in our hearts today the necessity for courage and heroism. The candles which we light today not only recall to us the strifes and battles of our fathers of old, not only fill us with a love for all that is noble in our ancient heritage, but also symbolizes vividly the aspirations of humanity for freedom of conscience—freedom to pursue the paths of justice and righteousness in deeds as well as in thought.

PROHIBITION THE TOPIC OF WHITE HOUSE DISCUSSION

Views Were Exchanged by President Hoover and Senator Borah—Neither Would Make Public the Details—Senator Borah's Arraignment of the Entire Volstead Enforcement Line-Up Has Intensified the Tension Over Prohibition in Washington—Senator Sheppard, Who Wrote the 18th Amendment. Disagrees With Opinions of Borah.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Senator Borah's despair of ever enforcing prohibition "with the present personnel from top to bottom" today led to a personal discussion on that inflammatory topic between him and President Hoover during luncheon at the white house.

Not another subject was mentioned, but details of the views exchanged were withheld both by the chief executive and the republican dry from Idaho. Having taken a leading role in the Hoover presidential campaign through his emphasis of the prohibition issue, Senator Borah's Christmas eve arraignment of the entire Volstead enforcement line-up has intensified the tension over prohibition in Washington.

The latest flare-up was another return to the limelight from the treasury department today. Under-Secretary Mills divulged plans for a unified border patrol and limitation of the number of Canadian ports of entry, as means to restrict smuggling liquors. He said the treasury would submit these to congress as soon as it names a joint committee to consider enforcement questions.

Only yesterday the treasury, through Prohibition Commissioner Doran, had assailed Borah's condemnation of the whole Volstead personnel as "bound to have a disheartening effect" on the morale of those doing the work. At the same time Attorney General Mitchell blamed congress for not strengthening the enforcement machinery.

Borah stood by his celebrated "top to bottom" indictment, with a consequent increase in speculation as to just who he considered to be at the "top." Neither before nor after his luncheon engagement at the white house did the Idaho senator specify anyone he had in mind.

The latest senator to enter the controversy was Sheppard of Texas, a democrat, who wrote the 18th amendment. He took a directly opposite stand from that of Borah by contending that enforcement was a success when measured by the standard of a majority of people obeying the law and most cases against offenders resulting in convictions.

"Further action is merely a question of making enforcement still more effective," said the Texan.

"I believe that President Hoover is doing everything within his power in this direction, that he is in intimate touch with his executives and investigators, that if there is anything wrong with them he will be the first to ascertain and correct it, and that these agencies are entitled to the confidence and support of the American people."

Senator Harris of Georgia, a pronounced dry among the democrats, pitched into the dispute again with a declaration that the treasury needed more money to combat bootleggers and smugglers. He maintained that more cash would make possible the employment of a better class of dry agents.

In his statement, Under-Secretary Mills pointed out that all prohibition personnel except the prohibition commissioner is selected from lists submitted by the civil service commission and that the treasury and prohibition bureau have nothing to do with the selection of the men prior to the submission of the lists.

Explaining why the plans of prohibition reorganization were being delayed through failure of congress to appoint the committee, Mills said the treasury would call for the unification of the border patrol under the coast guard with certain designated ports of entry. In addition to getting congressional approval, he said, the Canadian government would have to acquiesce.

President Hoover, in asking congress last June to appoint the committee to cooperate with committees from the department of justice and the treasury in drawing up a reorganization plan for prohibition enforcement, asked that it be done with utmost expedition. The senate approved the resolution shortly before it adjourned for the Christmas holidays.

What is the Trouble?

While the senatorial disputants over enforcement were hurling their say, Mayor H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, issued a formal statement concerning the developments. It read:

"I see by the papers that Borah says the only trouble with prohibition is that the snoopers do not snoop efficiently, but Mitchell says the trouble is with congress, while Doran says the trouble is with the American people.

"Did it never occur to any of them that perhaps the trouble lies in the law itself?

"Perhaps they have read their Iolanthe well enough to make a trip and do this little chorus for us:

"The law is the true embodiment
Of everything that's excellent.
It has no kind of fault or flaw
And I, my lords, embody the law."

ALLEGED DIVERSION OF INDUSTRIAL ALCOHOL

CHICAGO, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Three afternoon papers, the Times, Post and News, today state that more than 1,000 local businessmen, prohibition officials, politicians and bootleggers are under investigation in connection with the purported diversion of $50,000,000 worth of industrial alcohol to illegal channels.

The papers state Alexander Jamie, chief of the Washington prohibition unit, and under cover agents discovered the alleged sinister conspiracy after six months work.

Jamie told the Associated Press: "As far as I know there isn't a particle of truth to the report." District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson, denied it in part.

"What there is to it is before the grand jury and cannot be discussed," he said, "but I can say that what there is to it is nothing at all like the report in the papers."

According to the newspapers the investigators were reported to have found that more than 200 business men obtained "alcohol withdrawal permits through the influence of politicians presumably for the preparation of legal products and that a large percentage of the alcohol was being diverted to bootleggers.

A syndicate, the papers stated, operated all over the middle west and maintained branches in cities as far distant as New York and Denver, accomplishing diversion through an elaborate system of bookkeeping.

Officials of the local prohibition enforcement unit also denied knowledge of the investigation.

MANVILLE, WYO., BEING DESERTED BY RESIDENTS

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Dec. 26.—(AP)—House by house Manville, Wyo., is being divested of its homes and business structures.

Property owners have been moving buildings out of town at the rate of two or three a week since bonds issued by the municipality were defaulted. The mayor of Manville appealed to the state attorney general but was advised there was nothing in the Wyoming law to prevent a man from moving his house.

Manville once was a thriving little town. It slumped, however, and extensive municipal improvements for which the bonds were issued, went into disuse. A large hotel built recently was moved nearly 100 miles to another town. Some buildings are being moved just outside the city limits.

There are now between 100 and 125 houses left in Manville, many of them unoccupied, and the population of the town is barely 300. During its boom days the population was more than 2,000.

150 PERSONS ENDANGERED WHEN FLOOR COLLAPSED

LANCASTER, Pa., Dec. 26.—(AP)—The lives of 150 people attending a card party on the second floor of the American Legion home at Quarryville, near here, were endangered tonight, when the roof of the building collapsed and fell to the second floor. The second floor weakened and threw the crowd to the first floor.

Rescue workers immediately began removing the debris in an effort to rescue the crowd which was caught in the ruins.

Doctors from Quarryville and surrounding towns were called to treat the injured while they were being removed from the structure by firemen and Boy Scouts.

Practically every family in Quarryville was represented at the card party.

The debris buried the crowd. Firemen and Boy Scouts immediately began extricating the injured.

Mrs. Frank Forbes and Mrs. Carrie Haverstick, both 35, were found to be suffering from severe injuries. They had both been playing cards on the second floor. They with the other injured were taken to physicians offices for treatment.

BODY OF SOLDIER WAS FOUND IN FIELD

DELAWARE CITY, Del., Dec. 26—(AP)—The body of Arthur Cline, 21, a soldier of the first engineers at Fort DuPont, with two bullet wounds in the head, was found late today in a field near here. His home was in Amsterdam, N. Y.

Police believe he was slain on the highway and then dragged down a steep embankment through a hedge into the field. The body was found by John Rush, 19, of this city, who was hunting rabbits.

Cline had been granted a ten days leave to visit his parents in Amsterdam over the holiday. He left the fort Tuesday afternoon.

Robbery, the authorities said, probably was the motive for the slaying.

Cline's father was said to be a blind poet.

LINK'S MURDERS WITH HOLD-UP AT DINNER FOR MAGISTRATE

NEW YORK, Dec. 26—(AP)—A year ago July 1 Frankie Yale was killed. Last June 24 Frank Marlow was "taken for a ride." December 7 a dinner party being given for Magistrate Albert Vitale was held up.

Today the two unsolved gangster murders and the holdup of the dinner for the city magistrate were linked together, all because a detective lost his pistol.

The holdup was "faked," Police Inspector Joseph J. Donovan testified today at the departmental trial of Detective Arthur Johnson under charges of conduct unbecoming an officer and consorting with criminals, growing out of the publicity given the loss of his pistol. What the holdup men wanted, Donovan said, was a contract for the killing of Yale and Marlow, signed by a Bronx racketeer and on which $15,000 was due.

The contract, he said, was in the pocket of a "man from Chicago" who, lulled into a sense of false security, walked into the trap the New York slickers had set for him.

As Inspector Donovan told it, Yale and Marlow, who had many packets, had been poaching on preserves Terranova claimed as his own. Terranova didn't like it. He got in touch with some friends in Chicago who agreed—for $20,000—to get the two men out of his way. He paid them $5,000 on account.

Yale, driving along a sedate Brooklyn street a year ago last summer, was suddenly forced to the curb by another car and a hail of bullets and pistols, sawed off shotguns and sub-machine guns poured in through his coupe window. They buried him in a $15,000 casket.

The night of June 23, this year, Marlow was dining with friends in a Broadway cafe. He walked to the corner with three men and entered an automobile. The next morning his body, two bullet wounds in the head, was found in an isolated Long Island road.

Eventually the Chicago man wanted his $15,000 and didn't want to wait any longer. The New York racketeers couldn't kill him and take the contract for they knew, as he warned them, that if he came to harm it wouldn't be healthy for them.

On the night of Dec. 7 the man from Chicago was in town, with the contract in his pocket. They could pay, he said, or he would mail the contract and an explanatory letter to Police Commissioner Whalen.

Honor For President-Elect Rubio Of Mex.

President Hoover Ignored Precedent in Calling at the Mexican Embassy.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.— (AP) — President Hoover ignored precedent today to honor Pascual Ortiz Rubio, the president-elect of Mexico.

With Mrs. Hoover, he visited the next chief executive of the republic to the south and Senora De Ortiz Rubio at the Mexican embassy. A call at the white house by the Mexican visitors had preceded.

It was the first time in history that a president of the United States had left the white house so to honor a president-elect. The act was a formal acknowledgment of like courtesies extended to Mr. Hoover when he toured South America as a president-elect last year.

Senor Ortiz Rubio and his suite arrived at noon by train from Baltimore, where he spent the last two weeks under medical treatment at Johns Hopkins hospital. Military honors ordinarily reserved for governmental heads were paid him at the union station, on his four-mile drive through the city and at the Mexican embassy, where he will stay for four days with his wife and their three small children.

His call at the white house and Mr. Hoover's to the Mexican embassy followed. Mrs. Hoover subsequently entertained Senora De Ortiz Rubio at tea in the executive mansion while the governing board of the Pan-American union, headed by Secretary Stimson, who had met the Mexican party at the train, entertained Senor Ortiz Rubio at a reception in the Pan-American Union building.

There the future president of Mexico told the ambassadors and ministers of the 20 Latin republics of America that Ambassador Manuel C. Tellez had been instructed to continue working in the interests of a program which will tend to solidify the ties that unite the countries of the American continent.

Senor Ortiz Rubio said Mexico always had been in favor of a closer union among the countries of America and therefore sympathized with the Pan-American movement. He expressed appreciation for the cordial welcome he had received.

Secretary Stimson welcomed the distinguished Mexican guest in his capacity as chairman of the governing board.

Counsel For Tunney Holds For Judgment

Homer S. Cummings Objects to Withdrawal of $500,000 Suit.

HARTFORD, Dec. 26.—(AP) — Mrs. Katherine King Fogarty, divorcee of Fort Worth, Aex., and New York city, through her counsel, today signed a stipulation in which she agreed that her $500,000 breach of promise suit against James J. (Gene) Tunney, former heavyweight champion of the world, should be decided in court tomorrow in favor of the man who toppled the mighty Jack Dempsey defeated Tom Heeney, and retired with a million or more dollars.

Cloaked in legal phraseology, the stipulation agreed that a motion for a judgment on her suit and Tunney's cross complaint, would be uncontested in superior court in Bridgeport tomorrow, and that an injunction restraining her from evey prosecuting a similar claim should issue against her. Col. Lewis Field signed the stipulation for Mrs. Fogarty, here today.

Indications that the suit, filed in Bridgeport last May, while the former champion was abroad with his wife, nee Polly Lauder, of Greenwich, Conn., was about to collapse came last Friday, when Frank L. Wiler, of Mrs. Fogarty's counsel, asked the court for permission to quit the case as her representative. After it had been granted, he announced receipt of a letter from the woman authorizing a withdrawal of the action.

Tunney's counsel, Homer S. Cummings, of Stamford, would not listen to a withdrawal insisting upon a judgment of the merits of the claim. He filed a motion for a judgment, which will be argued tomorrow before Judge Carl Foster.

If Judge Foster grants the motion, which, in view of the stipulation it seems very likely he will, the victory will be Tunney's.

Such a judgment would uphold his denials of her allegations that he promised to marry her in Hot Springs, Ark., in 1925, and his contentions that she prosecuted the claim solely to traduce his character and extort money. Further, if the injunction is granted, Mrs. Fogarty would be restrained from bringing a similar suit.

Gene, however, still would face a $500,000 alienation of affectiona suit filed by the woman's husband, John S. Fogarty, once a Fort Worth plumber. But this action may also come to an end. Counsel for both sides have held conferences giving rise to such reports.

LARGEST SINGLE REFUND, CARNEGIE STEEL CO. $25,847,259

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—(AP)—John D. Rockefeller, Mary Pickford and thousands of individuals and firms figuratively rubbed elbows in a treasury department report to congress made public today which listed refunds allowed by the government on taxes collected through error in the fiscal year of 1929.

The report covered refunds ranging from items of $500 to individuals, companies and estates in every section of the Union, to a single refund of $25,847,259 to the Carnegie Steel company, the largest single beneficiary recorded in the report.

Some of the refunds already had been published, having come under a recent law requiring publication of the names of beneficiaries and the amounts accruing to them as soon as the refunds are made. But by far the majority of the thousands of names and amounts listed fell under the old law requiring them to be lumped into an annual report, which this year covered the 48 states and Hawaii.

Outstanding among western states whose citizens received large returns on erroneously collected taxes was California, home of the motion picture and subsidiary industries which were overtaxed to the extent of many millions. Mary Pickford alone, of the Los Angeles motion picture colony, was refunded $10,163.

Illinois, Pennsylvania and New York furnished the government with its heaviest tax refund burden in the middle west and east. Florida led all southern states in over-assessments for 1929.

Railroads and steel mills alone accounted for more than $26,000,000 tax refunds in Pennsylvania, while Chicago firms and industries accounted for scores of refund items to Illinois running into more than $100,000 each.

Insurance companies in Massachusetts and Connecticut brought millions of refund money into the eastern states, while New York city refunds alone amounted to more than the combined refunds of whole blocks of western and southern states.

The whimsy of error was revealed in the report, which showed numerous internationally known individuals and companies receiving a variety of refunds. John D. Rockefeller, one of the richest men in the world, was overtaxed $157,227; Daniel Guggenheim, of New York, $8,811, while the William Waldorf Astor trust was beneficiary in a refund of $3,456,828.

Among those receiving refunds of more than $1,000,000 taxes collected erroneously during the fiscal year of 1929 were: The Marine Securities company of Chicago, $1,054,295; the Hancock Mutual Life Insurance company of Boston, $1,117,349; W. R. Grace and company, New York, $3,510,449; P. Lorrilard company, New York, $1,627,501; William P. Clyde, estate, Brooklyn, $1,404,930; the Central Leather company, New York, $1,104,849; Mrs. Alice G. Kales, of Detroit, $3,134,780; the Standard Oil company, at Louisville, Ky., $2,614,552; the Prudential Beneft Life Insurance company of Newark, $1,075,361; and the Botany Worsted mills of Passaic, N. J., $1,007,770.

Three items of more than $1,000,000 were refunded to the alien property custodian at Washington for taxes collected in Maryland on estates confiscated during the World war. The eventual beneficiaries of these refunds were: E. Merck, Garnstadt, Germany, $1,398,227, and $1,087,422 each for Carl Duisburg, Christian Hiss and Rudolph Mann, all of whom now live in Leverkufen, Germany.

The treasury report showed a total of refunds for the fiscal year of 1929 of approximately $190,000,000 an increase of $48,000,000 over the total for 1928. Estimates for next year were placed at $150,000,000.

MARRIAGE ENDS COURTSHIP OF MORE THAN 50 YEARS

PARIS, Mo., Dec. 26—(AP)—Miss Willie Hayden and Robert Sprinkle were quietly married in Moberly, Mo., yesterday and tonight were on their way to honeymoon in Florida.

The prosaic announcement ended a courtship of more than 50 years for the couple who promised faithfulness in grammar school and lived up to their respective word though each has celebrated more than seventy birthdays.

Sprinkle, who carried his wife's books home from school in Granville, a little community 12 miles away, left as a youth after promising undying affection for her while he made his fortune. She also agreed to wait. The bridegroom and his brother, dreaming of the wealth and adventure promised by the golden west, went to work on a Montana ranch and together homesteaded a tract from their joint savings and prospered.

Now Sprinkle is regarded as a millionaire sheep and cattle rancher in Chinook, Mont., while Mrs. Sprinkle is a retired business woman, after having owned and operated her own millinery store for more than 30 years.

$10,000 FOR ARREST OF FIEND WHO SEWED UP DOG'S MOUTH

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 26—(AP)—Rewards for information leading to arrest of the person who sewed up the mouth of a small dog and released the animal to starve to death had mounted to more than $10,000 tonight, the Humane society announced.

MOTHER AND INFANT SON PERISHED IN THE WOODS

HUNTSVILLE, Ala., Dec. 26—(AP)—After wandering in the snow for four days on the slopes of Sharp's mountain, Mrs. Frank Marcum and her infant son succumbed last Sunday, it was learned here today. Minnie Marcum, who with her mother, a younger sister and infant brother started from here December 17, to spend the Christmas holidays at their mountain home on the mountain, 25 miles from Huntsville, today told the story of the party being lost and the death from exposure of her mother and infant brother, four days later.

A report of the tragedy was brought from the snow-covered mountain today by a runner, the first to make his way through the heavy snow. Doctors and an ambulance were dispatched from the snow-covered mountain today by a runner, the first to make his way through the heavy snow. Doctors and an ambulance were dispatched from here to administer to the girl and her seven year old sister Pearl.

The bodies of the mother and infant boy were found in a hollow log, three-quarters of a mile from the Marcum home, by the father, Frank Marcum, who retraced his daughter's footprints through the snow to the point where the mother and young boy collapsed from exhaustion after four days of wandering in the bitter cold. They were placed in the log by Minnie to shield them from the cold.

Minnie said she left Huntsville with her mother, brother and sister in an automobile. At the base of the mountain they left the machine to walk up the mountain trail, a distance of three miles.

They became lost, she said, the trail being invisible from the heavy snow. They wandered about, she said, through Thursday, Friday and Saturday. On Sunday the mother fell exhausted and died within a few minutes. The infant boy died shortly afterward.

LOCAL POSTOFFICE OFFICIALS REST AFTER RECORD RUSH

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 26.—Postal authorities and employes took their first breath of relief this afternoon since the record-smashing mail rush overtook them some ten days ago. With the completion of late deliveries this afternoon, Postmaster Frank M. Smith and Assistant Postmaster Daniel A. Sullivan joined the 32 employes in taking stock of the strenuous days of the rush. The carriers had delivered everything that had come in up to Tuesday afternoon but were again laden today with another onrush over the holiday. With over 100 sacks of parcel post matter and a dozen pouches of first class mail already awaiting delivery, this morning brought another avalanche. Over a dozen more pouches of first class mail and 30 sacks of parcel post matter arrived on the Central Vermont railway boat train this morning. Fred LeClaire's two-ton truck was again commissioned for the forenoon.

Postmaster Smith found a general response to the plea to properly address and bind packages as far as local mail was concerned. Not one incoming package was found broken in the mail-sacks or pouches and but one remains undelivered. This package bears no address and contains a metal letter opener, considered by postal clerks as rather a suggestive gift to be left with them.

The average sale of stamps for the five days preceding Christmas was $750 per day. He was fined $100 and costs, including hospital expenses and doctors' bills. Bedard was unable to pay the total of $145.85. He spent the day at police headquarters here while friends tried to raise the money but, in view of their failure, he was taken to the county jail at Tolland this evening by Deputy Sheriff Harvey S. Collins of Columbia. Three relatives of Bedard were injured and four other members of his family were shaken up in the accident.

There he pleaded guilty to the charges of reckless driving and operating a car that was illegally registered. Wassel was on his way from New York to Worcester. DANIELSON

DANIELSON TEXTILE PLANTS NOT HIT BY DEPRESSION

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 26—In these closing days of 1929, Danielson and other parts of the town of Killingly has much to be thankful for as to the manner in which industry forged along during 1929. It has been a difficult year for textile manufacturers, yet plants have run better here than in the great majority of textile centers throughout New England. For some of the plants there has been very little profit during the twelve months; in some cases none. On the other hand, a bright spot here is the expansion of the business of Powdrell and Alexander and the striking increase in its earnings during the past twelve months.

Some plants have run irregularly here or on curtailed production schedules during the year, but as compared to many other places Danielson has been especially fortunate.

No Truth to Weeden Myth

The myth that Frank Weeden, who hung himself this week in his cell at Howard, R. I., was the criminal who forced Edward Pinkham, under threat of death to start to dig a grave near Westfield cemetery in which Pinkham was to be buried by Weeden still persists. A myth it is, pure and simple. Yet it has been repeatedly broadcast through the press of New England, following publication of the yarn as a feature story in a Boston Sunday newspaper. One Harrington, who had escaped from the state hospital at Norwich and who had lived hereabouts, is the man who threatened Pinkham and tried to force him to dig his own grave. Weeden had nothing to do with the affair, being in custody in Rhode Island at the time.

Mr. and Mrs. William Raymond of Brooklyn have announced the recent marriage of their daughter, Arline Louise, to George Henry Bradley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bradley of Plainfield, N. J., at Grace Episcopal church, Kearney, N. J.

Numbers of local bowling fans are planning to be in Hartford Saturday to witness the first games to be rolled by teams of star bowlers for a purse of $2,600. Frank Barber of the Casino alleys here will head the Connecticut All Stars against the Washington, D. C. All Stars. Six games are to be rolled in each city. Saturday at Hartford the singles will be rolled in the afternoon, the doubles in the evening.

It is understood that there are already filed several applications for appointments as census takers in Killingly. The nation-wide census is to be taken next spring, starting in April. Here in Killingly the census is expected to show a growth in population and that the figures for the town will be considerable in excess of the total shown by the 1920 census.

A few cars observed traveling through Danielson carried 1930 registration plates of the state of New York. Here in Connecticut use of the 1930 markers is not permitted until next Tuesday, December 31. Hundreds of the town's people have their new registrations on hand. Daily pilgrimages to Hartford or New London are the rule now, to get new registrations and to avoid the possibility of delay in handling mailed applications.

Friday afternoon the members of the Missionary society of the Baptist church are to meet with Mrs. Walter Stanton of Broad street. Work being done in the Philippines will be the basis of the program that is arranged, recitation, Hollis Hooper; song, by the school; recitation, Edward Petras; recitation, Ervil Petras; recitation, Michael Petras; recitation, Walter Reynolds; exercise by six girls; duet, The Bells of Christmas, Mary Doloff and Gertrude Miner.

It is expected that subscriptions for the new series of shares of the Danielson Building and Loan association will begin to come in numerously with the arrival of the first of the year. This is the series of which it is hoped and planned that 5,000 shares can be placed. The money is to be used to finance Danielson's building program for 50 new homes or more. Walter Anderson heads the general committee that will direct the campaign. There already is assurance that numbers of the shares will be taken by out of town subscribers. Like other issues of the Danielson Building and Loan association the shares will bear interest, making them a particularly good investment.

This evening various members of the Missionary Order of LaSalette gathered here to attend a banquet in honor of Rev. Anthelme Mollard, M. S., pastor of St. James' church, and who has just returned from a stay of several months in Europe. This is Fr. Mollard's silver jubilee year as a member of the priesthood. As a part of the jubilee observance there is to be a solemn high mass at the church Sunday morning.

Shoales; first council member, Mrs. Estella Talbot; second council member, Miss Saldie D. Fulton. The officers are to be installed on January 17, at which time the chaplain and the third council member will be elected.

Killingly members of Putnam lodge of Elks, as they have done for a number of years past in the name of the lodge, distributed a generous amount of Christmas cheer to needy families in Danielson, Dayville, Elmville and Attawaugan. Christmas baskets, laden with good things, were left at numbers of homes. The Elks also remembered every inmate at the Killingly town farm with a gift, presenting in some instances coats and sweaters.

While here today Frank Goldstein of Norwich announced the purchase, with his brother, Robert, of sixteen house lots from Nelson Gauthier and a small strip of land from Charles Phoenix. These lots all are located in the L'Homme street section, which has developed into one of the nicest residential sections in Danielson within the past few years. Mr. Goldstein said that a six-room cottage is to be built on one of the lots at once and that other houses are to be built later. This plan will be a further contribution to meeting Danielson's housing shortage.

The program of last evening's Christmas program at the Nazarene church was as follows: Song by the school; exercise, To Welcome Jesus; prayer, Rev. A. E. Gallup; recitation, The Star Points, Phyllis Reynolds; recitation, Helen Reynolds; recitation, Evangeline Rainville; piano solo, Gertrude Miner; exercise, The Christmas Bells, by four boys; recitation, A Gift, Ruth Barstow; recitation, Mary Doloff; recitation, Stella Kokat; recitation, Dorothy Rainville; song, Little Star of Bethlehem, junior class; recitation, Christmas Everywhere, Mertie Reynolds; exercise, We'll Never Be Too Old, five boys; recitation, Laura Reynolds; recitation, Star of Dawn, Gertrude Miner; recitation, Alice Reynolds; recitation, Sophie Petras; song, O, Clap, Clap the Hands; recitation, Little Master Bashful, George Richardson; recitation, Why Do Bells For Christmas Ring? PUTNAM

IMPRESSIVE FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR CAPT. W. J. JARVIS

PUTNAM, Dec. 26.—This morning hundreds of people from all walks of life attended the solemn high mass of requiem celebrated at St. Mary's church at nine o'clock for Captain of Police William J. Jarvis, who died Monday of pneumonia. Full military last rites were accorded.

Preceding the service at the church, the funeral procession formed at the late residence at 293 School street. Included in the various marching bodies which took part were: St. Mary's Boy Scout band, the headquarters company 43rd. Div., national guard, under the command of Captain J. J. McGarry, platoon of state police officers from the barracks at Danielson, in charge of Sergt. George L. Gardner, and from the local police in charge of Officer Benoni Durand, acting as honorary bearers; delegations from the Albert J. Breault post, V. F. W., and the Anselm Mayotte post, American Legion, members of the Putnam fire department, in charge of Deputy Chief Alphonse Dumas, delegations from the Putnam Lodge of Elks, Canadian Athletic club, Putnam Aerie Eagles, Franco-American society, Foresters of America and Cargill council, Knights of Columbus. The foreign war veterans were attired in their war time uniforms and marched behind the colors guarded by two armed soldiers. The legion members donned post-war time regalia marching under their colors. Schubert's Funeral March was played by the Boy Scout band as the cortege proceeded to the church. A long train of automobiles followed the marching units, making the line of march almost a mile in length. On arrival at the church, the somber gray casket was carried between two lanes of soldiers who stood at attention. The active bearers were: Representative Leon A. Talbot, Chief Ralph E. Thurston, of the fire department; Archibald MacDonald, Jr., deputy judge of city court; Police Committeeman Leon J. Delisle, representing the common council; Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart, commandant of the state police barracks at Danielson, and Sergeant George H. Liard, acting captain of police.

The church was filled to its capacity by men women and children of every creed and walk of life, who had crowded the church to pay their last tribute of respect to the dead police official. Among the prominent city and visiting police officials assembled were: Mayor Charles A. Richard and members of the city council; Police Commissioner John M. Dean, Captain Frank McLean and staff of officers of the Willimantic police department, Chief Merrill R. Keith of Whitinsville, Mass. police, Chief Ulric Breault of the Southbridge department, Chief James H. Hetherman of the Webster, Mass. police Deputy Chief John C. Templeman of Webster policy, County Detective Rowe H. Wheeler of Willimantic, State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford of this city, Chief George Linton of Norwich and staff of officers of that department, Miss Katherine Byrne, vice chairman of the republican state central committee; members of the county, senatorial district republican organizations and committees, members of the legislature, past and present, all who joined in a last sad tribute to a friend.

At nine o'clock, Rev. U. O. Bellerose celebrated a solemn high mass of requiem. He was assisted by Rev. J. E. Jegou, chaplain of the provincial house of the Sisters of the Holy Ghost, deacon, and Rev. Ernest J. Boileau, curate, sub-deacon. The ceremony of the mass was sad but impressive and brought tears to the eyes of many in the congregation. The Gregorian chant was sung by the Harper male quartet of Woonsocket and Providence. As the casket was borne into the church, Miss Rose Metras, organist, played Schubert's Funeral March as a processional. "Pie Jesu" was the hymn sung at the offertory and "O Meritum" was heard at the elevation. The voices of the choristers were very fine and added to the impressiveness of the ritualistic services. During the mass a guard of honor, composed of uniformed members of the Albert J. Breault post, V. F. W., stood by the casket which was draped with the American flag.

At the close of the mass, Rev. U. O. Bellerose descended to the sanctuary where the casket of Captain Jarvis reposed and delivered a beautiful eulogy in which he reviewed Captain Jarvis' short life, characterizing him as a "servant of servants who served his community well."

The procession formed again at the church and proceeded slowly to the grave at St. Mary's cemetery where committal services were held. Rev. Father Bellerose officiated. Before the casket was lowered to its final resting place, a firing squad of ex-soldiers, members of the Veterans post, fired three volleys after which two buglers sounded Taps. As the casket was lowered the colors were removed and presented to Mrs. Anna C. Jarvis, widow of the captain, by Arnest J. Durand, commander of the Albert J. Breault post, a token of memory and esteem from the men with which her husband fought during his service in France.

The floral remembrances were magnificent, expressions of love from relatives, fraternal organizations, police departments, men in official life, clubs and close personal friends.

Thus the tribue paid this morning, by far the largest ever accorded an individual, closed the brief but brilliant career of Captain William Joseph Jarvis, a faithful servant, a dependable friend and a devoted son, husband and father.

A musical programme featured the entertainment bill this noon at the meeting of the Putnam Rotary club. A trio, composed of Mrs. E. L. Robinson, Miss Barber and Mrs. Emile Benoit, members of the choir at the Congregational church, and Rotarian William E. Wheason, bass, and a stringed ensemble composed of Miss Gertrude Warner, Miss Rich and Mrs. Torrey presented a number of delightful selections pertaining to the Christmas season. Rotarian Kenneth C. Sharpe presided at the piano throughout the programme.

Notice has been given of the plans for the consolidation of the Putnam plant with the New York shops of the New England Fur company. The officials of the fur concern, whose local plant is located on Main street, in disclosing their plans for consolidation stated that new stockholders have recently been admitted into the organization and following a meeting drastic changes in the manufacture of fur garments which have affected the industry during the past two years made it advisable for the removal of the local plant. About twenty-five employes will be affected by the plan which becomes effective shortly.

ALL IN CALIFORNIA BIG—EVEN THE LIES, WRITES ROSS

The last letter from the Ross tourists came by air mail and arrived in 72 hours from San Diego, from the Kirkland. It was dated Dec. 20. They are at 2309, Fifth avenue, San Diego. Mr. Ross writes:

The above will be our address for the next two months.

I am sitting in the sun out of doors (roof garden) about fifty feet from the ground and in the next yard is growing a spruce tree that reaches about 40 or 50 feet above this garden. The spruces at D. L. Phillips' house I have known for more than fifty years—from the old homestead those trees were a landmark. The tree that is near me now is about twice as tall as Daniel's trees.

In Balboa park are two lawn mowers clicking away. The grass is very green and the public is allowed to walk on the grass. I bought the morning paper from a barefoot boy. I asked him if his feet were cold. He said: "Early in the morning the pavements were cold."

From where I sit I can see the bay, and across Coronado Island I can see the ocean. In the bay I can count 14 ships of war, mostly destroyers and the submarines are more plentiful.

The city is full of sailors and marines. The officers' wives live in the city and in the evening the U. S. uniforms nearly equal the civilian dress.

There are many Mexicans here. I think most of the unskilled labor is Mexican. They are very dark brown in complexion (not black) with rather flat faces. A few Indians, their color is a reddish bronze, rather prominent nose and it is easy to tell an Indian by his walk, as his feet point straight forward.

The Japanese are easily distinguished by their size, rather small, in fact, undersized. They are quick and alert. The female Japanese are of a yellow peach complexion and are attractive like girls of the grammar school age. Yesterday, in front of the U. S. Grant hotel, two Japanese girls were carrying three babies in arms and were leading two children two years old. One of these girls sat down on the door step to visit. She was ordered off by the door man in his (blue coat, brass buttons and gold braid) official way. As she held in her arms two babies she had some trouble in getting up. I stepped forward and helped her to her feet. She was a woman although she appeared to be only a school girl. The door man said to me, "If you knew these people as well as I do you would not be lifting them around."

Then the Jewett City characteristic came out. I said, "I'd like to lift you with the toe of my boot into the middle of the street." Well he just laughed. I know that the Japanese are not very well liked in California. I see a good many of them in the sailor's uniform of the United States.

In my class in college were two Japs—one of them became an admiral in the navy of his country the other became a diplomat and was sent to Great Britain as counsel.

This city is filled with strangers, mostly from the middle west, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Minnesota. Of course they come from every state and a good many from Canada, British Columbia, Alberta, etc.

I met Walter Louis Palmer at the organ recital Sunday. He and his wife are staying at the "Belle Air," about a block from this house.

He comes here every winter. My friends, the Sheas, of East Main street, Jewett City, will tell you who he is and all about him and family. You see the Palmers of Eastern Connecticut are a fine set of people and I think they have reason to be proud of their name.

I have met but few of the natives. These men are not old, their hair is not grey, yet their faces are seamed with deep lines and the skin seems to be the texture of old leather. Ask Dr. Jennings if it is the constant sunshine that makes the men appear old before their time.

I'll have to write again and tell you about the flowers and fruits. Everything in California is big, even some of the lies beat anything in Connecticut.

CENTRAL VERMONT WELL SERVED

It will be a long time before the railroad consolidation plan will be ratified, and in all probability it will undergo much revision.

In connection with it there cannot fail to be much interest in this part of the country in the attitude which is taken by Professor Ripley of Harvard relative to the Central Vermont and the fact that the extension of its line from Palmer to Providence was never carried out. He is of the belief that it was a blow to the development of Rhode Island, that the work on which so much was spent never should have been abandoned and that even now the piece of road should be constructed. He believes that expansion of industry and port development would follow and that agrarian products from the middle west and Canada, as well as industrial products from the middle west, probably would be sent to the Rhode Island seaboard for export in large quantities.

This has always been the claim made in connection with that proposed extension but it seems to overlook the fact that the Central Vermont already has a port in southern New England, at New London. There is no need for that road, or the Canadian National, which now owns it, to wait for the construction of a line from Palmer to Providence in order to get the advantage of a shipping port open at all times. It has had that port for years and if the millions that were put into the extension that was planned and abandoned had been devoted to the improvement of the line between Palmer and New London there would be a much better line to this southern New England outlet. As it is, the money has gone up in smoke.

There is now no more reason for the extension than there ever was. The Central Vermont can land its freight today many miles nearer to New York than it would be at Providence, and it can unload it on piers ready for any foreign port to which it may be consigned, in as good a harbor as there is in New England, without the laying of an additional rail. It might be beneficial to Providence to have the extension built but from the rail standpoint the line from Canada is well served now. In view of the facilities it has, it has no reason to look further, or to throw more millions after those which are already gone. Why lay out more money on a dead horse?

SHIP SUBSIDIES

Because of the uncertainty which exists relative to the requirements under the law which was intended to favor the purchasers of government-owned merchant ships congress must act to clear it up.

Ships have been bought under the impression that mail-carrying contracts would be thrown in with them. Through such a subsidy, investors have been encouraged to enter this line of business, seeing in this source of revenue a chance to offer much better competition with ships of other countries. The law, however, calls for the awarding of the mail contracts to the lowest bidders. That would seem to be the right attitude to display, from a business standpoint, and yet when buyers have obtained lines at what are regarded as good prices for the ships under present circumstances only to find out that others can obtain the mail-carrying contracts by underbidding them it presents a situation that is disconcerting.

When it was brought to light that there was a situation where the government authorities could not award the mail contracts to purchasers of certain lines who made bids and purchases with that expectation, it became obligatory for congress to clear up the tangle. How long it will require is as uncertain as the weather but, with an amendment to the law prepared by Congressman White, which will authorize the granting of the indirect subsidy, there may be a fight because of the opposition which has always prevailed to subsidies, but it should disclose whether congress is disposed to look after the ships under the American flag and those who have bought its ships in response to the efforts to encourage private instead of public ownership of merchant vessels.

THE WHITE HOUSE FIRE

In connection with the fire in the executive offices of the white house at Washington there arises the question of restoring the building, whether the building where the fire was can be reconstructed and whether it ought to be.

Furthermore, there is brought to attention the seriousness of having records of a valuable character in a building of such construction that they may be endangered by fire at any time, and in connection with the alleged cause of the fire the oft-appearing excuse of defective wiring.

For years there was a demand made for the construction of a fireproof structure in Washington to take care of the valuable records that were stored in buildings which might at any time go up in smoke. It was recognized that they were not properly protected, that they could not be replaced if lost and that no safe place was provided for them. Still there was the willingness to continue taking the chance, that had been going on for years, that nothing would happen to them.

When the building where the fire was is to be reconditioned or another one built, it should be insisted either that fireproofing should be carried to such a limit that it will give protection against all ordinary causes, or that the electrical installation should be of such a character that there will be no chance of defects therein being responsible for fires in the future.

This office building was constructed some over a quarter of a century ago. Possibly there were not the same stringent safeguards surrounding construction work in the national capital then that there are now or that there ought to be in the light of experience, but there has certainly been shown the need of eliminating the possibility of any such reason for a fire prevailing again. Just because electrical installation is so often out of sight doesn't mean that "anything goes." At least it shouldn't, and certainly while defective wiring may be charged with more than it really should be as the cause of fires it is time to insist that such work should not be tolerated.

HELPING PORTO RICO

When Theodore Roosevelt went to Porto Rico as governor general of the island he made a hit with the people by addressing them in Spanish. That may seem a bit strange, in view of the fact that this is American territory and the Porto Ricans are American citizens, but it indicates the tenacity with which the people have clung to the old language.

Governor General Roosevelt has been making a survey of the island. He finds that its population is less than that in Connecticut, something over 1,300,000, and yet half of the population is illiterate. There are 2,144 school buildings with 4,470 class rooms and less than 221,000 school children attending. This means that less than half of those who should be getting an education are doing so. The situation is better than it was in days before it became American territory but it is not what it should be, and it goes to show how former influences still hold sway.

Getting Porto Rico from the position it was in under other control is more than an over-night process. It has to be admitted that conditions are better than they used to be but progress in that direction has not been as fast as it might have been. Serious handicaps have to be overcome, long-established conditions have to be changed and the importance of getting an education has to be impressed upon those who have for generations either had no ambition for an education or couldn't get one.

Porto Rico has likewise suffered as the result of hurricane conditions. This on top of all its other handicaps has contributed to the picture which is now presented of inadequately fed, clothed and housed people, and the plea for their assistance.

Interest in these islanders cannot fail to be taken. They are Americans, in whom we are interested. The better the conditions under which they live the better Americans they will be. From the survey which has been made of the island conditions by the new governor and the interest which he is displaying in their welfare and the improvement of their condition, it is not improbable that they will be aroused to a better realization of the contribution they can make to their own welfare. Constructive efforts, within as well as without, can do much to help the Porto Ricans.

RUSSIA RESPONDS

Although diplomatic relations do not exist between the United States and Russia, that did not prevent the sending of appeals to Moscow for such assistance as Russian aviators may give in the search for Lieutenant Elelson and his mechanic, who have been missing for six weeks, and are believed to be down on the polar ice. Neither did it stand in the way of the soviet government doing as requested.

It was recognized in both instances as an emergency in which human life is involved and both have acted in an effort to meet the situation. Whether the missing fliers will be found is uncertain. Just where they are is indefinite. It is known where they were bound and some idea prevails as to where they may be found. Being to the north of Siberia, the soviet government is in a position to render the best assistance in conducting a search which will involve less difficulties and mean quicker action.

Russia had no reason to let the failure of diplomatic relations stand in the way of doing whatever it can to save these lives. It could not disregard the help that was extended to the Russian aviators that flew across the Pacific to this country and the reception that was given them at various points along their route. They were aware that the fact that they were Russians did not serve to prevent due recognition of their accomplishments.

The same is true now. Aviators have gone on errands of mercy into the far north. What has happened to them is not known. The need is to locate them and give whatever succor is required if they are alive. The Russian government graciously recognizes its duty under the circumstances and it is to be hoped that the combined search will be successful.

THE MODERN TENDENCY

Violet Hemingway stood looking at a group of modern paintings in a room near the entrance of the Art institute when suddenly she became aware than Donald Wright, a good-looking new boarder at Mrs. Spiffin's select boarding house, was standing next to her, taking in the same exhibit.

Although they'd had occasion to smile at each other several times their conversation had been limited to "Please pass the sugar" and similar remarks anent breakfast or supper in the presence of a half-dozen others who graced Mrs. Spiffin's select table, and Violet didn't know much about Don—not nearly as much as she would like to know—but now her opportunity had arrived. He was interested in art—and, she remembered with glee, she recently had finished a book on "The Modern Tendency."

"Hello," she smiled up at him as their eyes met. "Aren't you just crazy about this modern stuff?"

"Why, yes—yes, I believe so, very much, thank you," he stammered, obviously embarrassed. Art-loving people like artists usually were shy and diffident and she resolved to put him at his ease as soon as possible.

"This group is by Glasse, isn't it?" she remarked after a hurried glance into the corner of the picture. "His color is so—so harmonious, don' you think?"

"Oh, yes, I should say so," he answered. "Do you follow his work very much?" he asked with real interest.

"Well," she considered, wrinkling her forehead in thought. "I believe I prefer that group over there." And she indicated an artist's conception of a bunch of bananas. "The—the three dimensions are handled very well, wouldn't you say?"

"Yes, indeed," he said, also puckering his brow thoughtfully. "The atmosphere is really quite—ah—quite remarkable."

"And the rhythm," she commented, remembering a phrase in "The Modern Tendency." "Isn't the rhythm stimulating?"

"Just what I was thinking," he answered, scrutinizing the painting thoughtfully. "And the—the elan vital—" She smiled at him encouragingly. "The elan vital," he went on happily, "is so pronounced!" She sighed a joyous sigh. They were getting on splendidly together.

She hoped he noticed her ready responses—her quick perceptions. Really, she hadn't half appreciated him at Mrs. Spiffin's. His hands were white, his fingers tapering and long.

And he was thinking, "Pretty as a picture! Wonder if I dare ask her for a date."

Conversing loquaciously on subjects relating to art and painting, they passed from one exhibit to another, quite oblivious to the passing of time. It was nearly three hours later that they arrived at the main entrance and stood before a poster announcing that just thirty minutes hence Prof. Arthur Sommers Dilwiddle would give a comprehensive interpretation of the modern mode in Chinese art motives in the hall below.

"Would you care to go?" asked Don, eagerly."

"Oh, I'd love it" answered Violet smiling.

After sitting on hard chairs for half an hour waiting for the lecture to begin, Violet and Donald found themselves prudently listening to a dissertation of Chinese art motives.

"Whenever a Sinologue is at a loss as to the proper classification of a modern symbol," droned the speaker on the platform, "he designates it under the title of the 'Hundred Antiques' where it subsides until the coming of the next Sinologue——"

Violet glanced at Don, but he was intently listening, it seemed. An hour passed; then another.

"The most frequent and best authenticated symbols in this armoire——"droned on the voice of the professor. Violet, stifling a yawn, glanced up again and as she did so Donald saw that yawn.

"Let's go," he whispered violently.

Squeezing past a row of people eagerly drinking up the professor's erudite discourse, Violet and Don presently found themselves in the less oppressively profound air of the main hall again.

"Say, that was pretty awful, wasn't it?" said the relieved young man. "Let's never come in here again."

"But," gasped Violet, "I—I thought you wanted to go there. I thought you were an artist!"

"An artist!" exclaimed Don. "Heavens, no! I was waiting to see the president of the board. My firm's trying to get the new plumbing contract here. But I thought you were one."

"Heavens no!" laughed Violet, much relieved. "I was standing in here waiting for it to stop raining."

"That's great!" said Donald, seizing her arm. "Quick, let's get out of here and go to a movie!"—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26—(AP)— It is among the strange ways of congress that most of the house debate over President Hoover's proposal to send a commission to study the Haitian problems appears as part of consideration of the agricultural appropriation vbill.

By the time the house management was ready with its resolution and special rule for direct handling of the commission project with its $50,000 expense clause, most of the house experts and near experts on Haiti had shot their verbal bolts.

One of the things that surprised the Bystander was the number of members on the insular affairs committee of the house who disclosed that they had paid one or more visits to Haiti between sessions.

As the Philippine independence argument also was started in this same advance fashion, quite a bit of information as to committee members who have even wandered that far away in connection with their duties also was recorded.

Paid His Way.

"And all at my own expense," was the way Dyer of Missouri put it, telling of his four trips to the island including one last summer. The others were not so specific.

In the course of the scattering debate, Underhill of Massachusetts, one of those who have visited Haiti more than once, contributed this story which might well be added to the lore of the marine corps.

He had traveled over a new road through the jungle, 280 miles out of Port-au-Prince, he said, to a point where the way crossed a stream. There a body of Haitian road workers had refused to push into the jungle beyond, despite a trained and well armed escort of more than a score of native constabulary, through fear that "Champaign," a bandit, had returned to his nearby haunts.

Marines or Nothing.

"There were some 25 gendarmes—native guard—all armed with carbines, pistols and machetes, yet these 60 workers refused to follow them into the jungle," Underwood said.

"They said they should have guard of United States marines. None were available, but some few miles back down the road there was a sergeant in charge of a road gang. I think his name was Casey.

"At any rate, they sent for him. He arrived, a typical marine—puttees, flannel shirt, slouch hat cocked on one side of his head. The situation was explained to him: that the workers would not go into the jungle with this protection of 25 well armed and well equipped men.

"He simply stepped to the front, having nothing but his service revolver and his cartridge belt.

"'Come on; let's go,' the sergeant said.

"And without a moment's hesitation those 60 workers followed him into the jungle."

Commenting on his own tale, Underhill said:

"It is confidence the people have in the marines that has made the place safe for the peasants."

And the house applauded, loudly.

YOUR HEALTH

Holiday Hygiene.

By Robert Olesen, M. D., U. S. Public Health Service, Belfast, Ireland,
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Many people seem to consider the Christmas season a fine time to relax their ordinary attention to intelligent principles of hygiene. Under the stimulus of pleasant company, diversified entertainment and rich food they commit foolish sins against the rules of simple living. As a result, there are many unnecessary illnesses, some trivial but painful, others more serious.

Christmas is usually the occasion of the greatest celebration of the entire year. The holiday is ordinary distinguished by home-coming events when, literally and figuratively, the fatted calf is killed. Unfortunately the need for regular hours of sleep, adequate exercise and proper food is largely overlooked at these times. And over indulgence in rich food, with its inevitable ill effects, is just as bad a mistake at Christmas as at any other time.

The habit of keeping late hours may not in itself wholly account for such disagreeable effects as drowsiness, headache and downright prostration, for many late hours are spent in overheated and ill-ventilated rooms. But certainly the hygienic rule that adequate sleep is desirable during the festive season is frequently violated, especially when children are concerned. Splendid radio programs will be available during the holidays. But do not keep consistently late hours even for the most excellent broadcasts.

In many sections of the country the weather is cold during the Christmas season. Consequently many homes are overheated and provision for humidification is not made at the very time when adequate air motion, ample humidity and proper temperature are especially needed in churches, halls and theatres, as well as private homes.

During the holidays people often think they are too busy to exercise. Nevertheless some form of outdoor activity will aid and is needed in counteracting the detrimental influences incident to holiday festivities. Dancing is a justly popular diversion. But do not make the mistake of dancing too long or in poorly ventilated places, or while improperly clothed.

So, to sum up:—
don't overeat
don't undersleep
don't trade germs in hot, dry stuffy rooms get some exercise
dress intelligently.

After all, holiday hygiene is merely an adaptation to a special occasion of those principles of right living which are well known and generally observed at ordinary times.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Spooky Is Unpopular

In practice I have found that might Regards but little wrong or right.
—Spooky the Screech Owl.

No one can be such a noisy scolder as Happy Jack the Squirrel has proved himself to be, without attracting the attention of every one within hearing. Sammy Jay was one of the first to arrive. "For goodness sake, Happy Jack, what's the matter with you?" he demanded.

Happy Jack pointed to the doorway of the new house up in the maple tree. There sat Spooky the Screech Owl. His yellow eyes fairly glared. "He stole my house!" cried Happy Jack.

"Why don't you take it away from him?" demanded Sammy Jay, who, had it been his house, certainly would have tried to take it away.

"How can I?" replied Happy Jack. "I haven't a chance against those claws and that bill."

"Wait until he comes out. Then you can slip in and keep it," advised Sammy Jay. Then in his turn Sammy began to scream "Thief!" Thief! Thief!"

It wasn't long before Drummer the Woodpecker, Tommy Tit the Chickadee, Yank Yank the Nuthatch, Billy the English Sparrow, Speckles the

They all had something to say to Spooky the Screech Owl, and that something was unpleasant

Starling and Chatterer the Red Squirrel were all in or around that big maple tree in Farmer Brown's front yard. They all had something to say to Spooky the Screech Owl and that something was very unpleasant. Spooky didn't appear to mind in the least. Perhaps it was because he was used to it. He simply sat there in his doorway and now and then snapped his bill, or perhaps hissed. Every time he did this all the other little people shouted louder than ever. There certainly was a great racket out there in Farmer Brown's front yard for so early in the morning.

Presently, around the corner of the house came Black Pussy. Black Pussy was out to find out what all this racket was about. She knew that something was exciting all these little people. What it was she didn't much care as long as they all kept excited. Black Pussy has learned that when the attention of the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows is held by something or some one else she may have a chance to steal up on one of them.

At once Black Pussy saw that whatever it was that was causing all this fuss it was up in the maple tree. No one was looking anywhere excepting up in the maple tree. Chatterer the Red Squirrel was down on the ground at the foot of the tree. Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel was only a little way up in the tree. The feathered folk were flying back and forth, in and out of the tree. Black Pussy fixed her eyes on Chatterer the Red Squirrel. Crouching until she almost touched the ground, she crept forward step by step.

She was almost within jumping distance of Chatterer when Sammy Jay the sharp-eyed spied her. With a wild screech Sammy darted down and actually struck her with his bill. At the same instant Chatterer sprang to the trunk of that tree and scampered up out of harm's way. Then all the feathered folk joined Sammy Jay in screaming at and pecking at Black Pussy until at last Black Pussy was glad to turn tail and run.

So between the fuss they made over Spooky the Screech Owl and the fuss they made over Black Pussy the Cat, Happy Jack Squirrel, Chatterer and their feathered neighbors made such a racket that finally Farmer Brown's Boy had to come to see what it was all about.

Stories That Recall Others

Too Bad

When Jane was told that the little neighbor boy was moving away, she seemed to be very unhappy.

"Just think, mother," said Jane, "Santa Claus will never find him."

Measurements Taken

May is in her first year at a school where a respirational infection was prevalent. A physician was called to examine the throats of the youngsters and have tests made for the suspected trouble. On going home, May said:

"Mother, Dr. D. was at school this morning to measure our mouths."

GETS REVENGE ON THE GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY

SUPERIOR, Wis., Dec. 26.—(AP)—As two cities look on and snicker, Oscar Nelson, 63, today is getting revenge from the Great Northern railway. He is hitting the road where it hurts—the pocketbook.

Three years ago, Oscar was halted when he tried to walk across the Great Northern's inter-state bridge to Duluth, Minn., because he didn't have a nickel toll. He's been peeved ever since.

But winter and the Superior and Duluth city councils unknowingly conspired to help Oscar get even.

St. Louis bay froze over. The two governing bodies agreed the other should stand the expense of smoothing off the ice hummocks that motorists might cross the bay instead of using the bridge.

Here Oscar comes in. Armed with a new pick and shovel, he went to work without pay on the rough places Christmas day. He completed the job today.

Motorists, rejoicing at the chance to cross without paying a toll, started using Oscar's road in preference to the Great Northern.

The New Stenographer

I have a new stenographer—she came to work today
She told me that she wrote the latest system;
Two hundred words a minute seemed to her, she said, like play
And word for word at that—she never missed 'em!
I gave her some dictation—a letter to a man—
And this, as I remember it, was how the letter ran:

"Dear Sir—I have your favor, and in reply would state
That I accept the offer in yours of recent date.
I wish to say, however, that under no condition
Can I afford to think of your free lance proposition;

I shall begin tomorrow to turn the matter out;
The copy will be ready by August 10th, about.
Material of this nature should not be rushed unduly.
Thanking you for your favor, I am yours, very truly."

She took it down in shorthand with apparent ease and grace;
She didn't call me back all in a flurry.
Thought I: "At last I have a girl worth keeping 'round the place."
Then said: "Now write it out—you needn't hurry."
The typewriter she tackled—now and then she struck a key.
And after thirty minutes this is what she handed me:

"Deer Sir: I have the Fesver and in a Pile I Sit
And I expect the Offer as you have reasoned it.
I wish to see, however, That under any condition

SAXONY CORPORATION TAKES OVER WINCHESTER MILLS IN THAMESVILLE

The Saxony corporation, newly organized, has taken over the shoddy plant of the American Woolen company, formerly known as the Winchester Woolen company, it was learned Thursday night. The plant, located in Thamesville, was built in 1916 by the Kaplans of New York and at that time was known as the finest shoddy mill in the world. It is today still the most modern plant of its kind and probably the finest shoddy plant in this country.

Samuel C. Deane, who was superintendent of the Winchester for the American Woolen Co. since its purchase by them, and prior to that associated with the Winchester Woolen Co. under the Kaplans, will continue as manager of the mill with the new corporation. Mr. Deane will start operations on January 1st and has already on hand a considerable volume of business.

Very strong financial interests are back of this enterprise and he will have every facility both financially and by way of equipment and personnel to conduct the mill most successfully. It is noteworthy that this mill has been successfully run ever since it was built and everything points to a continuance of its prosperity.

The Saxony corporation will manufacture a full line of wool substitutes and re-worked wools and will also do carbonizing, picking, carding, dyeing and every other process required in the preparation of raw material for woolen mills, blanket mills, knitting and yarn mills and felt mills. The mill will also accommodate all woolen mills within the state and of the neighboring states in the matter of doing custom work for them.

There will be a separate department which will do picking, carding, carbonizing, stripping and dyeing of all materials for the mills of Connecticut and neighboring states on a custom basis. The modern facilities of the Winchester are such that the preparation of the raw material can be done at very low cost and all woolen mills in Connecticut and neighboring states are cordially invited to avail themselves of the splendid opportunity afforded by these facilities.

CONNECTICUT INCOME TAXES WERE $20,899,642

The current report of the commissioner of internal revenue reveals that individual income tax payers in Connecticut paid $20,899,642.81 into the coffers of the United States internal revenue bureau during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1929, or an increase of nearly 24 per cent over the previous 12-month period.

Likewise, total corporation income tax payments in the state during 1929 amounted to $19,339,366.55, or an increase of slightly more than 19 per cent over the previous fiscal year. The total income tax receipts for Connecticut in 1929 were $40,259,002.66 compared with $34,381,187.14 in 1928 or an increase of slightly less than 17 per cent.

Connecticut is the second largest income tax payer in New England, led only by Massachusetts. The Nutmeg state's total payments nearly double the combined receipts of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Rhode Island. Connecticut in 1929 ranks eleventh in the entire country in tax receipts, having stepped up from twelfth place in 1928, figures show.

A perusal of the commissioner's report divulges some interesting and encouraging figures concerning Connecticut's financial status. With 1.33 per cent of the total population of the United States this state pays 1.44 per cent of the country's tax. The capita tax in Connecticut, twenty-eighth in population is $25.32, exceeded only by 10 other states in the union. These figures show an increase over those of 1928, when this state paid only 1.29 per cent of the nation's income tax, and a per capita tax of but $21.66.

In 1928 individual income tax receipts amounted to $16,893,465.88 and corporation taxes totalled $17,487,721.26, the commissioner's tables reveal. While Connecticut showed an increase of nearly 17 per cent in its income tax payments in 1929 over 1928, other New England states lagged considerably. Massachusetts, the wealthiest state in the New England group, showed only an 11 per cent increase. New York showed a 15 per cent rise from the 1928 figures and the average increase throughout the country was only seven per cent.

During 1929 more legitimate liquor dispensers came into existence in Connecticut, the report shows. Paying $25 for licenses for a year, or proportionate fees for periods of less than 12 months, dealers paid $13,542.95 to the collector of internal revenue, compared to $11,798.90 in 1928. The number of liquor wholesalers, on the other hand, decreased in 1929.

Under the caption "admission to theatres, etc," a sharp decrease is shown in receipts here and throughout the country. In 1928 a one cent tax for every 10 per cent charge more than 75 cents was demanded by the government, while the minimum theatre tax charge in 1929 was raised to tickets costing more than $3. Hence, receipts for this item in Connecticut dropped from $225,168.34 to $47,725.13.

The popularity of night clubs or road houses in Connecticut is either on the wane, or proprietors have reduced their prices, or there are fewer such rendezvous. In 1928 the government collected taxes amounting to $5,937.69, but during 1929 only $4,806.19 was received.

On the other hand, athletic, social and sporting clubs here are flourishing and enlarging their membership rolls considerably, the commissioner's report indicates. In 1928 a 10 per cent tax was laid on all annual club dues amounting to more than $10. This law was changed in 1929 to include only dues amounting to more than $25, but in spite of this "relief," the receipts show a decided increase. Revenue from this source in 1928 was $238,827.53, compared with a total of $259,038.34 during 1929.

Connecticut leads the United States in the manufacture of firearms, coming within a slight margin of producing half of the supply of the entire country. The munitions factories of this state paid a tax of $81,179.73 on fire arms produced in 1929, and as this tax is 10 per cent, it places the state's production of this commodity at considerably more than $1,000,000, inasmuch as pistols and revolvers purchased by the United States government, municipalities and for export are not subject to a tax. Massachusetts, paying a firearms tax of $74,007.22, is second to Connecticut in this industry.

Collections under the federal prohibition laws, including assessments after criminal prosecution of liquor law violators, amounted to $4,650 in 1929 and $13,354.08 in 1928.

Nationally speaking, smokers are laying aside fat, round cigars and pipes for cigarettes. Sales of cigarettes increased approximately eight per cent from 1927 to 1928, and 12 per cent in 1929 over 1928. Meanwhile, usage of cigars decreased materially. Strange as it may seem, snuff increased in popularity in 1928, but dropped back a trifle in 1929. Cigarettes rolled by the smoker with prepared paper did likewise. Chewing and smoking tobacco has shown a decrease for the past two years.

Expenses of the internal revenue service in this state during the recently closed federal year showed a decrease of more than 10 per cent over the previous year. In 1929 the total expenses in Connecticut were $433,610.52, while in 1928 they amounted to $485,430.51.

Throughout the country there were 5,593 employes in service on June 30, 1929 compared with 5,920 on June 30, 1928. However, salaries increased with $15,227,850 being dispensed under that item in 1929, compared with salaries amounting to $15,129,530.

LOCAL MAN DIED SUDDENLY LAST NIGHT

A colored man by the name of Brown died in his sleep Thursday night at the home of James Wilbur, No. 5 North Thames street. Death was caused from endocarditis, according to Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve, medical examiner, who investigated. Mr. Brown retired early Thursday evening and later one of the members of the family tried to awaken him. It was then discovered that he had died in his sleep.

COMMISSIONER STOECKEL GIVES ADVICE TO PEDESTRIANS

In an article on advice to pedestrians, in the December bulletin of the state motor vehicle department, Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel, says:

"The pedestrian must remember that his chances are not good in a collision with a motor vehicle. It is discreet to waive "equal rights" rather than contest them with a machine.

"He must use appliances and conveniences provided for his safety. (It is a well-known fact that some pedestrians walk in the road at points where there are sidewalks.)

"He should not go into the highway and dodge cars to try to save time.

"He should watch carefully for cars turning in from one side or another at corners.

"He should not allow himself to be distracted when crossing streets by anything—conversation, curiosity, business worries or pleasurable anticipations—but concentrate on crossing safely.

"On the open highway, he should walk against traffic as a rule, but should use common sense at places where it may be safer to walk with it.

"On the highway at night, he should wear some article of light-colored clothing which will be easily seen in the headlights of an approaching vehicle.

"He should not cross between blocks when crossing protection a little farther ahead means safety.

"He must use common sense at all times."

"The operator of an automobile," the commissioner says, "is required, in turn, to keep a careful and prudent look-out for pedestrians. In such places as they appear at any time, the duty to watch for them is constant. The operator is bound to see persons in the street ahead of him and to have his machine under control. It is conceded that a motor vehicle is a dangerous instrumentality and its operation must be attended with great caution, especially with reference to pedestrians. The operator is required to recognize conditions which intensify risks, such as the circumstances of many pedestrians being in the street, rainy or icy road conditions, the dangers at crossing and at places where it is possible for a pedestrian to appear suddenly in the path."

Commissioner Stoeckel presents the pedestrian problem as an acute question in Connecticut because of heavy traffic in a comparatively limited area. He believes that the "automobile is not entitled to the exhaustive consideration it has had in matters of traffic management." He points to a resident population of 1,650,000 or more, with only 320,000 registering motor vehicles and a shifting non-resident population of about 10 per cent. He mentions also the 35,000 horses, 70,000 dogs, the uncertain number of cattle, pigs, cats, chickens, bicycles, tractors, trolleys and trains at grade crossings which add to the total of highway users.

"It seems right," the commissioner says in concluding his article "that official thought should be given to the problems of the pedestrian. By this it is not meant that participation in pedestrian care is directly due from the state. The state is not, under existing law and appropriations, assume such an obligation. Such participation ought to be left to the towns. Wherever in any town there is a location over which many pedestrians have to pass, as for instance places where school children go to and from school, sidewalks and regular crossings ought to be contemplated and installed as quickly as possible. They should be sufficiently policed so that pedestrians, especially children, are made to use them.

"The management of pedestrian traffic has thus far been assumed by cities and towns. It appears that this is the ideal disposition of this activity because a pedestrian is not usually apt to be far from home and he has his own needs in mind better than anyone else. He can gather his friends and neighbors, who are in similar situation, and call for the building of sidewalks and the establishment of safety rules for his own particular welfare."

WHAT IS TO BECOME OF THE UNPRODUCTIVE FARM LAND.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

When the present grizzly-bearded old John Farmer was tow-headed "Little Johnnie," some 75 years ago, his world was made up of his father's and the neighbors' farms, filling the bowl of the mountain-rimmed valley in which the farm-houses stood and up whose sides the farms themselves climbed towards the forested ridges.

It was a region of fairly fertile soil, more than half of it arable or mowable, well watered by numerous small springs and their trout-brook effluents, and sheltered from ordinary high winds by the mountain walls.

It produced, under cultivation, fairly good crops of wheat and rye and oats and potatoes, better than average "timothy" hay which was then in great demand for horse fodder; exceptionally good crops of hard "flint corn," and varying somewhat with location and conditions, such fruits as apples, pears, plums, peaches, cherries, currants both red and white, and such gooseberries as haven't been seen by this deponent for fifty years.

All the residents were farmers or farmers' helpers. To be sure there were two or three small factories, four or five carpenters or blacksmith's shops, and half-a-dozen grist-mills in the town. But the factory hands and the carpenters and the blacksmiths and the millers were all farmers "on the side" whenever they could get away from the demands of their special trades.

The result was that all the good land of the valley, and some that admittedly wasn't so good, was under cultivation. Some of the surplus potatoes and corn and fruit falsed were exported, but the larger part of every farm's product was consumed on the farm itself. Families were big—those with a dozen children were not unusual,—cows were kept to make butter and cheese, and yards full of hogs to furnish meat for the smokehouses and the mess barrels. Only the higher ranges of the hills and the rocky, uncultivable "knolls" were given over to forest. They supplied the fuel and the timber needed on the farms from year to year.

But practically all the arable land was kept under the plow in some form of rotation, and made to produce good crops of grains or grasses or fruits. The lower hill slopes afforded nice pasturage.

It was a busy little valley. There wasn't much money in it; so far as I can recall there wasn't a single "plug" hat in it; the houses weren't half of them even painted; the "menfolks" wore overalls and the other sex wore calico or gingham. But everybody was adequately fed and sufficiently clothed and fully occupied. There were few idle hands for Satan to incite to mischief or crime. All were kept busy from the time when Johnny got old enough to bring in the daily armfuls of wood to the big kitchen, or Jenny became expert enough to be trusted with sewing up a patch-work quilt cover, till Johnnie and Jennie, in their order, took flight from the parent nest to establish homes of their own.

I don't know whether the people of that day were any happier than they are now or not. I know they accepted a good many of what we should call hardships as matters of course, and went without many items of comfort which we class as present day necessities.

But.

They were fruitful, and they replenished the earth, and they subdued it. They lived up to their lights. They turned the wilderness, if not into a garden, at least into productive farmland.

The particular glen or valley into which Johnnie Farmer was born was but a small one. It was owned by about a dozen individual farmers few of them with holdings of more than a hundred acres. But with rare exceptions every workable acre each farmer owned was put to use and made to produce. Moreover, as their fathers and grandfathers had done, they kept clearing up new portions of the forest to be added to the arable lands. It was an era of agricultural growth and development.

Today not a single holding in the valley is being managed as a farm. Not one. Nine of the 12 have been bought up by city folk and turned into summer camps where the golf club takes place of the hoe and the tennis racket of the scythe and the polo stick of the axe in the short summer bungalows and the empty and deserted bungalows are locked and shuttered up through the long winters. Two of the dozen old houses are occupied by descendants of their builders who find it more profitable and easier to work for the city folk for wages than to continue independent farming. One is still held by Old John Farmer himself, whose age and various disabilities prevent him from further active farming. His own "back-lots" and those of all the other former farms are growing up first to weeds, then to brush, and then to woods. Indeed the same is true of even the old corn lands and meadows.

The distaste of the younger people for hard work and their hankerings for the more attainable luxuries of city life have drawn them away from the farms, so that there is no longer manpower available to carry them on. The competition of the west has made grain-growing unprofitable. The substitution of the auto for the horse has shut up the market for fine hay. The importation of fruits from Florida and California and the very antipodes has narrowed the market for native varieties.

If a neighbor farmer were still active and strong and able to get sufficient hired help at payable wages, what could he produce that would renumerate him?

There is still a call for fresh garden truck. Sensible people will always prefer green peas and green corn and asparagus and tomatoes and cucumbers, etc., picked the same day they are offered for sale, to stale vegetables imported from Lord knows where and handled by Lord knows how many dirty fingers.

But right there comes in the question of help. It takes as many hands and as many hours labor to care for ten acres of garden as for a hundred acres of farm. Also, it demands a rather more intelligent labor. The art of handling a garden hoe with skill and productive effect is much more difficult to learn than the trick of running a tractor. The almost automatic machine does its work of itself, requiring only to be steered up to the work. But the hand-tool does nothing except what the expert hands holding it drive it to doing. Supply it with fuel and the gasoline engine will run, whether you keep your hand on the throttle or not, but the hoe won't do a thing if your hand relaxes its grip.

And men who can proficiently handle the common hoes are already skuse and getting skusee every day. Anyway, truck gardening calls for a rather different preparation and capacity than general farming. Not all the land of any farm is adapted to it; not any of the land of some farms. Nor are markets always within easy reach. Nor are all men gifted with that fondness for "putering" which is the first characteristic of the born gardener.

What, then, is going to be done with or about the hugh areas of once productive farm-land which are now reverting to weeds and bushes?

Seems to me the only sensible and practicable answer is "Let 'em revert!"

There's no sense in farmers being the only cases to fight against the manifest tendencies of the time. When, if ever, it gets so that the dwindling rural population can't supply food to the cities, then farming will once more become a profitable occupation and the excess population of the cities will flow farmwards in sheer self protection.

Until that time comes why not raise Christmas trees and telephone poles? They take more than one season to attain salable proportions, it is true. But by judicious thinning and replantings they ought to produce something almost every year after they've really begun to grow.

Forest conservation strikes one old farmer as about the most practical thing for the next generation to take up. By forest conservation I do not meant the buying of hundreds or thousands of nursery-grown little trees, to the emolument of nurserymen, chiefly. I mean the prudent and skillful care of such woods as we all have. The farmer with any fairly good woodland can every year do it real service by pruning away the undesirable growths and thinning out the clumps which are springing up too crowded to ensure ample individual development.

This will not only add a few dollars to his present income, but tend to increase the value of his invested capital.

One thing is sure, the New England farmer has got to accept the fact that the days of the old farming have passed. He's got to meet an entirely new set of conditions, and live or die according as he fits himself and his work to them.

Some will find their opportunity in truck-gardening. Others, who aren't adapted to that rather pernickety work, may, perhaps, discover something of value to be had from their hitherto neglected forests.

Because dad and grand-dad ignored them except for fuel supply is not convincing reason why son or grandson should continue to do so.

I have known men who could hoe cabbage so fast and so well that it seemed as if the very cabbage-heads nodded approval of them, yet who couldn't cut and pile up a cord of wood in a whole day. And I've known men who could "put up" three cords in a day and would rather do it than hoe a single row of cabbage. Every man to his job.

There's no gold mine in any New England forest. Forestry and lumbering are hardly like to get any man rich quick. Neither is farming.

THE FARMER.

CHAS. C. MAXSON TAXED $100 AND COSTS IN AUTO CASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Dec. 26—Charles C. Maxson, 51, of 56 Elm street, Stonington, pleaded guilty in a special session of Stonington town court Thursday morning before Judge William A. Wilcox, to a charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, Christmas night, in Pawcatuck. Patrolman George L. Seidell of Pawcatuck, testified to being called to the Grills service station at 9:30 p. m. where the Buick sedan driven by Maxson crashed into the rear of the Dodge auto of Thomas Patton, of Westerly, parked near the curb. Even with the brakes set, the Dodge car was driven 20 feet ahead and had two wheels broken, a bent fender, broken springs and twisted frame. He summoned Dr. John Champlin, Jr., of Westerly to examine Maxson. Dr. Champlin, Jr., testified that he found Maxson and his companion, John Loppez, also of Stonington under the influence of liquor. The accused stated that he had nothing to say. Judge Wilcox fined Maxson $100, on recommendation of Prosecutor Hammacher and to pay costs, which totalled $124.77.

Wilfred Higgins, 25, of New York and Providence, was before the court on two counts, charged by Officer W. Elmer McKenzie of Groton state police barracks, with driving an auto recklessly on the state road from New London to Westerly Dec. 24th; also with operating an auto without a license. He pleaded guilty to both counts. His arrest followed a collision of two autos when with three other occupants of the front seat, he drove a borrowed car and as a result of the collision sustained a broken nose. Others injured in the collision which occurred at Sutton's curve near Clark's Chowder house and for which the ambulance of the Westerly Sanitary corps was called to take them to the Rhode Island hospital, Providence, were Mr. Warmsley of Old Mystic and Mr. Allen of Wequetequock. Prosecutor Hammacher characterized it as an aggravated case. At the time of the crash, the Groton-Stonington passenger bus was proceeding westerly when Higgins drove his car on an icy street at a high rate of speed and without chains. The auto driven off the highway was a Chrysler owned by Edward B. McElroy; with him were his brother, James W., who had two ribs broken, and Robert Marcette, who sustained a broken collar bone. On the charge of reckless driving Judge Wilcox imposed a fine of $50 and costs, and on the charge of operating without a license, $10 and costs. Dr. A. H. Myers was called to give attention to the injured men before they were taken to the Rhode Island hospital.

John Loppez, 37, 2 Diving street, Stonington, pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication when he was in the auto crash with Maxson. He was fined $2 and costs, which totalled $12.47.

Arnold Vega, 51, of 21 Main street, Westerly, a weaver found by Police Officer George L. Seidell on Christmas night in the highway near the American Thread mill in an intoxicated condition and lodged in the Liberty street lockup, pleaded guilty to the charge. As he had funds coming to him he was paroled in the custody of the officer to secure the payment of the $2 fine and costs, totaling $19.72, imposed by Judge Wilcox.

POETRY FOR THE WIDEAWAKES

The Horses' Christmas

Come, all you folk of Boston town,
A pleasant thing to see;
Look yonder there out in the square—
The "Horses' Christmas Tree"
Is loaded down with Yuletide cheer,
A blessing in their work-filled year.

All you who walk the streets give pause
And ponder on this sight
You've often seen—this evergreen
Tree with its gifts bedight
For faithful horses, tired and old
Who daily plod through storm and cold.

They well deserve a Christmas feast.
Who needs one more than they
Who never shirk the hardest work
Assigned them day by day,
And whose reward is, at the best,
A little food, a few hours' rest?

The hundreds of these toiling beasts
Who will today rejoice
In warming food which they find good
Cannot to thanks give voice,
But every work-horse in the square
Will bless the donors for his share.

—Maude Wood Henry.

The Christmas Millionaire

I think 'at 'long 'bout Christmas time
Just bein' poor's a awful crime;
Here's me—ain't even got a dime—
Ain't got a nickel!
But, if I wuz a wealthy guy,
Had—say, a million layin' by—
I wouldn't let nobody sigh,
Not one tear trickle!

I'd round up all you kids an' say:
"It's gittin' close to Christmas Day—
W'at's money good fer anyway
If not to spend it?"
Say, we'd just head off down de street,
Buy all de gumdrops we could eat,
An' pie—an' everything dat's sweet—
But dat don't end it.

We'd do parades through all de stores,
Bum in an' out of all de doors,
An' see de gifts on all de floors
An' in de cases.
Den I'd say: "Fellers, I'm de guy
W'at's got de gold wherewith to buy
W'atever 'tis dat hits yer eye
In all dese places!"

I'd buy all gifts what tickles boys,
Get ev'ry sister too some toys—
Gee, all de grumps would cuss de noise
An' act disgusted.
Aw, well, ain't dreamin' dreams a fright?
I've spent my million bucks all right,
Skinned old man Santy out o' sight—
An' now I'm busted.

—William Herschell, in Indianapolis News.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO WIDE-AWAKES

The wren is one of the better known birds of the feathered world. There are several families of wrens which include the Carolina, the house, the winter, the short-billed, and the long-billed marsh wren. In fact, there are nearly 30 species and sub-species throughout the United States and some one kind, at least, may be found in almost any part of the country.

The wren is small, somewhat the color of a mouse, and as she flits about in the bushes and hedges, reminds one somewhat of the mouse. She is seldom seen in the open country, for no long flights are taken, but confines herself to the bushes. If one is quiet, one may observe this little bird as she moves about and may be able to come very close without interfering with the home life.

The wren is a great singer and produces some very loud songs for a creature so small. When the nest is made and Mrs. Wren is busily engaged in incubation, Mr. Wren sits outside close by, and with his head thrown back, sings until it seems he will split himself with song, his little body shaking all over with vibration.

The male wren is dark brown in color, barred somewhat with black. His mate is practically the same color and markings, but is somewhat smaller. The female selects the home and looks after all the domestic details. In food habits the wren is entirely beneficial, for the food is almost entirely animal.

Of a great number of stomachs examined, 9 per cent of the contents was made up of insects or their allies and only two per cent was vegetable food. The nest is made up of sticks, grass, string, moss and almost any material available. The wren is not particular as to the place of building, but will take up its abode in boxes, tin cans and crevices.

The nest is kept clean and tidy and free from vermin. Six to eight eggs are laid. They are of a creamy color and so thickly spotted with brown that the whole egg appears tinged.

STORIES WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES

Kansas Girl Writes.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am a little Kansas girl and I would like to tell some of the Connecticut children about the Scissor-Tailed Flycatcher.

The Scissor-Tailed Flycatcher breeds from Kansas south to Texas, so I know many of the Connecticut children do not know this bird.

This bird is a dull, gray color, with a red patch on its crown and orange-red under wings. It has a very long forked or scissor like tail. The pretty creature is the most graceful in appearance of the Flycatcher family. Its habits are very much like those of the Kingbird. As it swings through the air in pursuit of insects it frequently opens and shuts its scissor-like tail. They are usually found in open country or on the borders of woodlands.

They build quite a large nest which is made of all kinds of trash, such as twigs, grasses, paper, and rags; placed in any kind of a tree or bush and at any height. The four or five creamy white eggs are spotted with brown.

I hope I have given the members of the Wide-Awake Circle a clear picture of the Scissor-Tailed Flycatcher and how it lives.

My First Experience.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first story to you and I hope you will like it. My experience was on a boat. I was invited on a two weeks' vacation with my uncle on his house boat. My uncle told my cousin and I to go on the roof of the boat while he and my aunt cleaned up downstairs. He handed my cousin and I up two chairs so we could sit down. I sat down for a while but soon grew tired of sitting down, so I got up to browse around, as my cousin was sleepy, so she fell fast asleep. I was looking around when I spied a large, round rope which was high enough for me to reach easily, so I got a hold of it and got my feet off the floor so I could get a good swing, when all of a sudden I heard a great whistle. It startled my cousin so she woke up with a cry. My uncle came up to find out the trouble. When I told him what I had done he laughed at me and told me it was the fire bell. My, what a surprise it was to know that I had given a false alarm.

Tiny Bird Dies.

Dear Uncle Jed: One cold day last week, my sister and I were playing outdoors when we saw something jumping around in the snow. We ran to see what it was, and what do you suppose we saw? It was a tiny bird. The top of his head was orange and his wings were orange and black, while his body and tail were grey. I took him home and put him in a box and gave him something to eat and water to drink. He was so weak that he died the next morning. I was very sorry he died. That morning I buried him in our garden.

STELLA SDZKOWSKI, Age 11.
North Franklin.

Our Flag

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my second letter to the Wide-Awake Circle. I will write what I learned about our flag.

In the year 1777 Betsey Ross made the first flag in Philadelphia. The first star represents Delaware. It was placed on the bluefield in 1787. The first flag had 13 stars and 13 stripes. Today it has 48 stars, one for each state. The design was taken from the coat of arms of Washington. The dimensions of the blue field is one-third the length of the flag, and extends to the bottom of the fourth stripe from the top.

The last star represents Arizona. It was placed on the blue field in 1912. The flag that is almost like ours is that of Liberia.

Attends Birthday Party

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about a party I went to last week. My little boy friend Eton called me up and asked me to come to his birthday party at 4 o'clock. He was six years old. All that day I could hardly wait for school to be over. When I got to my friend's house some of the other children were already there. We played many games and then we had good things to eat. When it was time to go home, I was sorry to go as I was having such a good time.

BETTY HYMAN, Age 7.

Does Christmas Shopping

Dear Uncle Jed: I have finished reading the prize books that you gave me and found them to be very interesting. So I want to win more books. I like writing to the Wide Awake circle. This time I am going to tell you about my Christmas shopping. Saturday, my friend Eleanor, and I went to Norwich to do some Christmas shopping. We did our shopping in the five and ten cent store. We each had a dollar to spend. Of course this was not enough to get all of our friends presents but we bought a present for our teacher, Mr. Briggs, and a present for the boy or girl whose names we drew in school. I drew a boy's name so I bought a present which I thought suitable for him. I also bought some other presents for my mother, father and sisters and bought some Christmas cards for my friends. We had a good time selecting the gifts and we enjoyed the ride.

We went about one o'clock in the afternoon and came home about three o'clock.

I hope that all the Wide Awakes will like to read my letter and hope that it is good enough to get one of those wonderful books as I like to read.

ALICE FAULKNER, age 13.
Leonard Bridge.

My Two Kittens

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second time I have written to you. I am going to tell you a story about my two kittens. I have two little kittens and they are very cute. One of them is all gray and the other is gray and white like its mother. My cousin wanted one but my aunt said that she could not take it home with her. They are very small and it is cute to watch them play. When they run you would think that rats were running across the floor. I hope the Wide-awakes will enjoy my story.

DOROTHY KOCH, age 10.

My Cousin Elinor

Dear Uncle Jed: Her name is Elinor and she is very sweet in manner and is very pretty. She is not bashful of people, but timid. She will look at you for a very long time before speaking. But when she does, her sweet little voice wins you over. You're in love with her though she is only two.

She is usually dressed in white. Her long brown locks fall over her shoulders very pretty. She has little color but has very large brown eyes. She is very frail though not sickly.

But, best of all, she is my cousin and I love her. She is easily contented with anything. She keeps a gift unusually long.

VIRGINIA MEECH, age 12.
Norwich

My Pet Dog

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second time I have written to you. I hope you and the Wide Awake circle will enjoy my story. I am going to tell you about my small pet dog.

I have a pet dog and his name is Brownie. He stands on his hind legs and sits down. We like to make him put his head between his front paws, but he doesn't do that very often. He likes to play with my little kitten. I like Brownie very much.

LILLIAN JODOIN, aged 12.
Plainfield.

Preparing For Christmas

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my third letter to you. I am going to tell you about the preparation our class is making for Christmas. We have appointed committees for each part of our program. There are five or six pupils on each committee. We have chosen Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus. The committees will prepare plays, songs and poems for our program. We are going to have our room decorated with pictures, colored crepe paper and original drawings. We are also going to have refreshments. I hope we will have a good time. I shall tell you about our wonderful party in another letter.

BENJAMIN ADLER.
Colchester.

Christmas Is Coming

Dear Uncle Jed: When you were small did you wonder if you would wake up and find a Christmas tree in the parlor? Many times when I was small I used to stay up and wait for Santa to come down the chimney. Last year I asked my mother if we were going to have a Christmas tree and she said, "Ask Santa." but I didn't do it. We all like Christmas but we all like the turkey dinner better than all. So I hope you and all who read this letter have a merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Double Feature Bill At Palace

Kelly, a tough, tough gob from a destroyer, is on shore leave with some of his pals. Much to the disgust of the bunch, a petty officer orders all of them to attend a social at the Y. W. C. A. But Kelly soon finds that life hasn't played him such a dirty trick after all, and the audience finds more things to laugh at than anyone would suppose could be crowded into one feature picture, however lengthy. That is the situation which starts off the picture, "Navy Blues," which begins at the Palace theatre here Saturday and is continued through Tuesday evening of next week.

There's a great cast in "Navy Blues," a cast that includes William Haines, Anita Page, Karl Dane, J. C. Nugent, Edythe Chapman and Wade Boteler, stars all. It is a cast worthy of the picture, for here truly is one of the great comedies of the year, a comedy in which there is neither a dull moment nor a dull line. It is pure relith all the way.

WILLIAM HAINES and KARL DANE in "NAVY BLUES"

Today for the last time the Palace theatre presents the voluptuous Lupe Velez in that flaming epic of passion and romance, "Tiger Rose." With Lupe are to be found Monte Blue, H. B. Warner, Grant Withers and others. It is a pulsating, palpitating drama—a drama which is made up of the fierceness of the jungle beast compounded with the yielding softness of the heart of a women in love. Steel and velvet have been mixed to make this matchless picture.

The second half of the bill, "This Thing Called Love," is a feature in itself being a combination of comedy, drama and everything else demanded by the theatre-going public. It can be said without fear of contradiction that the film carries more laughs than any production ever shown here.

Once again the management of the Palace reminds friends and patrons of the theatre that a big time is going to be had here on New Year's eve. A great picture, 8 big vaudeville novelty acts and an orchestra are to be provided for this midnight gambol. In addition lots of noise makers and other aids to merriment will be furnished. The features which the manager has prepared for the occasion include "So Long Letty!" an admirably daring play starring Charlotte Greenwood in one of her best roles.

On Saturday morning, the Palace will give a special children's show. The Norwich Lions are cooperating and the local Boy Scouts have kindly offered to be of service in seeing that the children have safe conduct across the streets on their way to and from the theatre.

Broadway Theatre

Who said New York gets 'em first? L'il old Norwich beats New York and all the other small towns a mile in the premiere showing at the Broadway tomorrow of "Hot for Paris," Victor McLaglen's latest, fastest and friskiest talking picture. Rated as thirty degrees hotter than "The Cock-eyed World," this picture is released tomorrow in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and the other "key cities," and by good showmanship on the part of the Broadway management, in Norwich also. Previews indicate that asbestos-rimmed eyeglasses will be needed to peek at some of the hectic scenes in Victor's visit to the capital of Funland—Paree. He is assisted in the riotous fun-making by Fifi D'Orsay—and is she French?—born in Paris and never got over it!—and El Brendel, that screamingly funny Swede, with Polly Moran adding to the hilarity. Picture McLaglen and his dumb pal winning a cool million dollars in the Calcutta Sweepstakes—and with no place but Paris to spend it in. There's as tough a break as two salty sailors ever got! Vic is the rough, tough mate of an Australian windjammer sailing to Havre, and Brendel is ship's cook. Landing, they hear the lottery broker's agent asking for Vic, in an attempt to hand him the million, but fearing that it is a trick of the gendarmes to jail them for previous escapade, they take it on the run, and from then on, the fun is fast and furious, with more speed every minute. Fifi D'Orsay is a delectable French miss, a combination of Bordoni and Mitzi, and she adds fuel to the mounting flames of fun, a score or more of dainty mademoiselles assisting her nobly. The surrounding program is equally peppy, with Taylor Holmes in "He Did His Best" a featured comedy of a young husband who promises his pal to look after the latter's wife during his week's absence on a business trip!—fireworks! And Lillian Roth, that little dynamo of vaudeville, is screened with a red-hot jazz band in "Raising the Roof"—and she does. The latest Paramount Sound News concludes an ideal entertainment program, which is bound to play to S. R. O. for the engagement.

FRANKLIN

When the Worthy Cooking club met Friday evening with the leader, Mrs. Capshaw, Miss Elizabeth G. Grover, assistant county club agent, was present. Plans were discussed for a play. It was voted to consolidate the cooking and canning clubs. Christmas gifts were exchanged among the members. Misses Rose and Mary Carboni accompanied the girls on their guitars for the singing of Christmas carols and club songs.

The Christmas pageant, "No Room at the Inn" was successfully presented Sunday morning at the Franklin Congregational church, under direction of Rev. John D. Waldron.

When the New London county 4-H club members broadcast from station WCAC at Storrs Monday evening, Franklin was represented by 17 members. Only the outstanding club members all over the county were selected to broadcast. The program included club songs, talks and selections by the Lewis trio. Frances Lamb gave an account of her trip to Chicago and Mary Idzkowski spoke on that Thousand Jar Canning club. Other speakers were Hollis Cummings of Lebanon, Winifred Burdick of Preston and Paul Holdredge of Ledyard. Marian Robinson was song leader with Ruth Robinson at the piano. Previous to the broadcast, the club members were served a delicious supper at the college dining hall with A. J. Brundage, state club leader, and Miss Elsie Trabue assistant state club leader, as special guests. Randolph W. Whaples, county club agent, and Miss Elizabeth Grover, assistant county club agent, accompanied the group. From Franklin were: Vera Johnson, Henrietta Szezpaniak, Barbara Rogers, Mary Manning, Mildred Manning, Ruth Robinson, Marian Robinson, Edna Lamb, Frances Lamb and Mary Idzkowski, Sevario La Terra, Irving Bowers, Alton Browning, William Browning, Tony Carboni, Nathaniel Manning and Arnold Manning.

A Cosy Room Improvement club was organized Saturday afternoon at the home of the leader, Miss Florence Rockwood. This is the first room improvement club in the county.

UNION

A dairy meeting, under the auspices of Tolland County Farm bureau, was held at the town hall at Union Center Wednesday evening, Dec. 18. The speaker was A. R. Merrill, dairy specialist of the extension department of Connecticut Agricultural college. County Agent Ernest E. Tucker of Rockville, accompanied Mr. Merrill. There was a good attendance, considering that the evening was stormy. Several came from Stafford.

Schools closed Friday, Dec. 20, for a vacation of two weeks. It had been expected that there would be a vacation of only one week. When Supervisor Calvin Stanley held a teachers' meeting at the Rock Meadow schoolhouse Friday afternoon, he announced that the vacation would be two weeks—until Jan. 6.

Christmas exercises, with trees, at the local schools were enjoyed Friday evening, Dec. 20. The teachers, Miss Grace Robinson and Miss Helen Hutchins, have done excellent work since the schools opened in September.

Among young people who are at home for the Chrigtmas vacation are Miss Evangeline Horton and Miss Emma Gaudett, students at Stafford high school, and Randolph Barrows, student at Suffield school.

Mr. and Mrs. Clare Gaudette, their two children, and Mrs. Catherine Potter of South Willington, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Heck Sunday.

Miss Mary E. Agard, teacher in Stratford, and Miss Florence L. Barrows, librarian in Cold Spring Harbor, Long Island, are spending the vacation at their homes here.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Palmer of Hartford were in town Sunday last.

BLACK HILL

Mrs. John Clarke was leader of the C. E. meeting Sunday evening.

The pupils of the local school with children of the Sunday school gave a Christmas entertainment in the church Friday evening. There was a tree with gifts, oranges and candy for all. The children have two plays, recitations and shadow pictures, which were much enjoyed by a large audience.

DECISIVE BOOST IN STOCK PRICES WAS CAUSED BY REVIVAL OF BULL TRADING

NEW YORK, Dec. 26—(AP)—Holiday cheer appeared to have revived the bull party as trading was resumed on the stock market today. Shares prices were given the most decisive boost of the past fortnight. Trading, however, was but moderately accelerated. Only 2,576,740 shares were transferred.

The early transactions were small and somewhat hesitant, but disclosed that there had been no accumulation of tax selling orders over the holiday. Shorts hurried to cover their commitments, as professional speculators for the rise quickly took advantage of the situation to send prices higher, concentrating their efforts in some of the swift moving utilities.

Credit continued to tighten, in keeping with the normal year end tendencies. Call money touched 6 per cent, the highest rate since mid-November, after renewing at 5 1-2. Banks called some $40,000,000 in loans. The flow of funds normally turns in the direction of New York after Christmas, but this is offset by "window dressing" by banks and corporations which withdraw their funds to make large cash balances appear in their annual statements.

The weekly brokerage loan compilation disclosed a further reduction of $33,000,000, leaving a total of $3,328,000,000, the lowest since the first week of October, 1927. The minimum figure since publication of the compilation was begun four years ago was $3,403,000,000 in May, 1926, and the maximum, $6,804,000,000 on Oct. 2, last.

The federal reserve condition statements showed moderate increases in rediscounting and purchases of bills, evidently in an effort to stabilize conditions over the year end. The weekly gold movement statement showed that more than $16,000,000 was sent to France late last week, and that $11,000,000 in the metal had been earmarked for foreign account.

Business and trade reports indicated a further slackening of activity, in keeping with year end tendencies. November railway net operating income reports disclosed declines from the like month of last year, with a few notable exceptions, including Missouri Pacific, Missouri Kansas Texas and New Haven.

"Automotive Industries" estimated that freight car requirements for the motor industry during the next quarter will show a jump of 33 per cent from the current quarter, and a reduction of 7 per cent from the like period of the previous year. President Everitt of Montgomery Ward & Co. predicted that the first half of next year would not come up to the more optimistic expectations, but looked for a gradual revival of activity throughout the year.

Shares rising 4 to 3 points included Air Reduction, Allied Chemical, American Can, American Tobacco, American Water Works, Dyers, Columbian Carbon, General Electric, Johns Manville, Macy, Simmons, Standard Gas, Stone and Webster, Underwood Elliott, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, U. S. Steel and Westinghouse Electric.

Auburn Auto jumped 16 and Otis Elevator 15. Radio closed 3 points higher. Merchandising and motor shares were notably firmer. Anaconda sold up 2 points on declaration of the regular dividend. Some time ago an extra was announced, but recently there has been some apprehension of a reduction, in view of the slump in copper buying.

Weak spots were few. Chicago and Eastern Illinois, which has not traded for several weeks, sold at 15, a drop of 14 points from the previous sale and a new low for the year. Crex Carpet, National Bellas Hess preferred, American Ice preferred, National Surety, and Stone Sheffield, also dropped to new lows.

Cotton was a feature of the commodity markets, closing 40 to 55 cents a bale higher, in buying in response to reports of a better cotton goods situation. Wheat moved up nearly a cent a bushel in response to unfavorable weather reports.

Foreign exchanges were steady to firm, with the French franc mounting still higher, the cable rate establishing another 1929 peak at 3.95 5-16 cents.

Brown (to friend who has got into financial difficulties)—I see you still travel first class.

The Other—Yes, old man; if I travel second class I meet all my creditors.—Melbourne Paper.

"You lead the orchestra, sir?" asked the tired business man in the cabaret.

"I do," replied Prof. Jazzolo proudly.

"Then would you mind leading them out for a bit of air?"—Exchange.

The mild little man, who was inclined to deafness, had just concluded his dinner at a very smart restaurant.

He was preparing to leave when he noticed the orchestra was about to start playing once again. At the same moment an angry voice bellowed in his ear:

"Sir, remove that hat at once!"

The mild little man turned and faced the angry colonel on his left in astonishment.

"Pardon me," he said meekly, "are they playing the national anthem?"

"No, you idiot," roared the other—"it's my hat!"—From London Answers.

Reticence regarding age is a characteristic and privilege usually attributed to women; but not so in the British house of parliament. There are 102 male members of the new house of commons who have not, so far, confided their ages to Dod's Parliamentary Companion, an official handbook. Seventy-nine of them are labor members, 16 are conservatives, six are liberals and one is an independent. Of the 14 women members, nine claim the privilege and do not state their ages.

On the third day of his leave, Gray endeavored in the face of heavy seas to return to the light in Casco bay, about ten miles east of Portland Headlight, but was forced to return. As soon as he was ashore he contracted for a motor boat to take him to his light the next day.

PLAINFIELD PROS CLASH FOR SECOND TIME TONIGHT WITH BOSTON WHIRLWINDS

Plainfield	Whirlwinds
Brusso, rf	Crotty, rf
Kasper, lf	Riordan, lf
Conway, c	Martin, c
Williams, rg	Kiley, rg
Bernot, lg	Morley, lg

Strengthened by the presence of Leo Martin in their lineup the Boston Whirlwinds come to Plainfield this evening to seek revenge on the Plainfield Pros for the overtime victory the Pros snatched from them two weeks ago. Manager "Fiddle" Morley of the Whirlwinds is far from satisfied with the result of the game two weeks ago and is out to administer a sound drubbing to the Pros this evening. To do this he has persuaded Leo Martin, who, at the end of last season hung up his basketball togs for good, to return to the court for this one game.

Plainfield, since beating the Whirlwinds in the overtime period, feel confident that they can repeat and turn the trick so quickly that any overtime periods will be unnecessary. The Pros have been sailing along very smoothly and intend to continue their uninterrupted cruise through the professional basketball seas of New England. They are playing a game that is equal to any of the professional teams in the country and a game which is bringing home victories for the home folks.

There will be a fast preliminary between the Buddies and a fast eastern Connecticut team. There will be dancing after the main game. The preliminary is slated for 8 o'clock while the main game goes on an hour later.

BARBER AND DUGAS TO BOWL WITH ALL-STATE TEAM

"Chip" Dugas, the grand old sportsman of Taftville, and Frankie Barber of Danielson, eastern Connecticut's premier bowler, will be members of the Connecticut All-Stars in the $3,600 match with the Washington, D. C. All-Stars at Hartford on Saturday. Dugas and Barber will bowl with the five-man team but will not be entered in the doubles or singles. This match, which is a home and home affair, is billed as the world's duck-pin championship.

In the singles, which start at 2:15 Saturday at the Charter Oak alleys, Jack White meets Henry Campbell of Washington. Six strings will be bowled at Hartford and six more at Washington for a purse of $600.

The doubles will be between Maxie Rosenberg and Henry Campbell for Washington against Bill Tete and Carl Frisk for Connecticut. Five strings in each of the two cities constitute the match which is for a $1000.

The five-man match is for ten strings, five in Hartford and five at Washington for $1000. The Connecticut team is Jack White, Carl Frisk, Nick Trunsky, Joe Gacek, Fred Dugas, Jack Nelis, Bill Tate and Frank Barber. Washington team will be Ollie Facini, Maxie Rosenberg, Paul Harrison, Leo Rinaldi, George Friend, Joe Harrison, John Ward and Jack Walbourne.

WANDERERS AND INDEPENDENTS CLASH AT BALTIC TONIGHT

At the Baltic gym this evening the basketball fans of Baltic and vicinity will see one of the best games of the current season when the Baltic Wanderers take the floor against the Baltic Independents for the basketball title of Baltic. Several years ago the Wanderers were one of the crack basketball clubs of the eastern part of the state but they disbanded and in their stead the Baltic Independents sprang up. However, with the Christmas holidays in progress, many of the former players of the The Wanderers are in town and are determined to take some of the conceit from the younger aggregation.

Harry Collins, who managed the Wanderers in their hey-day, disputes the claim of the Indies that they are better than the Wanderers ever were and has arranged this game to prove his contention that the Indies have a lot to learn. Practically all the Wanderers will be in the line-up and all feel that they have one more good game left in them. The Wanderers will put the following in the field: Simoneau, Red Charron, Coady, T. Swanson and his brother, Rags, and the two Robitaille brothers. The Indies will have Gaucher, Charron, Viau, Blanchette, Wilcox, Depot and Deschamps. There will be a fast preliminary.

GRIFFITHS FACES TOUGH BOY IN RISKO TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Johnny Risko, of Cleveland, has it in his power again to break the hopes and spirit of another young aspirant for heavyweight honors.

The Cleveland baker boy will provide the test of fire and leather tomorrow night for Gerald Ambrose Griffiths in a ten-round tilt at Madison Square Garden. The winner will be among those present when the Garden nominates a rival for Jack Sharkey in the second annual duel of the southland at Miami, Fla., Feb. 27.

Risko already has engaged Griffiths once, losing to him on a foul in seven rounds, earlier this season.

Risko, however, is the master of prize ring form reversals. His hobby has always seemed to be the trimming of logical heavyweight contenders after "blowing" decisions to very ordinary athletes.

Griffiths, a rushing, swinging socker, has only one bad mark on his record. Jimmy Braddock, the light-heavyweight contender, caught him charging in one night in the Garden and laid him low with a right smash to the head. Since then Tuffy graduated to the heavyweight ranks and whipped Paulino among others.

Despite Risko's record, he will enter the ring in his favorite role as the underdog. The odds on Griffiths are 7 to 5. Johnny will have a weight advantage of about ten pounds, with Griffiths scaling about 184.

SCHAAF AND FRIEDMAN TO FEATURE BOSTON CARD

BOSTON, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Ernie Schaaf and Al Friedman, Boston heavyweights, today agreed to provide the feature bout of the Boston Garden's next boxing show on Jan. 10.

TROJANS IN FINAL GRIND FOR PITT GAME

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 26.—(AP)—The Trojans settled into the final grind of preparation today on Bouvard field, University of Southern California campus, for the football game with the University of Pittsburgh in Pasadena Rose Bowl on New Year's day.

Coach Howard Jones said, after scrimmage between the first string and the Spartans, he would have a well-balanced attack prepared for the Panthers. "Race Horse" Russell Saunders, playing his last game for the Trojans, Jones said, probably will start at quarterback, with Gaius Shaver, good punter, at fullback, and Harry Edelson and Ernie Pinckert at the halves.

This combination, decided upon late in the season, has been considered the most powerful ground-gaining four under the Trojan banner.

Until today, Jones had laid major emphasis upon line play in an effort to strengthen the forward wall to a point where it may withstand the rushes of the Panthers.

Saturday Jones plans to cut his squad to 35 men and move to a Pasadena hotel for workouts at the Rose Bowl.

SHIRES CAN ONLY FIGHT AS A PRELIM BOY IN MICH.

DETROIT, Dec. 26.—(AP)—When and if Charles Arthur Shires fights in this city, it will be in a four-round preliminary and not in a main event.

This is the attitude of the Michigan boxing commission, which was made known today after Benny Ray, matchmaker for the West Side Athletic club, had announced that the self-styled "Great" Shires would head a card on New Year's day.

"It is silly to think of him as a main event fighter," said Henry Kommrechky, member of the commission, discussing the first base pugilist. "The public is entitled to some protection. Shires hasn't yet established himself as a main event boxer and until he does he will have to be content with preliminaries if he fights in Detroit at all."

Ray thereupon announced that he would get up another main event and put Shires where the commission thinks he belongs. Art's opponent, he said, probably will be one Battling Crisp of Rockwood, Mich., whose professional ring experience equals that of Shires—two fights.

WEST POINT GRIDDERS ARE SET FOR STANFORD GAME

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Calif., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Geared to high pitch of efficiency and waiting only the opening whistle, the West Point football eleven, here to battle the Stanford university team Saturday, marked time today with a single light practice in the afternoon.

The Cadet gridders spent the morning with a sight-seeing tour of San Francisco. Coach Lawrence "Biff" Jones and Captain Christian "Red" Cagle then attended a Stanford-Army luncheon in the city, returning to the campus to rejoin the squad for a brief workout.

Tonight at the San Francisco Presidio, the officers, many of them former West Pointers, and enlisted men, held a rally to celebrate the appearance of the Cadets in a western game and to invoke good fortune for the invaders.

"BIFF" JONES MAY GET OREGON COACHING BERTH

EUGENE, Ore., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Rumors were current here today that Captain Biff Jones, West Point football coach, may be approached in connection with the vacant coaching position at the University of Oregon, to succeed Captain John J. McEwan, resigned.

Jack W. Benefil, graduate manager; Virgil Earl, director of athletics, and Del Stanard, representing the alumni of the athletic council, have gone to Palo Alto to see the Army-Stanford game Saturday.

Jones is admittedly looking for a coaching post, since his contract with Army expires this season, and the Army rules permit only a three-year tenancy.

President Arnold Bennett Hall said today he knows nothing of a possible interview with Jones by university officials.

FOUR PLAYERS AND COACH ON LIST OF INJURED

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Four gridders and a coach were on the disabled list of the East and West all-star elevens who meet here New Year's day in the annual Shrine benefit contest as both teams took light workouts today.

Dick Hanley, Northwestern mentor, and assistant coach with Andy Kerr of Colgate of the Eastern squad, lay ill in bed here with a heavy cold, while two of his players, Tommy Dowler of Colgate and Bill Calderwood of Northwestern, are hobbling around with leg injuries.

The Western camp numbered Benny Lom, California halfback, and Tom Churchill, Oklahoma end, on its cripple list, both suffering from strained tendons occurred in a workout yesterday.

HARD PRACTICE SESSIONS FOR SOUTHERN TEAMS

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 26.—(AP)—The task of whipping an assorted lot of football stars into two compact fighting units, began in earnest on two practice fields here today. Only four days of actual practice remain in which the southwest and mid-west players can be drilled for their benefit game New Year's day.

Coach Ray Morrison, of Southern Methodist, entrusted with building a team that will uphold the southwest's football prestige, gathered his boys around him out at Ownby stadium. Jimmy Phelan, former Purdue mentor, had his huskies at Fair Park stadium. The visiting stars engaged in limbering up exercises today but hard work will start tomorrow, when two practice sessions are scheduled.

TWO GAMES IN SHYMA LEAGUE THIS EVENING

There will be two games in the Shyma basketball league at Parish hall this evening, the Giants tackling the Athletics in the first encounter and Jimmy Murphy's Yankees clashing with Lefty Dugas' Pirates in the second. As no admission is charged to these games it is expected that there will be a large attendance.

Sadie Says

I see where Cook county in Illinois has hung up another record.

You know that Cook county has a whale of a lot of records, some of them good and some not so good.

This latest record is in divorces and Cook county is out-Reneing Reno, which gained its notoriety and its only claim to fame through its divorce courts.

And now comes Cook county to the front with a record that should make Reno blush with shame and look like an also-ran. In Cook county during 1929 the holy bonds of matrimony were broken at the rate of one bond every 55 minutes.

When Lincoln liberated the slaves he did not do it as fast as that. Just imagine two people set free every 55 minutes or one every 27 1-2 minutes if you want to figure both sides of the divorce.

They say that there was one divorce in one out of every 103 houses in the county. That's what comes of living in those apartment houses where it's easy to mistake somebody else's apartment for your own.

The divorces affected 5,793 children and now these children are innocent victims of these separations. But it don't say whether children favored the male or feminine side of the combat.

Wives were the chief petitioners, the rate being three out of every four, which goes to prove that there are plenty of Cook county women who prefer civil separation to revolvers.

Desertion was the most popular grounds for the divorces. Probably the men knew when discretion was the better part of valor.

The report concludes by saying that only 15 per cent of the divorces were granted to native Americans. We did not know that there were that many native Americans in Cook county. From the press dispatches we were led to believe that Cook county was made up of the Caponis and the rest of the "skis."

New London county has something to be thankful for.

TWO FIELDING RECORDS BETTERED IN NAT. LEAGUE

By BRIAN BELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—(AP)—National league fielding averages made public today suggest that it does not always profit a baseball player to lead the league. Two of the athletes who showed the way at their respective positions in 1929, probably will not be regulars in 1930.

Earl Sheely, Pittsburgh topped the first baseman with an average of .996, but the star fielder is slow of foot and Gus Suhr, promoted from San Francisco, may get the Pirate call next year. Andy High, St. Louis, led the third baseman with .9672, but Frankie Frisch is expected to move from second to third for the Cardinals in the spring. High won by a whisker from Arthur Whitney, of the Phillies, whose average was .9671.

Hughie Critz, the Reds' spark plug, was the leading second baseman with an average of .974 and Travis Jackson, of the Giants was at the head of the shortstops, showing a mark of .969. The veteran Rabbit Maranville, Boston Braves, was second.

Ethan Allen, Cincinnati, gave the Reds another place by leading the outfielders with an average of .983.

Mike Gonzales, of the Cubs, had the best average for the catchers with .992. The Cuban veteran, however, played in but 60 games. The leader for the receivers participating in more than 100 games was the late Walter Lerian of the Phillies, whose last average was .986. Lerian died in October as the result of an auto accident.

Twenty-one pitchers had perfect fielding averages but Dazzy Vance, Brooklyn, led in total chances with 62, divided 13 putouts and 49 assists.

Two fielding records were bettered during the season and another tied. Earl Clark, Boston, set a new record for putouts and chances accepted by an outfielder, May 10, when he registered 12 putouts and one assist in center field. The former record for putouts, was 11 by Max Carey, Pittsburgh, July 25, 1921, and for chances accepted 11, held by seven National league outfielders.

Horace Ford, Cincinnati, had 11 putouts at shortstop, September 18, tieing the mark set by William Fuller, New York, August 20, 1895.

NO MORE DAVIS CUP PLAY FOR HIM SAYS TILDEN

PARIS, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Big Bill Tilden, in the midst of intense training for the French covered courts championships opening here tomorrow, paused long enough today to outline his tennis plans for coming campaigns and reiterate that his days of Davis cup play are over.

"I will not play Davis cup tennis anymore but I do intend to compete in the French hardcourt and the Wimbledon championships," Tilden said.

Tilden served as captain of the American forces in last year's unsuccessful attempt to lift the Davis cup from the French defenders, and was named for the 1930 squad.

Following the covered courts tourney here, Tilden will leave for the Riviera where he plans to compete at Monte Carlo, Cannes and Nice. He is entered in the singles competition here and will pair with Charles Kingsley, of England, in the doubles.

PITT TEAM HAS LIGHT PRACTICE AT ST. LOUIS

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 26.—(AP)—The Pittsburgh university football team, bound for Pasadena, Cal., to meet the University of Southern California, New Year's day, resumed its westward journey tonight after a five-hour layover in St. Louis, during which the entire squad of 33 players went through light signal practice and otherwise limbered up.

They went from here to Kansas City and planned to make stops at Dallas, Tex., El Paso, and Tucson, Ariz., for practice work.

TABERSKI STILL LEADS GREENLEAF BY 143 POINTS

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Frank Taberski, of Syracuse, and Ralph Greenleaf, of New York, shared honors today in the fifth and sixth blocks of their 13-block, 1500 point pocket billiard match at the Strand academy.

Taberski won the afternoon game 125 to 47 in three innings, ending the block in the third inning with the high run of 102. Greenleaf ran 47 in the second inning.

Greenleaf took the evening block 125 to 70 in 15 innings. His high run was 56. Taberski's 27. In the six blocks now completed, Taberski leads in blocks 4 to 3 and in points, 685 to 543.

THE "GREAT" SHIRES WINS BY K.O. WHEN HE TAKES BAD BILL BAILEY IN 1m. 27s.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 26.—(AP)—C. Arthur Shires, Chicago baseball player and aspiring prize ring star, scored the second knockout of his career when he floored Dad Bill Bailey after one minute and 20 seconds of slugging in the first round here tonight.

The battle was just one flurry of action and punches until Bailey went down.

In the first exchange Bailey landed flush on Shires mouth and brought the blood.

Then the ball player fighter raked Bailey with a succession of rights and lefts, staggered him and wrestled him along the ropes.

Two powerful rights to the chin finally crumpled Bailey.

Shires made a speech, saying he would fight any man in the world of not too great ring experience. Shires weighed 179 1-2 and Bailey 154 1-2.

RECOMMENDS CHANGE IN FUMBLED PUNT RULE

READING, Pa., Dec. 26.—(AP)—A change in the fumble rule which he declared will "bring back the spectacularity of long runs and add greater interest," will be proposed by Tivin "Doggie" Julian, former coach at Albright college, at the meeting of the American Football Coaches' association, in New York next week.

At the present time a fumble, recovered by the offensive side, cannot be advanced. This rule has been the subject of much debate and it is likely it will be rescinded or amended at the coaches' meeting.

Julian's proposal is doubled-barreled. As he explains it, the two parts are:

1. If the attacking side fumbled when it is in its own territory and the defending side recovers, then the ball cannot be advanced, but,

2. If the attasking side fumbles when in its opponent's territory and the defending side recovers, then the ball may be advanced.

BILL WOOD RESIGNS AS WESLEYAN FOOTBALL COACH

MIDDLETOWN, Dec. 26.—(AP)—The resignation of William W. Wood, head football coach of Wesleyan university, was accepted by the faculty today.

Wood, who for the last three years has been associate professor of physical education, head football coach and secretary of the Christian association, was granted a leave of absence for the remainder of the year. He plans to complete his studies at the Yale university divinity school.

After getting a degree there Wood will continue his interests in religious and athletic activities of schools and colleges.

He came here from Gettysburg college, Gettysburg, Pa. In the three years that he piloted the Wesleyan team, it won one "little three" championship and was tied for second place once.

BRUINS MAKE NINE STRAIGHT VICTORIES

NEW YARK, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Turning in their second victory on successive nights with a rally in the last half of the game, Boston champion Bruins ran their string of National Hockey league triumphs to nine straight tonight by defeating the New York Rangers, 4 to 2. It was the second Boston victory of the year over last year's runners-up.

The Rangers started out toward victory when Butch Keeling scored early in the first period and made 2-0 early in the second. Leo Bourgeault and Paul Thompson provided the assists but Marty Barry, Boston's young center, tied it up in the last half of the period with two fine unassisted shots. The second came when his team was short two men on penalties.

A pass from Lionel Hitchman to Harry Oliver soon after the start of the third period gave the Bruins a lead New York could not overcome. Cooney Weiland added a fourth goal and half minute before the end of the game.

The contest was hard and rough all the way through with the work of the two goal tenders, Tiny Thompson and Johnny Roach as the outstanding feature. But for these two either team might have run up a big score.

PRESIDENT HOOVER DOING ROUTINE WORK IN STUDY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 26.—(AP)—For one brief day the thirty-first president of the United States did his routine office work in the study replete with memories of other presidents from Adams to Roosevelt, who directed the affairs of the nation from where Herbert Hoover spent most of today at an unfamiliar desk.

A few hundred feet away laborers were clearing the wreckage of the president's office building.

DANNY MURPHY CURIOUS ABOUT VAGRANT NAMESAKE

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Dec. 26—(AP)—Danny Murphy, a fixure of four world series during a long and notable baseball career with the Philadelphia Athletics, would like to know who the down-and-outer is, now in jail in Chicago, who almost won his liberty and a present from the judge by saying he was "Danny Murphy, the baseball player."

"For that's the second time," the real Danny Murphy said today, "that trick's been played on me, and I haven't any idea who's pulling it."

Anthing but a down-and-outer himself—immaculately groomed and looking lean and fit by reason of three sessions of handball every week—the real Danny Murphy said today he had not been in Chicago since 1926, when he was a coach for the Philadelphia National league ball club.

"It was a year or more ago, out in Milwaukee, that this stunt was pulled before," he said. "They sent him to jail for 60 days, and he said he was me, that he used to be worth $60,000, but didn't have enough money then to pay his fine and get out of jail.

"Connie Mack happened to be in Milwaukee on some matter. He went to the jail and looked the fellow over, and of course it wasn't me at all.

"But I'd kind of like to know who he is, the bum who's going around the middlewest getting into jams and then telling 'em he's the Danny Murphy who used to be with the Philadelphia Athletics."

Judge Heller and the court room attendants were impressed. Danny Murphy a few years ago was one of baseball's idols. He played in four worlds series—in 1910 against the Cubs in Chicago and in 1905, 1911, and 1913 against the Giants. So the judge passed the hat. And then, through Connie Mack and the Associated Press, he found out that it was not the real Danny Murphy at all—that the real Danny Murphy is living in Jersey city and hadn't been in Chicago for a long time.

So, instead of giving him the purse that had been collected, the judge sentenced the spurious Danny Murphy to jail for 30 days and fined him $100.

In Clover

Bang!

As the great Deckard-eight came to a sliding pause, stout Mrs. Jenifer sat up abruptly and glared with disgust at the trim back of Malton, her latest chauffeur.

"There!" she ejaculated. "Another blow out!" She turned to her husband with exasperation.

"Now we'll lose time, and have to sit here in the middle of a dusty road, heaven knows how long. It does seem as though we might have at least one trip without these constant delays!"

Mr. Jenifer, a jolly, stout little man with bright gray eyes, glanced at the chauffeur, struggling with the tools, then surveyed his wife with a slight smile.

"Well, these things will happen; there isn't any law against punctures, you know; it's not bad here, though. See that fine field of clover. My! it's as sweet as honey; you don't often see that, Jane. Isn't it fragrant?" His wife looked out over the field without particular interest.

"Yes, it is sweet; but the first car that passes us is going to throw enough dust at us to choke us. I do hope Malton will hurry. The country is so dry and dirty now; you had better stay here and keep as cool as possible, Jim."

Mr. Jenifer was out of the car, strolling down the dusty road. His wife watched him disapprovingly for a moment, then turned her attention to a car which had at that second come to a pause ahead of them. It was a large, luxurious car, indicating money—much money. Mrs. Jenifer, having nothing else to do, stared closely at the man who was getting slowly out of the front seat.

He was a tall, thin, man; his face was heavily lined, rather tired—the type of face one expects to see in the private office of a large trust company. Stepping into the road, the newcomer went to the fence and stood gazing at the field of red and white clover. It was a beautiful field; a wide, rolling stretch of pink and white blossoms, stirring softly under the little warm breeze which fanned the leaves; and the air was heavy, perfumed with the sweetness that drew the hundreds of bees which hovered over the meadow.

Mrs. Jenifer suddenly sat up with surprise. The man had climbed the old fence, walked slowly down into the field and was acting very strangely. After a moment Mrs. Jenifer, now wide eyed, called softly and quickly to her husband.

"Jim!—look; what on earth is that man doing? Of all the odd sights! What's the matter with him; do you suppose he's crazy?

For the man, proceeding calmly, as one who knows exactly what he wants, walked on into the thickest part of the field, took off his light gray coat, and quietly stretched himself full length in a veritable bed of fragrant clover. He lay motionless, eyes closed, arms outstretched into the cool blossoms. Overhead, bees droned sleepily, and while cloud boats rode across the deep blue sky. The man in the depths of the clover drew a long breath, and lay still

"Do you suppose he's queer or something?" Mrs. Jenifer whispered to her husband, who had come back to his car, and stood watching the strange performance with huge interest.

Mr. Jenifer, eyes atwinkle, smilingly shook his head, still watching the man in the clover field. "No," he answered at last, "I'd scarcely call his crazy, Jane; but—I expect, if you'd ask him, he'd tell you that, a long time ago, when he was a small boy in the country, he used to love to do that very same trick; and he's gone back for a little while—with that small boy."

"Well," said Mrs. Jenifer with relief, as their car started some moments later, "I certainly think that man acts very odd; look, he's coming out!"

Rising slowly from the clover the stranger stood gazing off across the field; then, with his coat over his arm, he walked quietly to his car, stepped in, and was off down the road in a whirl of dust with never a look behind him.

As the Jenifers' car sped off in the other direction, Mrs. Jenifer settled back with relief.

"He was awfully queer, that man," she remarked, but her husband smiled to himself, and watched the field of nodding clover until they had turned a curve in the road—Chicago News.

Typewriting pupils in the commercial department of the Manheim high school near Lancaster, Pa., have music while they work, not for pleasure, but to help them. "In order to attain speed at typewriting each pupil must acquire a certain rhythm in striking the keyboard," John F. Lotz, the instructor, explained. "In an endeavor to teach rhythm and timing we hit upon the modern reproducing machine. Popular marches that carry the same rhythm throughout are used," he said.

Two months of search for the owner of a wedding ring found in a package of raisins by a Penacook (N. H.) man came to a close with the receipt of a letter from a San Francisco packing company stating that the ring belonged to an employe, Mrs. Mary Weigandt. Early in July, Fred Touchette found the ring embedded in the dried grapes. The golden band was inscribed with the initials "M. W." and this supplied the only clew with which Touchette set to work to find the owner. This was a difficult task, because the company maintains almost ten packing plants, but after some time the quest was successful.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

FOR CORN-BORER CONTROL PLOW MODERATELY DEEP

Recent tests by agricultural engineers of the bureau of public roads, U. S. department of agriculture, indicate that infested-cornstalk land should be plowed at least six inches deep to cover stalks well enough for corn-borer control. Seven-inch and eight-inch plowing resulted in cleaner work than six-inch, where subsoil conditions permitted the extra depth, but a depth of ten inches was little or no more effective than eight inches.

Plowing at a proper depth is an important factor in covering trash completely, but does not insure good results under poor soil conditions or when inefficient plows are used. For best results the plow should have plenty of clearance between the bottoms and be equipped with large rolling coulters, jointers, and covering wires, or equivalent attachments. At least a 14-inch plow bottom should be used, and it should be shaped to make wide, open furrows and to turn the soil smoothly and completely.

Proper adjustment of all plow parts and careful operation in the field are required to secure the complete coverage of trash necessary for corn-borer control.

GOOD SUGGESTIONS FOR WINTER CARE OF COWS

At this time of year there are several important factors that have a direct influence upon the winter production of the dairy herd. If these problems are handled properly the milk production will be greatly increased. If they are not given proper attention the production will suffer and the financial return, in dollars and cents, will be much less than it should be.

Water. The water supply is of first importance. The average-sized dairy cow will drink from 40 to 50 gallons of water daily. Milk production depends more directly upon the water supply than upon any other one factor. Have a good supply of water available. The ideal water supply for this purpose is furnished by individual water buckets. The installation of such a water system will cost money, but it will be repaid in a short time by the increased milk yield and by the saving in time and labor. If it is absolutely impossible to install such a system, provide plenty of water by the tub method. Protect the tub by a wind break so that the cattle will not be exposed to storms and winds.

Lice. During the fall of the year cattle are very likely to come to the barn suffering from lice infection. This is especially true of young stock. Animals so infected are never thrifty. Get rid of the lice as soon as possible. The easiest way of doing this is to clip the animal along the backbone and around the tail head. Different treatments may be used.

Ring Worm. This is a skin disease of a parasitic nature. It comes in the shape of a round spot which gradually enlarges. Wash the affected parts with strong soap and water, adding one teaspoonful of lysol to each quart of the soapy water. Rub with a stiff brush to remove the dead skin and scabs. Apply tincture of iodine or turpentine to the affected parts daily, washing with soapy water and drying before each application.

Barn Itch. This disease is found on many of our cattle during the winter months. It causes the hair to fall out and the skin becomes raw and irritated. If not checked it spreads rapidly. In bad

A start was made from the church at midnight with a reed organ fastened on the rear of one of the machines. ONLY FOUR MORE DAYS TO SECURE REGISTRATIONS

With but four more days left in which to obtain automobile registrations for use on New Year's day the branch office of the motor vehicle department at New London is making the usual last week arrangements to kep longer office hours on the last three business days of the year and also on Jan. 2. Announcement was made Thursday that Saturday, Monday and Tuesday the office will open at 8 o'clock and close at 4:30 instead of the usual hours of 9 to 4 o'clock. As usual, the office will close New Year's day.

A total of 112,540 motor vehicle registrations for 1930 have been issued by the state department of motor vehicles at the close of business Dec. 20, according to figures issued by the department. This total represents an increase of more than 13,000 registrations over the total on the same date last year, but also forecasts that there will be no considerable let-up in the usual last-week rush for registrations.

More than 48,000 automobile owners secured registrations in the 10 days between Dec. 10 and December 20, with the majority of the new registrations coming into the main office at the state capitol.

In anticipation of the last week rush, arrangements were made to open the office an hour earlier each business day from December 26 to December 31, inclusive, and the office will also remain open Saturday afternoon until 5 p. m. Elaborate arrangements have been made to handle the crowds which are expected. Additional financial responsibility files have been placed in the third floor corridors to expedite the checking of the applications and the personnel of the department has been somewhat enlarged to insure rapid service. The detail of state police who have been on hand in the corridors of the state capitol during the past week will also be augmented, the detail being ordered to direct automobile owners in search of registrations and to keep order in the lines.

Despite the decided improvement in the number of new registrations already issued, department officials are expecting the usual large crowds during the last week. Persons wishing to obtain registrations are urged to come as early as possible, for the size of the crowd handled has increased in the past as the zero hour approaches and last year more than 5,000 applications were handled at the windows on the last day of the year.

MANY TOWN OFFICIALS ATTEND TAX CONFERENCES

Nearly 300 town officials attended the half dozen round table conferences held in various parts of the state during the last five weeks under the auspices of Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett, it was announced at Hartford. These sectional meetings, called for discussion of local assesment and valuation problems, served to acquaint newly-elected assessors with the requirements of their office, and to permit an exchange of views of assessors on the troublesome phases of their work.

Definite programs were intentionally avoided and the result was a series of open meetings with pertinent discussion of many questions of interest to taxing officials, in which all present usually took part. An unanimous preference for the smaller group meeting, as against the formal statewide session at the state capitol, was expressed by the officials present.

Of the 169 towns in the state, 107 were represented at the conferences. The number of assessors in attendance totalled 220; and members of boards of relief, selectmen, town clerks, tax collectors and town counsel comprised the remaining 75 officials present.

Present inconsistences in the assessment of automobiles caused the assessors to suggest the appointment of a committee of eight assessors, one for each county, to bring about a uniform plan of valuation for automobiles for local assessment purposes. The tax commissioner plans to call a meeting of such a committee in the near future.

The purpose of the meetings was emphasized by Commissioner Blodgett at all the conferences. They were not called to increase taxes or to find more ways of extracting money from the citizens, he say. Equalization of assessments was the main aim sought for, he pointed out, and assessors and members of the board of relief were urged to cooperate so that the tax burden would be equitably distributed upon all classes of property.

That real estate was bearing more than its fair share of the burden was the assertion made by a number of local assessing officials at several of their conferences.

Discussion of new tax laws and opinions of the supreme court of errors relative to local tax questions occupied a large part of the meetings. Other subjects which came up for discussion included modern revaluation methods, and aerial photographic maps for assessors. The necessity for conducting revaluation programs in accordance with the very latest principles were emphasized by Commissioner Blodgett. One of the most important factors in the success of an equalization of property values, he stated, was to keep the public informed of the methods used, to conduct open public meetings during the progress of the work in order that the tax payers might become acquainted with the practices of the assessors and to see to it that all elements of value were recorded on a permanent card record. Revaluations conducted in secret fostered suspicions on the part of the tax payers, Mr. Blodgett said, and created troubles due to misunderstanding of the methods employed which might very easily be avoided.

NO ONE TO BLAME FOR RAILROAD MAN'S DEATH

No one is held responsible for the death of Homer Marvin, 53, of New London, in a finding issued Thursday by Coroner Edward G. McKay of this city. Mr. Marvin, an employe of the New Haven railroad, was fatally injured in the town of Stonington on Dec. 6 when struck by an engine of a New Haven railroad work train. He died two days later at a hospital in New London. In his finding Coroner McKay says:

On Dec. 6, 1929, the said Homer Marvin was employed by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company, as a conductor and on that day was working on an assignment as conductor on a work-train which was operating in Mystic, Conn. At about 5.30 on said date his train had gone on to a siding immediately north of the westbound track on the main line. The main line at that point runs around a curve going generally from the east towards the south, and extends for a considerable distance in both directions from the said siding.

When the train of which Mr. Marvin was conductor had proceeded on the siding, the caboose of the train was left there and the engine attached to the caboose was backed away a distance. When the caboose was disengaged from the engine the said Homer Marvin went up to the main track and was standing close to the northerly rail of the west bound track. At that time a freight train known as O. B. 2 was proceeding easterly on the east bound track going at a moderate rate of speed. When the said Homer Marvin came to the main track the west bound train was clear. However, while he was standing there an engine running light, in reverse came from the east, going at about 15 miles an hour. It struck the said Homer Marvin, throwing him to the ground north of the west bound track. The engineer and brakeman of the work-train were close at hand and gave assistance to the injured man and conveyed him to the hospital at New London. His injuries were, however, of a fatal nature and he died on Dec. 8, 1929.

This fatality, while exceedingly unfortunate was not caused by the criminal act of any person. The train crew of the engine were proceeding along in a manner that was reasonable under the rules of the company. The engine was running light without any cars attached and was proceeding westerly with the head of the engine pointed in an easterly direction. On the type of engine that was used there is no light attached to the tender and reliance is placed for guidance and warning while proceeding during the night season upon a lantern hung on the rear of the tender. This lantern was lit and shining while the engine was proceeding. While in the yards at Mystic the train was going at about 12 or 15 miles an hour and the bell on the engine was ringing.

At the time of the collision the circumstances were such that knowledge of the presence of any persons or thing on or near the tracks was difficult to ascertain. The freight train going east on the curve obstructed the view of the engineer of the west bound engine for any but a small distance. The noise made by the freight train would drown out the sound of the bell of the engine. On the other hand the approach of a train on the west bound track would be difficult to note by a person standing near the track. He could not see any great distance to the east nor could he hear a warning bell or the noise of the engine.

I am satisfied and find that the death of Homer Marvin was not caused by the criminal act, omission or carelessness of any other person or persons.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

SUNDAY SCHOOL SOCIAL AT LUTHERAN CHURCH

A Sunday school Christmas programme was given Wednesday night at the First Evangelical Lutheran church. The service opened with the playing of the processional, "Come Hither Ye Faithful" by the organist and a special Christmas orchestra composed of Frank Decker Sr., and Jr., Otto Philipp and Alma Philipp, during which the school marched into the church. The service continued with prayer and responsive reading and the Credo. Herman Stelzner, assistant Sunday school superintendent, then greeted and welcomed the audience, after which the pastor read the opening sentences of the Christmas story according to Luke. Then Christmas carols and recitations followed. The carols were sung with great enthusiasm and inspiration.

Som of the Christmas hymns were sung in German, the language in which they were first written and sung. Luther's "Away in the Manger" and "From Heaven Above" made a special impression on the congregation. Most of the children of the school gave recitations that were greatly appreciated. A tableau featuring the angels, shepherds and wise men were presented at the altar platform. Mr. Steizner gave a fine Christmas poem "Conrad, The Cobbler." Readings were also given by three other adult members, Elisabeth Stelzner, Walter Lamb gave Elizabeth Stelzner, Walter Lamb gave "Silent Night" on the cornet. The Catechism class also responded and joined in the programme. With distribution of gifts the service closed. Children all received gifts as well as the pastor, who was remembered by the church and the different organizations.

Appropriate music was rendered at the service, the choir and organist deserving much credit for the effective manner of their rendition of the musical portions of the service.

The organ voluntary, played in an excellent manner by the organist, Miss Olive E. McKelvey, was "An Ancient Christmas Carol," the music arranged by R. L. Pearsall.

HOOVER LAW ENFORCEMENT COMMISSION REPORT SOON

Report Has Been Ready About a Month—Awaits Action by Congress to Cooperate With the Administration and the Commission in Drafting a Legislative Program—Latest Demand is For the Resignation of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.— (AP) — Facts marshalled by the Hoover law enforcement commission have resulted in formulation of a report on four definite aspects in connection with enforcing all laws in general and prohibition in particular.

That report has been ready for about one month, and awaiting publication pending congressional authorization of a joint committee to cooperate with the administration and the commission in drafting a legislative program. It is expected to be made public soon, perhaps by the commission, but possibly not until the house adopts the senate resolution for appointment of the joint committee.

The four phases which have emerged as dominant from the findings of the commission, and which its report touches, come under these classifications:

Relief of court congestion.

Centralization at the department of justice of work being done by the prohibition bureau, now under the treasury department.

Unification of the various border controls now consisting of customs, coast guard, labor, prohibition and narcotics division.

Codification and reenforcement of the multifold laws on prohibition.

For days agitation has been going on among a group of southern dry senators for the making of a report of some sort by the commission, and the fact that one will be forthcoming was expected tonight to appease their wishes. The demands for a report by Senators Harris of Georgia and Glass of Virginia preceded the current turmoil in Washington over prohibition enforcement.

Out of this turbulence there materialized today a demand for the resignation of the secretary of the treasury, Andrew W. Mellon, who is vacationing on a yacht in sunlit Caribbean waters. Again seconding Senator Borah of Idaho in condemning lax Volstead enforcement, Senator Norris of Nebraska told questioners he would begin a reorganization of the personnel "with Andrew W. Mellon."

Although both are republican drys, the Idahoan and the Nebraskan conflicted in the presidential campaign last year—with Borah backing Hoover and Norris supporting Smith. When the Idaho senator declared three days ago that the dry law would never be enforced "with the present personnel from top to bottom," his fellow republican from the northwest maintained that men of political influence were getting away with millions through the liquor traffic while less well-connected persons were going to jail. Today he emphasized that view.

"I don't say the law is not enforced everywhere, but I do say it is not generally enforced," he averred. "I think there is evidence that the politicians are meddling too much. I don't think Andrew Mellon, who is the chief enforcement officer, is in sympathy with the law. I don't demand prohibition cranks. In fact, I don't want any cranks in the service but I want an administration of that law which is free from political influence."

CANADA QUIET ON PROHIBITION MATTERS

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 27.—(AP)—Suggestions contained in dispatches from Washington that the United States may limit the number of ports of entry from Canada, drew no official comment here. The viewpoint appears to be that the matter is one for the United States to deal with, and that Canada has nothing to say about it unless she is consulted.

It is understood here that the department of national revenue has not been advised officially of any intention on the part of the government of the United States to limit the number of ports of entry.

AUNT AND NIECE FOUND DEAD IN HOTEL ROOM

NEW YORK, Dec. 27—(AP)—Mrs. Catherine Smith, 70, and her niece, Mrs. M. A. Dreyfus, 45, of 1020 Beacon street, Boston, were found dead tonight in their room in the Hotel Pennsylvania. After a preliminary investigation police said they found no suspicious circumstances in connection with the deaths.

The bodies were found by a house detective after a maid reported she had been unable to gain entrance to the room.

Assistant Medical Examiner Gonzales decided to analyze the contents of a glass in which there was the sediment of a red liquid and of a bottle bearing a mouth wash label. The bodies were ordered taken to the morgue for an autopsy.

Dr. Gonzales did not state the cause of death in either case but said he believed that Mrs. Smith died first.

Among the women's effects were two bank books and two life insurance policies. Mrs. Dreyfus' book was from the Bank of Montreal and Mrs. Smith's from the Jersey City, N. J., Trust company.

COAST GUARDSMAN MAY FACE MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 27—(AP)—Belief that a charge of manslaughter would grow out of the inquest into the death of Eugene E. Downey, shot by a coast guard patrol Christmas night, was expressed by District Attorney Guy B. Moore after the case was adjourned in city court today. The adjournment until tomorrow morning was taken upon the request of the county prosecutor.

Statements made on Thursday night by the three coastguard men in charge of the government boat at the time of the shooting will be read into the inquest testimony tomorrow.

U. S. Attorney R. H. Templeton, who was prevented by Moore from questioning state witnesses at the hearing, asked that the men be put on the stand today. Moore said that might be done if the three would waive immunity of trial for manslaughter.

Mr. Templeton made no answer and the inquest was adjourned.

MARRIAGE OF BESSIE LOVE TO WILLIAM HAWKS

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 27—(AP)—Wedding bells rang tonight for one of cinemaland's most popular actresses, Bessie Love, and William Hawks, Beverly Hill stock broker.

Participating in the wedding were Blanche Sweet, matron of honor and Bebe Daniels, Carmel Myers, Edith Mayer, Irene Mayer, Norma Shearer, Athole Shearer Hawks and Mary Astor, bridesmaids. Hawks' brothers acted as "best men" and the ushers were Fred Stradling, Irving Thalberg, William Davey, Robert Shaudeman, film executives. The marriage lines were read by the Rev. Roy O. Miller.

DENIES FRAMING MURDERS OF YALE AND MARLOW

NEW YORK, Dec. 27—(AP)—The man police charge framed the murders of Frankie Yale and Frank Marlow, New York racketeers, today sat unmolested in his pretentious suburban home while authorities of two cities sought substantiation of their suspicions.

"I am a peace loving man," Ciro Terranova, "artichoke king" of the city's markets and painted by police as a cold-blooded hirer of killers, told reporters. "I did not procure the murders of Yale and Marlow. Yale was my dear friend. I sent Christmas presents to his two children yesterday. Marlow was a casual acquaintance but no enemy. This is just a political conspiracy."

FRENCH VIEWPOINT ON NAVAL CONFAB AWAITED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27—(AP)—The Washington government tonight was awaiting the arrival of the memorandum setting forth the French viewpoint on the forthcoming naval conference—the last viewpoint of the five great naval powers to be made known to the other interested nations.

The French embassy said the note, which ha salready been handed to Ambasador Dawes in London and Ambassador Edge in Paris, was expected to arrive tomorrow in the diplomatic pouch from the French foreign office. Brief summaries, considered insufficient for comment by Secretary Stimson and state department officials, were communicated to the department by the two ambassadors.

Official expressions of the American reaction to the French attitude toward the forthcoming parley will be withheld until after the memorandum has been laid before Secretary Stimson by Ambassador Claudel of France.

Klansmen Come To Defense Of Heflin

Proclamation Urges Resistance to Discipline of Democratic Party.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., [illegible] (AP)—The Ku Klux Klan, a powerful political factor in Alabama, was injected into active state politics by the publication here today of what was purported to be an official proclamation to klansmen urging them to resist discipline for bolting the democratic ticket in 1928 because of the nomination of Alfred E. Smith.

The proclamation praised United States Senator J. Thomas Heflin, seeking reelection and Hugh A. Locke, gubernatorial candidate, who were barred from the forthcoming democratic primary by the state executive committee for support they gave President Hoover as "noble, clean, patriotic and intelligent citizens who are being discriminated against because they exercised their political freedom."

Although barred from the democratic primary, both Heflin and Locke have said they will be independent candidates in the November general election and in the opinion of political observers here, it was to their support in that election that klansmen were rallied.

The proclamation as published drew no comment from James Esdale, Birmingham attorney and grand dragon of the klan in Alabama, while in Atlanta Dr. Hiram W. Evans, imperial wizard of the organization, said the klan as an organization is not in politics and would not take a part in the Alabama campaign.

The resolution adopted by the executive committee barring Heflin and Locke as candidates in the primary was scathingly denounced by the proclamation as unconstitutional and advised the electorate that they would not be bound to support the democratic nominees. The only restriction the committee placed on the bolting voters for their return to the party was that they bind themselves to such a course.

Esdale, however, endorsed Evans' statement:

"I thoroughly concur with what the imperial wizard said in regard to politics," he said. "I have always governed the Alabama klan in accordance with policies he laid down. The klan is not a political or religious organization; it is a patriotic organization."

A forecast was made that "an outraged public sentiment" would compel the committee to meet again and rescind its action.

"The action of the state 'autocratic' executive committee is manifestly so unfair, so undemocratic, so un-American, so obedient to Tamammy hall and to the Roman Catholic church," the proclamation said, "that it is being hotly condemned by every democratic senator and congressman in Washington and by every intelligent and fair-minded citizen of the nation.

"Klansmen: Do not hesitate to express yourselves about this matter in every place and on every occasion. Let your courage impart itself to others that they too may share your militant resistance to this new species of political intolerance. Stand by your guns; be men, not cowards. Your grand dragon is determined to stand by you klansmen and to fight.

"And—just to whisper you a secret—we intend to lick our enemies until they can't stand up."

Making Up a Shopping List.

The hall needs a new rug. More towels are needed for the bathroom, and the kitchen floor could certainly stand a coat of paint. The children need shoes. The car will soon need tires. Well, we buy a hundred new things every year.

Manufacturers who make the things we need and stores that sell them are especially fitted to take care of our needs. But which products and which stores? Which can we afford and which do we think best? We must look to advertising for advice.

Advertising is the straight line between supply and demand. It saves time spent in haphazard shopping. It leads you directly to your goal. By reading the advertisements we can determine in advance where the best values are to be found. With the aid of advertising, shopping becomes a simple and pleasant business, and budget figures bring more smiles than frowns.

From the pages of The Bulletin you can make up a shopping list that will save you money.

THREE LABOR RACKETEERS WERE SHOT DEAD IN CHICAGO

The Three Men, Armed With a Shotgun and Revolvers, Were Ambushed by Police—They Had Threatened President of a Labor Union With Death Unless He Gave Them $10,000—Had Fired Upon the Policemen.

CHICAGO, Dec. 27—(AP)—Three reputed labor racketeers said by police to have been trying to "shake down" officials of a union, were shot and killed in a gun battle with police on the West Side, late today.

The three men, armed with a shotgun and revolvers, walked into an ambush carefully laid by Sergeant Patrick O'Connell and his squad when M. J. Powers, president of the Tire Repairmen and Vulcanizers Union, told police he had been threatened with death unless he gave the men $10,000.

When the policemen stepped from behind a door, the hoodlums fired a blast and the officers returned the fire. Two of the men were shot as they crouched to resume firing, and fell dead. The third man wheeled and attempted to flee, but three shots dropped him.

One of the men was tentatively identified as "Dinky" Quan, at one time suspected of shooting Detective Joseph Sullivan, during a gangster kidnaping investigation. The other was thought to be a man known only as Wilson. Finger prints were rushed to the bureau of identification.

Officers describing the gun fight said that the man identified as Quan, carrying a cane and walking with a limp, entered the room and said:

"We want $10,000 or we're going to take over this union."

Before Powers had time to answer, Daugherty opened the door slightly to see the men. At the slight noise, one of the men shouted: "Coppers!" They immediately opened fire. One of the racketeers used a sawed-off shotgun and the other two had automatic pistols.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 27.—(AP) — The fatal shooting of Eugene F. Downey, Jr., Christmas night by coast guardsmen has had a deterrent effect on the flow of liquor from Canada, federal authorities report.

BUSY SESSION OF SUPERIOR COURT HELD FRIDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 27.—The short calendar session of the Windham county superior court held here today with Judge Edward M. Yeomans of Andover on the bench, was a busy one. Judgment by affidavit was granted in favor of George M. Coffin as receiver for the defunct First National bank of Putnam against the A. Vito Construction Corp., of Thompson. The amounts stipulated in the bill of particulars filed, were interest of $28,334.09 and principal of $74,987.76, resulting from loans and advances made by the bank while in existence, to the defendant corporation. Attorney Howard C. Bradford represented the plaintiff.

Attorney Harry Cack of Danielson presented a motion for the appointment of a state referee to make a reassessment of damages in the appeal of Feodosia Macko of Plainfield from the highway commissioner. The court granted the motion.

The case of Everett E. Beckwith of this city, versus Joseph P. Collins of Hartford, was allowed on request of counsel for the plaintiff. Owing to the absence from the state of the attorney for the defendant, the motion to set aside the verdict in the case of Edwin Sugalski, versus George Gendron, was deferred until later.

Mrs. Lillian Martin of 26 Union street was granted a decree of divorce from William Martin in the only uncontested divorce action scheduled for the day. The divorce was granted on the grounds of habitual intemperance and intolerable cruelty. They were married here, June 5, 1925, and for a time resided in Centerdale, R. I. They have one child, Richard, aged 3, who has been staying with the mother since she left her husband on May 6, 1927. Since that time, Mrs. Martin testified that she has been supporting herself and child, who is now with his grandmother in Bridgeport. Martin is a painter by occupation. Witnesses for the plaintiff were her sister, Miss Anna Boucher of this city, and Charles Chandler of Putnam.

At the close of the short calendar, the case of Chauncey E. Macfarlane, versus John T. Meikle, was taken up. The action is one in which damages of $500 are asked as the result of an automobile deal. After some of the testimony had been heard, Attorney Arthur T. Kelley, for the defendant, made a motion for a non-suit. Judge Yeomans denied the motion, however, and reserved decision. The complaint alleges that Meikle purchased a new Nash sedan from Macfarlane, Aug. 9, 1927, for $1,900. The defendant turned in a second-hand car for $400 toward the purchase price and is alleged to have agreed to convey certain property worth a similar amount to Macfarlane. The balance of the cost was paid through a finance company at the rate of $85.45 a month for 15 months, this amounting to $1,281.75, covering the finance charge of $181.75. Macfarlane was the only witness in his own behalf. He said that the defendant had refused to deed the property in question over to him.

Meikle testified that the purchase price agreed upon was $2,340 and he afterwards found out that this price had been reduced. His son, Alfred Meikle, corroborated this testimony. Court adjourned until next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock in Putnam.

The card party will be in the luxurious foyer of the Elks home.

WILLIMANTIC, Dec. 27.—Joseph Kovorics of Ashford has lost faith in Santa Claus. He went for a Christmas tree earlier this week and because he overlooked the fact that he was taking it from another's property without a permit, the tree cost him just $22.75. Kovorics took the tree home in his automobile and was shortly apprehended by State Policeman Emil Castagna of the Stafford Springs barracks. When charged with trespassing and theft before Justice of the Peace Clarence H. Barlow, Kovorics was fined $1 on the first count and $10 on the second, plus costs. Kovorics, who has been before the court three times in nine months, had a 30-day jail sentence hanging over him, but Justice Barlow took the Yuletide season into consideration and again suspended the jail sentence for one year. The case was prosecuted by Grand Juror Justin M. Burrill.

ROY CONNORS TAKES CHANCE—FINED AND SENT TO JAIL

(Special to The Bulletin)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Dec. 27—Roy Connors pleaded guilty to the charges of selling intoxicating liquor and keeping with intent to sell, when arraigned before Judge Heald in the borough court Thursday afternoon. He was given twenty days in jail and fined $220, with costs of $20.40. It was Connors' second offense within three weeks. December 7th he paid a fine of $200 and costs for a similar offense. He was obliged to borrow the money at that time but has since been unable to repay the lender. He thought he would take a chance during the holidays in order that he might replenish his depleted exchequer but fate dealt harshly with him. The state police, while checking up to find some stolen goods discovered that the man who had lost the goods had been at Connors place and in their investigation secured evidence of sales of liquor by Connors. Thus far none of his friends have come to his aid and it seems probable that he will not only have to spend the twenty days in jail but that he will have to stay there long enough to work out the fine and costs, amounting to $240.40.

Ernest Pagliaro, of 32 Pine street, Mitteneague, Mass., was fined $10 and costs for speeding and $1 for not having a tail light on his car when he came through Stafford Springs on the evening of December 20th. He pleaded nolo to these charges in the borough court Friday morning.

DANIELSON

GREEN ARRESTED, CHARGED WITH ENTERING UNCLE'S HOME

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 27.—Marmaduke Green, 20, who has been living at Seekonk, R. I., was being held at the state police barracks on North Main street this afternoon, awaiting presentation in a justice's court in the town of Thompson, to answer to a charge of breaking and entering. Green was picked up by Providence police and today was returned here in custody of State Officer Royal V. Scranton.

It will be charged in court that the prisoner, during the course of last Monday night, entered the home of his uncle, Cleon Green, in the town of Thompson, and stole a valuable violin and some jewelry. It will be further charged that he gained entrance by using a ladder to climb to the second story of the home and that he entered by a window. At the time, residents of the household were asleep. It is alleged that Green is familiar with the interior of the house. Another count against him will charge that he also broke into a cottage near Quadic pond and stole a victrola.

Green pawned the violin and jewelry in Providence. These articles have been recovered. The victrola is held in Providence to be returned later.

A death at the home in Wauregan during the very early hours of this morning, was that of Louis Levesque, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Levesque. The child, born in Canada, had been ill with pneumonia.

CITIZENS FAVOR LOCAL PEOPLE TO REVALUE PROPERTY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 27—From some discussion heard today, it would appear that the prospect is for action relative to the general revaluation of property within the town of Killingly to be deferred until action providing for it is taken at the adjourned annual town meeting in March. There is considerable difference of opinion as to whether the revaluation should be made by local residents or by some concern making a specialty of this work, but majority opinion appears to favor local people to do the work, which is obligatory on the town.

AUTO REGISTRATIONS

Plans are being made in this state for the year-end rush for automobile markers for 1930. Even though the number issued is considerably in excess of a year ago, the belief prevails that the number of those who wait until the last minute will be just as large as ever, and that means that when the hour for closing the offices comes, on the last day of the year, there will still be some in line unserved.

This policy of delay which auto owners practice every year is by no means peculiar to Connecticut. The same situation prevails in Rhode Island, where pleas for early registration have been made and the handicaps of late action pointed out.

This year the increase in the number of registrations in Connecticut is interesting because there has been an effort made to increase the accommodations for the automobile owners. This has been done by doing away with the requirement which was hitherto obligatory of having all applications sworn to that were sent by mail. This meant a lot of red tape and additional expense. It was not as bothersome as driving varying distances to the branch offices and there waiting indefinite periods in line, but it was enough so to keep many from resorting to that method. The removal of that requirement is no doubt responsible for the increased business that has been done at the main office in Hartford, and indicates quite clearly that the auto owners, those who are paying the expenses and the tax, have not been getting proper accommodations.

All the auto owners not residing in cities where there are branch offices have long been discriminated against and it cannot fail to be apparent to the motor vehicle department that the gain in registrations during December has been their reaction to the removal of part of the handicaps. Give to all the auto owners the same accommodations and privileges and there is reason for believing that there will be less last-minute registration. Had there been branch offices in every city this would have been demonstrated long ago. It cannot be expected that the motorists are going to respond 100 per cent when all the favors are thrown to part of them and all the handicaps are put in the way of the rest. And even under the most favorable conditions there will always be those bobbing up at the last minute.

BYRD'S HELPERS

While there is no denying the responsibilities of the person at the head of such an expedition as Admiral Byrd guided, it is impossible to overlook the fact that there has been a high degree of service rendered by his assistants in bringing about the successful results. In the arranging and carrying out of the details it is necessary to have help. If that help is efficient, accomplishments will be achieved as planned. If that help is disinterested and concerned only with drawing its pay, the results will be seriously hampered.

From the very start, Admiral Byrd so arranged the details for his unusual trip that the personnel as well as the equipment would measure up to requirements. It was the purpose to reach the goal without the sacrifice of life and to get to the pole and obtain other information through the full cooperation of all members of the party.

We have our doubts whether the explorer anticipated his promotion at this time. Nevertheless, he is gratified at the recognition given to his accomplishments, but he is unwilling to take those honors without having due consideration given to the help that has been given by those who accompanied him. That he should be prepared to forward to the navy department commendations of 15 navy men "who have contributed greatly to the success of our enterprise and who, therefore, deserve great credit for the work of the expedition for which the leader has been promoted" can be fully appreciated.

He would be an unappreciative leader if he did not display just such an attitude. Those who have given him their best during the perilous trip cannot be overlooked. Their contributions to the success cannot be eclipsed. It is the attitude of an unselfish and appreciative leader when he announces his intentions to have others share in the distinction he has gained. They have played their part and played it well. It was the excellent cooperation that won the fight against the conditions surrounding the south pole and it would be a grave mistake not to have it recognized.

RUBIO'S VISIT

Soon after President Hoover was elected, and before he took office, he made a trip down the Pacific coast of the Americas and up the Atlantic, visiting most all of the countries on what was termed a good-will tour. He was desirous of getting in touch with conditions first hand and to make a contact with the respective governments which could not be accomplished personally in any other way.

Evidently that visit has made a good impression upon President-elect Rubio of Mexico. He has been in Washington this week and, even though he has not taken office, there can be no question but what the visit will be of marked benefit in further cementing the relations between the two countries and especially between the two administrations. Here we find the effort made for better relationship.

This is far different from anything that has been done in the past and it is most interesting to note how the president-elect has risen to the occasion. On the other hand, he most fully appreciated the honor that has been done him in this connection. It is not customary for the president of the United States to call upon distinguished visitors unless they happen to be heads of other nations. Yet President Hoover considered that the occasion was one where customary practice could be sidetracked. President-elect Rubio was near enough to the presidency of Mexico to accord him the distinction of a call by the president and formality wasn't allowed to stand in the way.

Certainly there was nothing in that to injure President Hoover in the eyes of his people and it is perfectly evident that it will not be regarded as displeasing by the people of Mexico. It was, in fact, just the action that the situation called for and if the president overstepped formality he will certainly get the plaudits of the citizens of this country for doing so. Such a meeting as President-elect Rubio has had with the officials of this country at Washington will aid greatly in the understanding of the nations. It cannot fail to further the good work that has been accomplished in the republic to the south by Ambassador Morrow.

THE RIGHT SPIRIT

As a motorist, or as a driver of any other vehicle, have you experienced the helpful assistance of others when involved in accidents on the highway?

There are many who can answer in the affirmative. Many who are glad to attest the genuine spontaneity with which strangers have responded to the situation where trouble has been noticed will not quickly forget the services rendered.

There are occasions when references are made to the assistance which the driver of a bus may give to a motorist stalled in the snow, though not blocking the way of the bus, or to the help given by the driver of a truck in getting an auto out of a ditch, or a horse-drawn vehicle up a grade where difficulties have been experienced.

These references are made because they may seem a bit unusual, but the man by the roadside in trouble has found by experience that while there may be many who will pass him by without making inquiry or offering assistance there are others who take a different view and who are guided to a greater or less degree by the teachings of the Golden Rule. Possibly they have also been impressed by the Boy Scout idea of doing a good turn every day. In either instance, they get a fine example and win boundless gratitude.

Those who are imbued with the idea of lending a helping hand wherever possible find compensation in the fact that they have either experienced similar assistance at some time or other, or take delight in giving aid to their fellow men whenever possible against the day when they may want like treatment. It is the manifestation of the right spirit, whether the trouble happens to be serious or trivial. It is helpfulness of a character that encourages it in others.

THE EXECUTIVE OFFICES

Inasmuch as the present executive offices of the white house can be repaired, President Hoover believes that such a plan should be followed. Others believe that the state, war and navy building should be taken over for such purposes, while some who approve that believe that for the time being a new, but fireproof, building should be erected on the site of the present offices.

Evidently the time is coming when better executive offices will be required. What they will be and where located has not been determined. Until that is done and until such a time as a new building, whether of entirely new construction or remodeled, could be made ready, the old offices could be made ready for use. It is apparent that the idea of new offices could not be worked out possibly for a number of years, but it will not require a very long time to put the offices where the fire was back into shape.

Under the circumstances, it seems probable that the view of the president will be carried out. Such a step may mean that the old executive offices will be abandoned in time, otherwise the idea of rebuilding them of fireproof material would seem to be advisable. In the readjustment that will follow the construction of new government buildings in Washington it seems probable that provisions will ultimately be made for new executive offices. Nevertheless, there has been a lesson taught by the fire in the executive offices which cannot be disregarded when it comes to giving protection to valuable government papers. Likewise, such wiring as the repairs will entail should be of a character to eliminate any possibilities of defects showing up later on.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Only four more days in which to whip those 1930 resolutions into shape.

Have you noticed how it seems to write it 1930?

Now that winter has officially arrived isn't it about time for someone to see the first robin of spring?

"Reported Discovery of a New Comet," says a headline. Probably it would excite greater interest if it were a new comic.

News that Mr. Coolidge does not wish to run for the senate will occasion no surprise. He has a very close working knowledge of the senate.

Probably those in charge would be willing to step down and give Senator Borah a chance to show what he could do in the way of enforcing prohibition.

It will be some time before you hang May baskets, but you can hang your new auto plates very soon, provided you have gotten in your application early enough.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

The attempt to recall the name and exploits of Ethan Allen is like delving into the lore of ancient history. History is being made so rapidly in these days of improvements along all lines of material advancement that many a man who loomed up big in the early history of our country seems to be identified with ages long ago. Many of us now living have seen men who distinctly remember the time when Ethan Allen did those heroic deeds that will never be forgotten by the historian. Think of the brave leader of "The Green Mountain Boys" only 83 in number approaching Fort Ticonderoga on the 10th of May, 1775. We see him silently "leading his men up the heights on which the fort stood and going on through the undefended gates where he was challenged by a sentry. At once he ordered the captain to surrender. "In whose name?" asked the captain. "In the name of the great Jehoveh and the Continental congress." The fort was captured.

Ethan Allen was a strange being who united the old Puritan theology with some very fantastic theories. And, believe me, he was very dogmatic all right in their assertion. He believed them so thoroughly that he would persecute all those who differed with him, and he would do it as a duty in the defense of the truth. To illustrate: He was a profound believer in the transfiguration of souls. In support of this he contended that he had had a tangible experience of this, and, of course, a man could not discredit the testimony of his sense. He believed unto his dying day that he had once existed on this earth in the form of a white horse. His account of his experience as a white horse was so vivid and minute, and was given with such evident sincerity of belief that his hearers grew pale and were more than half inclined to believe him.

What a lasting impression does a striking sentence make if spoken at the right psychological moment and in the right way. Other expressions may be more polished and oratorical but unless they exemplify vital traits of character they are soon forgotten. A good illustration of this is found in Lincoln's Gettysburg address; short, straight-forward, simple, but it will live as long as the nation itself. But Edward Everett's brilliant three hours' oration delivered on the same occasion is largely forgotten. But what I have particularly in mind is the few words that were spoken by General John Stark just before the battle of Bennington during the Revolutionary war. When the enemy's troops invaded Vermont he was given command at Bennington. As he saw the British troops advance, he shouted in a clear, loud voice: "There they are boys—we beat them today or Molly Stark's a widow!"

The writer has recently read one of the latest biographies of the great musician, Mozart. This was done for the main purpose of finding if possible any new light thrown upon a career singularly sad and unfortunate. Nothing marks the genius of this great composer more clearly than his capacity to reach such heights of renown under such handicaps. It seems like fiction to read of a little boy five years old composing music of real merit. The first blow came when his devoted mother died. Later the young woman whom he lovedpassionately jilted him. Still later he married and had to struggle with direct poverty. And yet when faint with hunger he composed the immortal "Magic Flute." In the last week of his life a stranger asked him to write a requiem mass for the dead. A week later he died and Vienna let him be buried in "Potter's field"—a pauper.

The above item in regard to the life-long hardships that Mozart had to contend against is seen in the lives of other illustrious men. It would seem that they have to pay the full price for the opportunity of being benefactors to the human race. There were apparently very few points of comparison between Mozart, the creator of great symphonies, and Eli Whitney, the inventor of the cotton gin. The latter did not have to struggle with poverty as the former did, but he had trials just as acute. When the widow of Gen. Nathaniel Greene suggested to the young schoolmaster that there was little money in raising cotton because the hard seeds were so difficult to remove, she knew the inventive turn of his mind, and her suggestion was an inspiration. At once he began to experiment. Little by little did the light break in upon him and eventually the machine was patented. But before he got the patent he had to go through purgatory.

Of course the young inventor had to work secretly on his machine, but when he had it nearly completed some lawless men broke into his workshop and carried it away, so writes one of his recent biographers. Before the young man could secure a patent several models had been built. It is strange that during his life Whitney received little honor for his invention, and it was a considerable time after his death before any considerable credit was given him. His trials after the great invention seemed to give point to the common expression, "that people generally will tolerate almost anything but new ideas." Richard Arkwright made immortal by the invention of the spinning jenny had a similar experience, but his invention transformed the cotton manufacture on two hemispheres. Along this line of evidence the inventor of the steam engine could add his experience.

This is a great season of the year to dwell on the necessity and beauty of peace, but is it not amazing how very little the world has had of it since the annunciation was made so long ago to the Judean shepherds: "And on earth peace, good will to men?" The Roman empire that ruled all that was known of the world at that time was little more than an armed camp. The modern states of Europe, carved out of the remains of the old empire, have certainly been true to this heritage. Frederick the Great and Napoleon were lineal descendants of the old Caesars. It was not till recent years that the civilized world as a whole took any constructive measures to "beat the sword into the plowshare and the spear into the pruning hook." And even today it cannot be truly said that they are working overtime at the business. But it does look now as if both the plow and the pruning hook were going to have some show.

The very fact that Christmas con-tinues year after year to make its appeal to all classes of society as no other day in the year does is a mighty tribute to its intrinsic worth. There are many days that were conspicuous once for the large places they occupied on church calendars that no longer interest the rank and file. We can clearly see the same trend in some of the days set apart for political celebration. For example Memorial day suggested and put upon the map in 1868 by General John A. Logan, and for many years observed by all the northern and most of the western states has of late years ceased to be not, of course, indicating that patriotism is dead, but showing clearly that the Grand Army of the Republic has almost ceased to be, because most of its members have crossed "the great divide." Perhaps the heroic dead of the World war will be recognized on this day. But the Christmas spirit is perennial.

FLORIDA GALLINULES AMONG SEASON'S BIRD VISITORS TO EASTERN CONNECTICUT.

Reports from various sections of New England indicate that small land birds have not been so numerous as in former years during the autumn season, which, according to the calendar if not according to the weather man, came to an end this week. Hereabouts, however, the winged visitors have been in good number as well as variety, according to observers at the Kimball bird sanctuary, the Audubon society's official observation post for the transition, or Alleghanian zone of bird life which includes eastern Connecticut. At this center, situated on Watchaug pond 9 miles east of Westerly, Dec. 11 brought the first snow which was accompanied by a drop in the temperature to 4 degrees above zero. Nevertheless, despite the severe weather, the robins were briskly about as usual, while the ice in the pond was covered by hundreds of black ducks, lined up in great rows like soldiers at attention.

Black Ducks by Hundreds on Parade.

The rain of Friday, Dec. 13, seemed to bring more birds than ever. Even a great blue heron winged its way across the sanctuary into Watchaug. A flock of mergansers (or sheldrakes), also came into the pond. A great many blue birds and myrtle warblers appeared on the scene just after midday "and such a fine time as they had bathing in the numerous puddles!"

The juncos and tree sparrows too, had a fine time bathing. Just about sunset three deer came into the garden, down at the old house-lot.

On Dec. 14, four partridges were flushed in the woodland path south of the sanctuary and at about 7 in the morning a flock of geese went over, flying very low. A pigeon hawk was flying around on Dec. 15th but did not stay long.

On that day it was like spring at the sanctuary. Bluebirds and goldfinches were calling, and robins chirping as if it were an April morning and not December.

Along the Quonochontaug marshes, which like the Kimball sanctuary are in the south county of Rhode Island, three barn swallows were seen on Nov. 17. Tree swallows, one or two, or a group, now and then remain in the coastal marshes of southern New England, provided a food supply continues available, but as swallows are insectivorous birds, the chances of their remaining throughout the winter are mostly negative. Barn swallows start their migration south as early in the fall as August and September, or what may more properly be called late summer. Any record of their appearance after Sept. 20 should be noted carefully.

Cold-Weather Warblers.

A black-and-white creeper was seen in the very last week of November, also in the south county by a member of the Audubon society, which maintains the bird sanctuary there. This unique tree-climbing warbler belongs to another highly insectivorous family, and is seldom to be looked for after September.

In the warbler group, perhaps the largest number of the late fall records this season in New England have been of the yellow palm warbler. A black-throated green warbler was seen Nov. 12 near New Haven, Conn.

The myrtle warbler is the exception to the rule that all warblers migrate south because in seasons not too severe if a sufficient supply of bayberries are on hand, it may remain throughout the winter. A most interesting variation of its food habit is frequently observed at the sanctuary where chunks of suet are ground up in a meat-chopper and scattered outside the south and west windows of the headquarters bungalow.

With tree, song and fox sparrows, juncos, a white-breasted nuthatch and chickadees, the myrtle warblers fly down and eat suet like the others.

Fat foods are much needed by most birds, and even those species which live almost wholly on seeds or insects at other times of the year seem readily adaptable to a change of diet in cold weather, a fact for bird lovers to remember when they stock their bird-feeding trays.

Eastern Connecticut's Gallinules.

From Hammond's pond in Pawtucket, R. I., two Florida gallinules were taken by a couple of boys on Dec. 5 and brought to their teacher. One of these birds was exhibited at the Pawtucket Poultry association in a cage, from which it tried to make its escape. The other bird, when picked up off the ice, seemed to be partially frozen and did not long survive. The caged bird died within a few days. It was evidently a young bird, judging from its plumage and small frontal plate that later in the adult male becomes bright scarlet. The pale nile green legs and feet of the species are an added ornament, also a scarlet patch of color on the tarsus that appears in the spring as a nuptial ornament.

As this is a species of southern distribution which rarely nests north of latitude 40 degrees (i. e., New Jersey), it may be surmised that the gallinules found in the cat tails lining the shore of Hammond's pond were either young of the year staying to an unusually late date (the average limit of summer residence in New England is the last of October or first of November), or wanderers from farther north or south. Gallinules belong in the same family group with herons, bitterns, storks, ibises and the roseate spoon bill. A characteristic of their behavior is wandering about after the nesting season, which accounts for most of the records of the egret herons when these species sporadically appear in New England during the fall.

The boys who captured the gallinules called them "dippers" and "dipper ducks," common names which are very misleading and which led some people to suppose that the water ousel or far-famed dipper of the far west had been taken here in eastern Connecticut. The name "dipper" is commonly applied also to the pied-billed and horned grebes, diving birds which with the loons and Arctic murres, auks and puffins are in a family group far below the expert running and diving gallinules (the name means "little hen," and so water-hen and moor-hen are more correct common names of near relatives of the gallinules).

"Dipper duck" is a common name of the little black and white bullfe-head, that winters hereabout and southward. Had the boys looked closely at the bill and feet of their unusual find, they would have known at once that it could be neither grebe, duck, nor true dipper, in spite of the misleading color of the plumage, which all goes to prove the off-repeated suggestion that among birds as among human beings, something more than colored apparel is needed for identification.

Block Island's Bird Census.

These authentic late fall records, the details of which have been carefully looked into, will be sent to the New England headquarters to be entered among similar records from other New England states. Any that are of particular value to the United States biological survey will go to Washington, D. C., to be added to the vast countrywide compilation of data kept there.

Records kept in limited areas like the Kimball sanctuary are of much value, and when such records are supplemented by accurate observations which may come in and ordinarily do, at random, the yearly picture or panorama of our bird life becomes more and more complete, Alice Mall Walter writes in the Providence Journal, commenting on the sanctuary reports, from which this article is extracted.

Many people who enjoy birds, who feed birds and are glad to protect them, do not keep records of what takes place before their eyes and so many occurrences of bird life that would be of value, are never made known.

One of the important parts of sanctuary work is keeping an accurate, daily record of the comings and goings and general behavior of birds. This winter for the first time, now that the Kimball sanctuary is open throughout the year, such records can be made.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27—If you tried that old gag of yelling "Hey, Pat," at a Washington official crowd these days, you might get an unexpected response.

A member of the cabinet, Pat Hurley, might look up, or either of two senators, Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, or Pat Sullivan, of Wyoming; or again any of the three Pats of the house, Carley, of New York, Sullivan, of Pennsylvania, and Drewry, of Virginia.

Even if you made your shout, "Hey, Patrick J.," it might get multiple answers. Hurley, the two Sullivans and Carley are all Patrick J.'s, which produces the odd situation of a Senator Patrick J. Sullivan on the rolls at the same time.

Now there is a queer thing about that, by the books. Counting in these two senate, just nine men with that fine old Irish surname appear in the lists present Sullivans serving in house and of national legislators clear back to the first congress.

Two of them were brothers, one from Massachusetts and the other from New Hampshire, who sat in the Continental congress, a third being a son of the New Hampshire Sullivan, Major General Sullivan as he became in the revolutionary war. The son, George, sat in the twelfth congress in 1813.

New York Sullivans

Two of the remaining Sullivans to serve in Washington were from New York. They were Christopher, who served from the sixty-fifth to the seventieth congresses, and Timothy D., sitting twice in the fifty-ninth and the sixty-third congresses. Timothy was killey in a railway accident in 1913.

There also was a John Sullivan from Massachusetts in the fifty-eighth and fifty-ninth congresses and the single remaining man of that name to be accounted for, odd as it may seem, hailed from Mississippi. He was William Van Amberg Sullivan, who was successively a member of the house and senate in 1898.

Just how many Patricks have come and gone before the present Washington influx there is no reasonably easy means of telling.

But the Bystander accepts it as certain that Pat (without a period) Harrison, of Mississippi is the only one to whom that usually affectionate diminutive was not a nickname.

Just Pat

He is just Pat Harrison, just like that, in his official biography and everywhere else. If he was christened Patrick and became Pat only after the newsboy enterprise which was his beginnings of a political career, he has forgotten about the other syllable.

Senator Connally, of Texas, sets himself out the same way, just Tom Connally. That compares with the more frequent full given name method of his political colleagues.

And speaking of given names, William is the senate favorite at the moment. There are a half dozen of them, beginning with Bill Borah.

There are almost as many Henry's, if you count Harry Hawes and Henrik Shipstead in that group.

Sunday Morning Talk

The New Year

In a few days the clean white page of 1930 will be placed before us to make of it what we will. The record of 1929 will be closed. Its mistakes, its failures, its joys and sorrows a thing of the past.

How careful we should be as we write the 365 pages of the coming year. May we keep each day's record noble and true. With nothing to mar it's beauty may we realize that we are writing for eternity. For the eye of the God who has trusted to us His great treasure. May we ask the Divine Teacher to guide and direct us as we write each page, as the teacher guides and directs the unskilled and faltering hand of the child. We all soon realize without this help our efforts are a failure. Knowing that He alone can make of our lives what they should be. Making His glory and service the supreme goal of our lives. May our love for our Saviour be so great that it will be our greatest joy. What a change it would make in our lives if we were told on good authority, that the year 1930 would be our last on earth? How carefully we would write each page. We all know that it is very possible that 1930 may be the last for many of us. How much we would strive to crowd into that year of the noble and true. We would try to make it the very best year possible. How diligently we would strive to bring others to our Saviour. To encourage the disheartened to help every life we came in touch with. Each day would be regarded as another privilege of bringing blessing and joy to others. Each day we should strive to live the very best Christian life, that our lives might never be a stumbling block to others. What a terrible thing it is to hinder others in their lives. I have always said if I could not help, I certainly did not want to feel that I had been a hinderance. Should we not begin the new year by thanking our Lord for the many blessings of the past year? And to strive during the coming year, to be more faithful? To show our love and gratitude in our lives? Knowing that our every effort will be appreciated by our Saviour who knows how hard we try to be faithful.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Farmer Brown's Boy Takes a Hand

To live in happiness we must
Be honest, reasonable and just.
Farmer Brown's Boy.

Farmer Brown's Boy coming out of the house to do the morning chores heard the racket going on out in the front yard. He heard the voice of Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel, he heard the voice of Chatterer the Red Squirrel, he heard the voice of Sammy Jay, he heard the voices of a lot of other little people.

"Well, well!" Farmer Brown's Boy exclaimed. "Something has upset those little people. I wonder what it could be."

Just then Black Pussy came tearing around the corner of the house. She darted past Farmer Brown's Boy and into the house. "So!" said Farmer

"So!" he exclaimed. "You've stolen Happy Jack's new house!"

Brown's Boy. "It was you. I might have known it. Whenever I hear a fuss like that I can be pretty certain that you are somewhere around."

But, though Black Pussy was in the house, the noise out front continued. Farmer Brown's Boy noticed this and instead of going out to the barn he went around front. He saw right away that the trouble, whatever it was, centered around something or some one up in that maple tree. At sight of Farmer Brown's Boy Sammy Jay and the others screamed all the louder. Farmer Brown's Boy walked around with his head tilted back while he looked all through that tree. At first he didn't think to look at the new house up there. When at last he did look he discovered Spooky the Screech Owl right away. Spooky was peering out of the entrance.

Then Farmer Brown's Boy understood. "So!" he exclaimed. "You've stolen Happy Jack's new house. Happy Jack made such a fuss that he brought all the others and all they needed was to see you in order to keep their tongues going. Spooky, you're not at all popular, if I know anything about it. I'd like to know what you are doing in that house anyway. You lived so long over in that hollow apple tree that I thought you would stay there for the rest of your life. You don't know it, but that house was my Christmas present to Happy Jack. I'm afraid I'll have to take a hand in this. Much as I dislike to interfere, I can't have you stealing my Christmas present from Happy Jack."

Farmer Brown's Boy began to climb up the tree and all the little people became even more excited. They knew he was going to climb up to that house. They wondered what Spooky would do. They wondered what Farmer Brown's Boy would do in case Spooky did nothing. So it was a very exciting time.

When Spooky the Screech Owl saw Farmer Brown's Boy coming he backed into the darkest corner of the house. He hoped Farmer Brown's Boy hadn't seen him. He hoped very much that Farmer Brown's Boy hadn't seen him. He stopped snapping his bill. He kept perfectly still. And then without any warning at all light came pouring into that little house which but a moment before had been dark. You see, there was a door on the back side and Farmer Brown's Boy had opened that door. He reached in and despite the hissing and snapping of Spooky he picked Spooky up.

My, my, my, my, how excited those little people were when they saw Spooky being carried away by Farmer Brown's Boy! They all followed along to see what was going to happen. That is, all but Happy Jack and Chatterer. Happy Jack waited only long enough to make sure that the way was clear before climbing up and into that house. He intended to keep it this time if he had to stay there all day.

As for Spooky, where do you think he was being taken to? He was being taken straight back to his old home in the hollow tree of the Old Orchard. And there Farmer Brown's Boy left him grumbling and mumbling to himself.

POETRY

Vermont Crust Coffee

Our rye-and-Injun bread was baked
Inside a special iron kettle;
The bread was soft as silk, but hark!
The crust was hard enough to whittle;
Around the kittle top and ears
The golden goodness always trickled,
And ovened into chunks whereat
Adults stood pat and brats was tickled.

We cut it as you would a pie
To keep the crust in sections ample;
We wanted them "hard-ends" to roast
And set Brazil a good example;
Why should a Fairfax farmer buy
His breakfast off a heathen nation?
Great doings if he couldn't raise
His little fambly's morning ration!

We browned them crusts atop the stove
Till they was pretty near to smoking;
Then in the tall tin coffeepot
They got a biling water soaking;
Then presto! pronto! that good drink
Was poured for all about the table,
And such a smile went 'round you'd s'pose
'Twas toe-nailed to a running cable.

Respectable and thrifty scene,
A living, breathing, moral maxim;
If any counter, him I'll face
And with a spurious knighthood tax him:
The man who as a boy has seen
His breakfast cup from bread crusts filter,
Will seldom find his stomach sour
Or banking balance out of kilter.

Some one comin' home ag'in!
Some ol' codger, like as not,
That has mebbe plum fergot
You—an' fo'ks fergot him, too!—
Ev'r' one exceptin' you!

Razzle out his easy chair,
Put it by the fire there
Where he used t' set, an' git

Things in same ol' order most
Like he used t' have 'em so's t'
When he shucks his boots he kin

Layin' 'side all sorts o' jokes,
If there's any class o' folks
Measure up t' God's idee
Of what man had orter be—
Meets requirements through an' through—
Then, J jucks, that class is you!

PLAN TO INCREASE GIRL SCOUT MEMBERSHIP

A development plan, conceived by Mrs. Nicholas F. Brady, of New York, chairman of the board of directors, is being initiated in the Girl Scout organization at a cost of $3,000,000. The plan calls for expansion of the membership from its present figure of 200,000 to over 500,000 within the next five years. It also aims at putting the national organization on a practically self-supporting basis.

Why the plan was necessary and what it will mean for the girl herself is explained by Mrs. Brady. For 14 years Mrs. Brady has been active in the Girl Scout movement. In 1920 she was appointed chairman of the finance committee, and in 1921 she was elected treasurer of the organization. Then in April of last year she succeeded Mrs. Herbert Hoover as chairman of the board, when Mrs. Hoover became honorary president.

"The ultimate object of the development plan," Mrs. Brady said, "is to bring girl scouting within the reach of more of the ten million girls of scout age in the United States. For many years socially-minded leaders have been pressing us to extend the constructive influence of girl scouting to more of our American girls. The plan is simply a means by which we may increase the quantity of our work, not only without impairing but even while improving its quality."

As a result a number of arc lights in the city were put out of commission for a short while, due to a short circuit caused by the falling wires. No one was injured. The machine, forced off the road by another car, struck an icy section by the side of the road and got out of control. A repair crew was quickly put to work repairing the damage.

The pole was sheared off at the base and knocked nearly 20 feet from its original position. The front of the machine was badly damaged.

ROOT AND WALKER TOP PITCHERS IN NATIONAL LEAGUE DURING SEASON

By BRIAN BELL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Dec. 27—(AP)—Official pitching averages of the National league made public today, indicate that the lively ball was more than a myth in the senior baseball circuit last season. Bill Walker, left hander of the Giants, who led the league in pitching effectiveness, allowed 3.08 runs per nine inning game. This is the highest mark with which a pitcher has won the honor since earned run rating was made a part of the official averages in 1912.

Charlie Root, Cubs, led on the basis of games won and lost, his 19 victories and six defeats giving him an average of .760. Burleigh Grimes, Pirates, was second in effectiveness with an average nine inning yield of 3.13 runs, and third in games won and lost with an average of .708, winning 17 and losing seven.

Guy Bush, Cubs, with 18 games won and seven lost, was second to his colleague, Root, although on the basis of earned run rating the Mississippi entry, who pitched Chicago to its lone world series victory, was seventh. Bush was the most active pitcher in the league, taking part in 50 games. Charlie (Red) Lucas, Cincinnati mainstay, engaged in the most complete games, 28.

For the first time since 1922, Arthur (Dazzy) Vance, the Brooklyn meteor, was not the strikeout king. Slowed down by illness and forced to forego much of his normal activity, Vance yielded the crown to Pat Malone, of the Cubs, who forced 166 to miss third strikes. Vance was in third place, with 125, trailing also his teammate Watson Clark, who struck out 140. Clark had more opportunities, for he pitched the most innings, 279, lost the greater number of games, 19, faced the most batsmen, 1189 and allowed the greatest number of hits, 295. Only five pitchers struck out more than 100 opponents, Malone, Clark, Vance, Root and Carl Hubbell, Giants.

Malone, in addition to strikeout honors, scored the most victories, 22, standing alone as the only pitcher in the circuit to register more than 20. He also led in shutouts, with five.

Claude Willoughby, of the Phillies, allowed the most runs, 156 and another Philadelphian, Ray Benge, was responsible for the most earned runs, 139. A third Phillie, Bob McGraw, finished the most games, 24.

Cliff Dudley, Brooklyn, led in hitting batsmen with ten and Fred (Sheriff) Blake, Cubs, gave the most bases on balls, 130. Douglas McWeeny's 11 wild pitches led all the rest.

The only no-hit game of the season was pitched by Hubbell, of the Giants against the Pittsburgh Pirates, May 8. The Giants won the game, 11 to 0.

ARMY-STANFORD GAME TODAY TO BE A FEATURE

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Dec. 27—(AP)—In the huge stadium, where Coach "Pop" Warner annually conceives some of the blackest magic of football, Stanford's Cardinals will mobilize tomorrow for the concededly difficult task of enchanting into silence the "big guns" of the Army team, especially one Christian Keener "Red" Cagle.

Involving neither championship honors nor builded on tradition, the intersectional encounter will provide two features, to wit: Give further comparison of 1929 eastern and western football, and give some 70,000 persons a chance to witness the gridiron caveorting of "Red" Cagle. Heralded as the greatest back-field star ever developed at West Point, Cagle is the big drawing card of the post-season clash that will bring these two teams together for a second successive season.

Last year in New York city, Stanford stopped Cagle and company 26-0.

Jockey Club Secretary Dies

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 27—(AP)—William Dondas, racing secretary of the Miami Jocking club, died suddenly in the business district of Miami tonight. Dondas had been here for several weeks preparing for the scheduled race meet of the jockey club at its Hialeah track. He was 47 years old.

Davies Seriously Hurt

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 27—(AP)—Wee Willie Davies, Charleroi, Pa., flyweight, was injured seriously tonight when he fell through the ropes during his bout with Steve Rocco, of Toronto, at the Coliseum. His head struck heavily on the press table. After efforts to revive him failed, he was taken to a hospital.

TAYLOR LOSES FIGHT IN FALL THROUGH ROPES

CHICAGO, Dec. 27—(AP)—Bud Taylor, the Terre Haute terror of the featherweights fell victim to a technical knockout in the ninth round of his sensational battle with Earl Mastro of hicago, in the Chicago stadium tonight.

The fight ended with both Taylor and Mastro lying outside the ring, their feet dangling over the second rope. Taylor had floored Mastro and then fell through ropes with him, wrenching his back, as his body hit the edge of the ring.

Mastro dazed by the punch that floored him, managed to crawl back into the ring at the count of nine, while Taylor laid there, writhing in pain, and unable to move. Previous to the dramatic finish, Taylor had knocked Mastro sprawling across the ring. Mastro jumped up, however, and Taylor launched a furious attack that ended with both going through ropes.

The finish of the slashing fight sent the crowd of 16,211 spectators into an uproar. Taylor lay on the edge of the ring, his feet resting under the ropes on the canvas, virtually paralyzed from the injury to his back.

The battle up to the knockout was a thrilling encounter. Mastro had a shade the better of it through his consistent two-fisted attack, with Taylor fighting only in spurts with the exception of the third, the two gamecocks of the featherweight division fought toe to toe, riping punches to the head and body. Neither retreated and they rarely clinched.

Mastro stood up under Taylor's fire and gave more tha nhe received. He ripped double hooks to Taylor's body and head with lightning speed and was everlastingly throwing punches.

Taylor's big efforts were made in the third and ninth rounds. In the third Taylor slowed Mastro up with a left hook to the body and chased him to a corner under a savage attack.

It was evident as the fight progressed that Taylor was laying back waiting for one shot. But when he did land the punch that might have won the fight, he went tumbling through the ropes, wit subsequent injury, that made him a technical knockout victim.

Mastro appeared to have the shade in six of the nine rounds.

Taylor scaled 122 3-4 to Mastro's 126.

Hein Meuller, clever young German heavyweight, score dhis second American triumph by decisively defeating Elzear Rioux, a lumbering Canadian giant, in the ten round semi-windup.

CHICAGO, Dec. 27—(AP)—The heavyweight wrestling match between Gus Sonnenberg, title holder, and Joe Devito of St. Louis will be decided at the Chicago Coliseum January 6, it was announced tonight. Eastern League Meeting Today

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Dec. 27—(AP)—Club owners of the Eastern league will meet at the Hotel Charles, here tomorrow, in a session adjourned from their annual meeting held recently at Albany, N. Y., tomorrow's confab has been called for 2:30. The principal business of the day will be the election of a president to succeed Herman J. Weisman, resigned. Claude Davidson, president of the New England league, is the only avowed candidate for the office.

As 1929 is starting to gasp its last breath or two we are wont to look back and check up on ourselves.

Many are the mistakes we make in a year's time, some of us making more than others, while the wiseacres claim they made none. Those who make no mistakes miss a whale of a lot of fun.

But as many mistakes as we make and as bad as they seem there are others who make worse—and how. That may be some consolation, but it doesn't make any less.

You remember about the local woman who outbid her husband who held eight diamonds and then was set four tricks in hearts?

Well, there's a man out in Missouri who pulled an even bigger bone than that. Now let us women stand up and give a long and hearty cheer 'cause all the dumb bridge players don't wear skirts.

This boy out in the "Show Me" state will go down in the annals of history's dumb plays along with Eve who handed Adam the apple, and the guy who stole second with the bases full.

This boy's colossal error was really heart-breaking. He was sitting in a bridge game with his wife as a partner, a thing that he should have known better than to do.

The cards were dealt and he saw they were all red and bid one diamond. Everybody passed and when he took up his hand to play he found there were 13 hearts in it. The account makes no mention of what his wife said.

I can imagine what she said and believe me if my husband turned a trick like that he'd be put on a diet of fish to improve his brains.

Have you made your New Year's resolutions? If you don't make 'em how can you break 'em?

BALTIC WANDERERS STAGE RALLY TO BEAT INDIES

The old time Baltic Wanderers defeated the Baltic Independents in a hard-fought game at the Baltic gym last night by the score of 32 to 29. Although the Indies led at the third quarter the Wanderers came back late in the final period to clinch the game. The wonderful passing game of the oldtimers contributed largely to their success. The Wanderers proved conclusively that they were not "has-beens."

For the Indies Douville was best.

LOCAL "Y" FIVE MEETS BRIDGEPORT HERE TONIGHT IN STATE LEAGUE GAME

Probable Lineups

Norwich	Bridgeport
Lynch, lf	lf, Guerin
Pingree, rf	rf, Shey
Harris, c	c, Brownell
Eccleston, lg	lg, Larry
Grebe, rg	rg, Streff

The fans of eastern Connecticut have another treat in store for them tonight when the Norwich Y basketball teams meets Bridgeport in a State league encounter at the local Y. M. C. A. At present Norwich is in a tie with Middletown for first place, neither team having lost a game but the local club has played more games. Bridgeport is in third place. Included in the roster of Bridgeport are many from Warren Harding high school players and everybody knows what calibre of teams that school puts out.

In a letter received earlier in the week the Bridgeport management claims that they will bring Norwich down from the top but Coach Demarest says his boys are in the pink of condition and will make every attempt to make it five straight games in a row, already having won their first four games.

The starting lineup for tonight is as yet uncertain due to Brown being in Toedo, and Leffingwell just recovering from illness, so it is expected that Coach Demarest will start Pingree and Lynch at forward, Capt. Harris at center, and Eccleston and Grebe will see service in the back court.

In the preliminary game the Gamma club, Church league champs, will meet the Willimantic Red Men, this game starting at 8 p. m. and the main attraction starting at 9 p. m. Joe Blair will referee.

SELECT GROUP OF GRID STARS AT DALLAS BANQUET

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 27.—(AP)—There was more extra fancy football talent in this city today than was ever before gathered under one roof in the southwest. There were more All-Americans and near All-Americans than you could comfortably shake a stick at.

There were, to begin with, the undefeated Pittsburgh University Panthers, claimants of the national title, passing through on their way to Pasadena, Cal., where they have an important engagement with the University of Southern California on New Year's day.

They shared interest with the outstanding stars of the southwest and midwest, who are engaged in a strenuous training grind for their benefit tussle here on New Year's.

Tonight, the members of the three squads sat down together at a banquet given by the Dallas chamber of commerce. The program included among other things, an address by J Waddy Tate, "hot dog" mayor of Dallas.

Around the festal board were such nationally known stars as "Post" Welch, All-American halfback of Purdue; Uanna and Donchess, All-American halfback and end of Pittsburgh, and a raft of other greats, including members of the undefeated Texas Christian and Southern Methodist teams.

The Pittsburgh squad of 33, making its trip to the coast by easy jumps, took advantage of the first ideal weather it had struck to engage in a long workout. Coach John Suther and put his huskies through a long signal drill and then let them romp and pass and kick. Officials said the entire Pittsburgh squad was in great condition and confident of victory over Southern California. The team left for El Paso, its next stop, after the banquet.

Coach Ray Morrison's southwest all-stars, worked out on an adjoining field to the Panthers, while Jimmy Phelan's midwest boys practiced at Fairpark stadium, across the city.

TROJANS READY FOR GAME ON NEW YEAR'S DAY

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 27—(AP)—The Trojans of the University of Southern California are ready for the New Year's day game at the Pasadena Rose Bowl against the University of Pittsburgh.

Coach Howard Jones said today the team has been prepared for the fray without one actual scrimmage, although dummy scrimmage against the Pitt Panthers' plays has taken place daily.

"The players are all in excellent condition and I don't want to take a chance on injuries," Jones said. "They have played lots of football this year and one scrimmage won't hurt them any. We are ready for a tough game; in fact, we expect a tough game.

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Gerald Ambrose Griffiths, the rough and tough young heavyweight from Sioux City, Iowa, punched out a clean-cut victory tonight over Johnny Risko, the Cleveland shock-absorber in ten bruising, slashing rounds in Madison Square Garden.

Gerald Ambrose met and beat the veteran at his own rough and tumble style of fighting, he took nine of the ten rounds. Although he failed to score anything like a knockdown, Griffiths had the fight well in hand from the start, frequently staggered Risko with savage rights to the jaw and gained the unanimous decision of the judges and Referee Jack Denning.

Ringside experts afterward freely predicted that he would draw the much-debated assignment to fight Jack Sharkey at Miami, Florida.

Tuffy handed an artistic shellacking to the rugged Ohioan who at one time put Sharkey himself out of the heavyweight running.

A crowd estimated, in cash customers, at not much more than 10,000, saw Griffiths start off at a fast clip, holding his advantage virtually all the way and steadily piling up a big margin on points.

A vicious short right to the chin proved Risko's undoing. Johnny, in his clumsy defensive fashion, tried to throw up a protective shield of gloves but he failed to escape the frequent application of this punch, Tuffy's best and most effective weapon. Griffiths landed it with lightning like rapidity in the first, third, fourth, sixth, ninth and tenth to rock and stagger Risko. Anyone but the rubberman might have buckled under these wallops, coupled with left-hand drives to the mid-section, but Risko's re-action invariably was to plunge right back with both hands swinging.

Griffiths not only outboxed and outfought Risko but out-roughed him at close range, where the Cleveland veteran usually is at his best and most damaging. Under the youngster's steady barrage, Risko tired. Johnny's best rounds were the first, which he lost by a narrow margin, and the second, which he won by a shade.

Throughout the last half of the fight Risko lacked his customary recuperative powers and was on the defensive, except at intervals.

Although one-sided, the fight frequently brought the crowd to its feet as they belted each other all over the Garden's pugilistic parlor. In most of these exchanges, Risko came off second best as Griffiths beat him to the decisive punches.

Risko was slightly cut and bruised but the chief casualty appeared to be Referee Denning, who in trying to pry the battlers from a clinch in the sixth round was bumped on the mouth by Risko's head. The impact knocked out one of the referee's teeth.

Risko's big pull in the weights, 192 to 184 1-2 for Griffiths, did not appear to do him any good. The gross receipts for the fight were $42,466.39.

The Preliminaries

Joe Sekyra, of Dayton, Ohio, considered a formidable light heavyweight title contender at one time, was knocked out in one round tonight by Larry Johnson, flashing Negro boxer of Chicago, in a scheduled 10-round preliminary. Sekyra was counted out from a solid right hand smash to the jaw after 1 minute, 46 seconds of scrapping.

Sekyra was beaten by the first real punch of the fight. He was on one knee, apparently ready to get up and resume boxing, but was so dizzy he toppled over on his back as he attempted to regain his feet. Sekyra weighed 179 and Johnson 173.

El Pidio Pizarro, young Cuban heavyweight, knocked out Jack Goodwin, New York veteran, in 1 minute and 13 seconds of the first four-round preliminary.

The next scheduled four-rounder also was short, Marty Fox of the East Side being awarded a technical knockout over Eddie Herbst, former amateur star, when a gashed lip kept the latter from answering the bell for the third round.

Paul Cavalier of Paterson, N. J., 192 1-2, battered his way to a decision over Harold Mays of Bayonne, N. J., 191 1-2, in the ten round semi-final. It was a slugging bee most of the way, devoid of knockdowns, and the verdict was close.

BOSTON EVENS SERIES WITH THE PROS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Dec. 27.—The Boston Whirlwinds evened the series with the Plainfield Pros here this evening before one of the largest crowds ever to attend a local basketball game. The Whirlwinds emerged winners by a score of 39 to 35.

The game was one of the fastest of the current season and was nip and tuck from start to finish with the ultimate outcome always in doubt. At the end of the first half the Plainfield team was trailing the leaders 14 to 19 but were able to cut only one point from this advantage in the second half. The Boston team was strengthened by Dixon, a college star, who although scoring no points played a brilliant floor game. Conway led the Plainfield scorers and Riordan was high scorer for Boston.

In the preliminary game the Buddies trounced the Radio Five of Danielson 24 to 18 in a fast game.

Next week the Plainfield Pros clash with the Renaissance Five of Brooklyn.

COLLEGES TO ABANDON COACHING FROM BENCH

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 27—(AP)—Coaching from the bench will not be permitted in the eastern intercollegiate baseball league games, played by Princeton against Yale and Columbia, next spring. The undergraduate players will devise their own strategy without the assistance of the coaches, according to announcement today by Dr. Charles W. Kennedy, chairman of Princeton's board of athletic control.

Dr. Kennedy said Columbia and Yale had accepted the proposal made by Princeton to all league members that the games be played under these conditions. Cornell, Dartmouth and Pennsylvania, the other league members, have not yet accepted the idea.

Dr. Kennedy issued this statement:

"Believing that one of the great benefits that should come to an undergraduate from participation in sports is the development of initiative, self-dependence, and resourcefulness in meeting and solving the various problems which arise in the course of an athletic contest, representatives of Princeton on the executive committee of the eastern intercollegiate baseball league at the June meeting of that committee, extended a formal invitation to all other members of the league to play their baseball games with Princeton next spring with the coach off the bench and with the direction and control of the game lodged solely in the hands of the undergraduate players.

"Princeton's invitation has since been accepted by Columbia and Yale universities, and their games with Princeton in the season of 1930, will be played under this policy. Other members of the league have expressed a sympathetic interest in this experiment and it is possible that one or more of them may ultimately decide to apply the same policy in their league games."

SHIRES AND SPOHRER TO BOX SIX-ROUND BOUT

BOSTON, Dec. 27—(AP)—Arthur (The Great) Shires and Al Spohrer, Boston Braves catcher, will clash in a six round bout here on January 10, accord to an announcement made today by the Boston Garden management. This baseball battle will be the semi-final to the Ernie Schaaf-Al Friedman heavyweight contest.

Spohrer, according to Boston friends, has been perfecting his ring technic under the expert supervision of Tommy Loughran, the retired light heavyweight champion, and has promised to throw the loquacious White Sox first baseman "plenty of left jabs."

Everybody's Dreaming

Everybody's dreaming—
Not the dreams that come
In the night-time only
When the dark is dumb,
But Dreams which are like dewy buds
That some bright day may blow—
Illusions that afar we bless.
And far forever glow.

Everybody's dreaming—
Oh, the balm for care,
And for the ache of toiling eyes
When all is bleak and bare.
Who says that dreaming's folly?
No happy dream is vain:
Don't the Roses shatter
In the summer rain?

Everybody's dreaming—
'Tis a pleasant thought
That the sweetest thing in life
Never can be bought;
That the priceless gift is Unlimited of goal.
For true, or not, our dreams are
The pinions of the soul.

The Seamstress

They know not, as I sit and sew,
And snip and baste, and mend;
To me my seams are woodland trails,
With beauty round the bend.

They know not, that green shim'ring silk,
To me, bespeaks of trees,
That sway in sheer abandonment
When kiss'd by Summer's breeze.

They think me strange when I suggest
Bright yellow trimmed with blue;
They see it not, blues of mountain mists
With sunlight slanting through.

And as I stitch my trimming on
Soft purples, gold, and rose—
I see the twilight skies aflame
With tints exceeding those.

So as I sit and tuck, and smock,
And sew my many seams;
The trees, the mists, the sky, the flow'rs
Are fabrics of my dreams!

BEAUTIES OF THE FROST KING

Dear Social Corner Editor: Walking down the street early last Sunday morning, my attention was attracted to a most beautiful frost picture on three large windows. I stopped for several minutes to look with wonder and admiration upon the most wonderful picture in frost that I ever saw.

Each window was some six by four feet in size, and there was not one inch of space that hadn't been made beautiful by the frost artist.

First there were many ferns, perfect in form and large in proportions, reaching from the bottom of the window to near the top. The size, I imagine, was like those of the fern age, from which our vast deposits of coal were formed.

We saw in this picture several small low growing plants, and from the center of two or three, sprang stalks, two inches or more in diameter; four feet at least in height; on top was the drooping branches and leaves of the palmetto, common in the far away sunny southland. There in the same field of fern and palm were large plumes, three or more feet in height and of proportionate width with their graceful curves, and fine curled feathered edge, not unlike the ostrich plumes displayed in the milliner's show windows, except in size.

A white roadway of several feet, winding among the ferns and palms, was bordered on either side by small shrubs and fine delicate ferns. Several figures of human form were in a group standing underneath the palms and ferns. Angular vines reached out as if to span a chasm or form a rope-like bridge.

A dozen or more perfectly formed stalactites were hanging from the top like the incrustation of carbonate of lime that are seen hanging from the roof of the Luray and Shenandoah caverns of Virginia. High up on a butting cliff stood a perfect castle with its windows, battlements and sharp angles to fit the uneven surface on which it is built.

We saw large and perfect cathedral spires reaching heavenward, and at the base are smaller spires in perfect form.

On what appeared to be an almost perpendicular mountain side, sprang trees and shrubs in upright position, while jutting out from the sides here and there are plants of various shapes in nearly horizontal position. Standing alone on one window was a good sized tree with ropes and festoons of fine moss reaching nearly to the base of the tree, like the southern moss that clings to the live oak trees in the city cemetery of Savannah, Ga.

As I stood and admired these perfect and wonderful frost pictures I could almost see the palms, plumes and ferns moving gently in a passing breeze.

Passing along, I said to myself, what a study for an artist. But with all his studying and viewing from all angles, he would not be able with pencil or brush, to transpose perfectly this frost picture onto paper or canvass. Neither could the artist with the etching needle form the beautiful lines and curves as shown on these window panes.

To tint each plant with colors suited to its character, from his pallette of paints would not add one bit to its beauty.

A few days later this beautiful picture, by the warmth of out-doors and in, had been changed to small rivulets, running over the window ledge onto the sidewalk and curbing to be frozen at nightfall, making for the passer-by dangerous footing on the crystal coating and should he fall he would not praise the icy coating as I did the beauties of the frost artist.

QUID NUNC

THE GREAT STORM

Dear Social Corner Friends: Good evening everybody. I thought I would have to tell you more about our great storm. The first of the kind in half century, the paper says. King Winter had Portland and surrounding country painted with ice.

After 60 hours, the sun shone beautifully on Friday. Talk about the Arctic regions, they have nothing on the south western part of Maine at present. The trees are all broken down, not so much the pine, but all kinds of growth the elms especially. In my yard is a silver maple, it was a beauty, but now there isn't anything left but the trunk, looks like a flagp-ole. A telephone line from our street back into the woods, nearly one mile, has many poles down but the wires are stripped from the few poles that are not already down. A man came to the door quite early Friday morning and wanted an axe to cut a tree that had fallen across the street.

A large tree fell in Mr. Chase's yard across the street, bourn down from the weight of ice. It is a sad looking sight to see the fruit trees all broken down. There is about 6 inches of snow and 2 inches of solid ice.

Damage increases to millions, 30,000 homes without lights and power. It will be 10 days before we will get our lights again. So hard to work with kerosene lights. Twenty Boston experts, to aid repair of telephone lines, are here. The Boy Scouts are helping to clean up the city of Portland. A lineman escapes uninjured as 2,200 volts pass through his body. Lucky lad I'll say. Only the fact that metal connectors and a screwdriver in his pocket broke the circuit saved him.

Fred D. Gordon, general manager of the company, said, "They are the most loyal set of men the company ever had. In my 34 years with power, light and transportation companies, I have never seen a situation quite so black. One more straw on the camel's back and we would go out of business. I cannot picture anything half so sad looking. Lewiston and Auburn were cut off from Portland. No news, only what the trainmen could tell. I wish I could tell you more about it. It is a long story. Only to be seen to realize how beautiful everything looked when the sun did come out. And today, looking through the grove as the wind kept the trees moving, it was a beautiful sight for many are heavily coated with ice now. Only wish you could see the pictures of Portland.

I was pleased to see the Social Corner filled. I was afraid it might disappear, but this is a busy time of year.

Want to thank the many Sisters who have remembered me with cards. I appreciate your thoughtfulness.

Pleased to learn our Sister has returned from hospital—Powagat, I think that is her name.

Pal of Longago: Thanks for card, it was lovely.

I want to thank all my friends for their cards and letters, and I trust you will have a merry Christmas and a happy New Year. Sincere wishes of

DO YOU KEEP A DIARY?

Dear Editor and Corner Friends: I wonder how many of us keep diaries? Do as many people make such records now as in earlier days? My first diary was a small green covered notebook from the five-and-ten, quite commonplace but for the little looking glass set in the cover which gave it an air of distinction quite worthy of a diary. I was around nine then and the diary was kept up with more or less regularity for five or six years. Most of our school compositions were rather formal in nature and I do not think they were of much benefit in securing self-expression judging by my diaries. But as statements of unadorned fact, these records are quite masterpieces and hence have a certain historic family value.

About a year ago I started another one and though I have never quite decided whether its a good or bad habit, perhaps I shall try it out for another year.

The dawn of another year is almost with us so perhaps a quotation by W. R. Hunt, from "A Morning Wash," will express our thoughts most fittingly. "The sun is just rising on the morning of another day, the first day of a new year. What can I wish that this day, this year, may bring to me? Nothing that shall make the world or others poorer, nothing at the expense of other men; but just those few things which in their coming do not stop with me, but touch me rather, as they pass, and gather strength.

A few friends who understand me, and yet remain my friends.

A work to do which has real value and without which the world would feel the poorer.

An understanding heart.

A sight of the eternal hills and unresting sea, and of something beautiful the hand of man has made.

A sense of humor and the power to laugh.

A little leisure with nothing to do.

A few moments of quiet, silent meditation. The sense of the presence of God.

And the patience to wait for the coming of these things, with the wisdom to know them when they come"

DISLIKED TRUNDLE BEDS

Dear Friends of the Social Corner: I certainly shall be dropped as a member of the Social Corner unless I write once in a while. It is not because I can not find the time but just negligence and not much of interest to write about, but when some of the writers spoke of trundle beds it brought to my mind how I had to sleep on one when I was a very small child. It was run under my mother's bed in the day time and pulled out at night. I never liked to sleep in it, and every time I could I would tease mother to sleep with her which was always granted. I am very glad that children now have as good beds as the grown ups.

Daisy Dean: Do you come to Putnam often now? It was pretty nice at the time you were here to spend an hour or so with our kind neighbor who lived at the east of us. I think you will know who I mean. Here is a clipping I took from one of Gipsy Smith's sermons; "God," he said, "took the blue of the violet and the red of the rose, the yellow of the daffodil, and the white of the black thorn. He mixed them in the cup of a lily with dew, out of the dew he wove a scarf; he threw the scarf around the poor tired shoulders of a dying storm and men called it a rainbow."

I think the mothers who have had small boys will appreciate this poem by Anne Campbell entitled, Stay a Little, Boy!

Stay a little, boy! Don't go
From these arms that love you so.
You're so cozy on my knee,
And your kisses comfort me.
It is such a trifling boon,
Do not be a man too soon!
Stay a little boy! Don't go
From these arms that love you so.

Stay a little, boy! Please do!
Life is sweet because of you.
Your quaint chatter, your bright smile
Make my every task worth while.
There's a shadow on the moon!
Do not be a man too soon!
Stay a little, boy! Please do!
Life is sweet because of you!

Wishing all a merry Christmas and a hppy New Year. ANNE O

THE STORY OF SANTA CLAUS

Dear Social Corner Friends and Editor: Since we began to talk about Christmas I have been asked to tell when Santa Claus first began to bring presents to the children and I have been looking up the history of the good man.

The earliest account I have found was in an old Italian story written long before America was discovered by Christopher Columbus. It was about three little girls whose mother was dead. They lived with their father who had once been a gallant knight, but who was very poor. Near their home stood a little low hut in which Santa Claus known as "The Good" and that was in the far off long ago. He had been a cobbler. Now he was the queerest, funniest looking old man you ever saw. His cheeks were wrinkled through almost hidden by great heavy eye brows. His eyes had a merry winkle. His coat was made of leather and it had a hood attached which he wore instead of a hat. But in fact it said Santa Claus had a kind heart. We could see the old knight sitting in his big straw chair alone night after night moaning to himself, "I shall die, I shall die and what will become of my little girls without friends or money?"

Then aSnta Claus thought what good children they were and said to himself, "Last night I saw baby Pia sharing her few crumbs with two little birds, and little Nila threw me (an old man) a kiss as she said "Good night," while the angels must love good patient little Pia who every morning says her prayers and cares for them like a little mother. I have gold and will make their hearts glad. So he made three leather bags, one for Nila, one for Pia and one for the little girl who, hungry herself, fed God's little birds. These bags were filled with money and just as the midnight bells rang out Christmas eve, he went out softly to the knight and saw him sitting quietly in his old straw chair. Santa Claus then went to the roof and dropped the leather bags down the chimney and heard the exclamations by the old knight as they rolled out on the hearth. Then he slipped away and neither knight nor the little girls knew who was their benefactor. Because of this kind act it is said, Santa never died and although this happened more than a thousand years ago, yet on every Christmas eve he starts round the world carrying gifts for the children everywhere, in every land.

He goes by different names in different countries. We know him as Santa Claus, the little boys and girls call him "Father Christmas." In Holland he is known as "Saint Nick." The German children call him "Kris Kringle" and the Russian children know him as Robousha. This is the story of Santa Claus and may we all be like him and make others happy whenever we can is the wish of ANN TENNA.

GUSTA SENDS GREETINGS

Dear Editor: At the beginning of this writing, I extend New Year's greetings to you, all my friends and acquaintances, on Dec. 31, which is near at hand. At midnight hour when the clocks begin to strike and the church bells begin to ring out the old and ring in the new and with each measured stroke, the ebbing life of the old year race is nearly run and the bells peal forth a note of sadness upon the scenes and as the last stroke mingles with the ringing, the pulse that has controlled the lever ceases its throb and the bells are ringing a farewell to the old year in tones triumphant are ringing in the birth of a new year; the crossing from the old to the new year is at hand and the leaf turns in the book of time and the mistakes of life which are many are left behind.

Then we greet the new year with thoughts for a better life, new resolutions are formed and our faith strengthened, but not all of them kept so amid the perplexities and problems in the every day life with thoughts, words and deeds for the good or bad will be recorded against our name throughout the coming year.

GUSTA, (No. 5 Club.)

NEW YEAR'S MEETING

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: Well Christmas is over. And I hope you all had a very merry Christmas. I wish one and all a happy New Year. Now every one make a special effort to be at our meeting, Club No. 5 Wed., Jan. 1 1930. We have a surprise in the way of a hostess. Come all who can, and bring something good to eat. Also bringing anything you have to read so that we may have a nice social time after our dinner. I wish to thank all of the dear Sisters who so generously remembered me with such nice Christmas greetings. Now remember, Jan. 1, in the Buckingham Memorial. Just a word to all that had chances on the scarf. Whirlwind, of Southington, drew it with Number 39. The proceeds from the scarf helped to give a little Christmas cheer to the old lady and her daughter. With best wishes and a prosperous New Year to all, and a speedy recovery to the sick ones.

ENJOYS LETTERS OF LONG AGO

Dear Social Corner Friends:—After a long silence I've started to write again. First I wish to thank all who sent me birthday cards and Christmas cards. I've read all the most excellent letters that others have written and enjoyed them, especially those of the long ago. Was glad to see a letter from Aunt Jerusha and Olga. I think every week that I will write but it gets put off. Jennie wrote about the trundle bed. I have slept in one, in a room where there was an air tight stove. I would lay there and watch the fire burn when the draft was open. Those were halcyon days.

Three of the houses where I lived in the country are burned. I had a very nice Thanksgiving through the kindness of friends and neighbors. By the time this gets in print we will be past another holiday the greatest of all. I trust every one will enjoy it. As for myself the days are about all alike, always had music and flowers in my home and find life worth living.

Some time ago Mr. Spicer of Fitchville had a very interesting letter in The Bulletin. I knew the people he mentioned and have seen Dr. Mary Walker, met her on Main street. Wish he would write some more, also Quid Nunc and "Dad" Shaw. Where is Crimson Rambler, Kochia and a good many more? We seldom see a letter from J. E. T. these days. Now L. T. H. you will see a letter you asked for.

The seasons greetings to all.

PREPARING DUCKS FOR THE OVEN

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor:—Has been a long time since I did my bit by writing. Have been busy sewing for some friends.

I wish to get my hearty Christmas greetings and best wishes for the New year in before its too late.

I have certainly enjoyed reading the Social Corner page every week except a couple of times when I didn't receive the paper and was very disappointed in not getting it. Tomorrow night I have to trim our Christmas tree. Wish I had a good place outside to put it where more could enjoy it.

I think I'll taste glue for a month after sealing and stamping 26 Christmas cards.

Can some sister tell me if duck fat is all right to use in cooking same as chicken fat for such use as pies and biscuits. I have quite a lot and thought it was too nice to discard.

I pick the ducks, then singe and wash in hot water, not boiling, with a teaspoon of baking soda. It cleans off all the very fine fuzz that I can't pick off. I used three waters on the ones I had for Thanksgiving as they were older and had more fuzz which was harder to get off. Then I let them get good and cold before drawing, to chill the fat for its hard to handle them after washing in hot water on account of being greasy. When they were all ready for the oven I took the point of my paring knife and cut the skin in short incisions all over, where the fat is the size of the knife point and all the geese cooked out so they were not greasy to eat. This is my own idea.

It's late and I'll close trusting none of the sick and shut ins will be forgotten for Christmas and New Years.

Will have more time to write often after the holidays. LADY-SLIPPER.

JENNIE WRITES OF TRUNDLE BEDS

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: I was much pleased to hear from Daisy Dean and Capricorn and to learn they had slept in a trundle bed, in their younger days, and Sister E. L. M. must come up to Hartford and see the old "trundles," at the Morgan Memorial, then she will realize what it all means, as she says she has never seen one. Sister Rosary probably has seen her mother's trundle bed, even though she herself did not sleep in one. I thank these sisters for their responses and hope others may add their experiences. Now that this is the annual event of exchanging gifts and messages of good cheer, and best wishes for the new year, all sorts of presents will be received. To those who may receive potted ferns I would like to offer a few suggestions regarding the care of this indoor plant. First it seems preferable they should be placed in front of a window where there is not much sun exposure for all day. Every two weeks set them into a tub, and, with a soft sponge, give them a thorough washing and allow the pot to stand in water for about an hour, but not let the water come up to the top of the pot. In this way the pot will absorb much moisture and keep the soil damp. Add a teaspoonful of household ammonia to one quart of water, at the washing time, and it will improve the rich green color. When the leaves turn yellow, slice a raw potato, put it on top of the soil, and it will draw out the worms, which are generally the cause. Once a month work a fresh oyster or small piece of raw beef down into the soil with a fork, be careful not to disturb the roots. We are in the closing days of another year that brings our thoughts of regrets and pleasures, which are but a memory of 1929. We can hope for the future, but must do our part to continue the welfare of the Social Corner, not only for the printed page but personal friendships.

Best wishes to all, with prosperity for 1930.

JENNIE (Club 1.)

COLUMBIA

An audience which filled the church, Wednesday evening, enjoyed the community Christmas pageant, written and directed by Miss Leila Church, of Rockville. The story was read by Miss Gladys Rice, and the scenes were enacted by about 40 people. Mrs. Elsie Collins was chairman of the committee in charge of the production of the pageant.

Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Schriefer received word, Christmas morning, of a Christmas grand-daughter, born to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schriefer, of Bridgeport.

First Selectman Clair Robinson was notified, Saturday, that a heifer in the Pine street section, had been badly bitten by dogs. Mr. Robinson, with Dog Warden Conrad Schriefer, investigated and found the heifer so badly injured that it was necessary to kill her. One of the two dogs responsible was also located and killed, but the other is still running wild. The dogs belonged to a man who moved to New York, abandoning the dogs to starve or get their living as best they might.

Christmas guests at the home of Mrs. Jennie Hunt were Mrs. Alice Turner and Miss May Turner, Willimantic, Mr. and Mrs. George Champlin and Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Hunt and family, of Columbia.

Miss Enid Hawkins, of Brooklyn, spent Christmas with Mrs. Elizabeth Natsch.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lyman and two children spent Christmas in Wethersfield, at the home of Mr. Lyman's mother.

Mrs. Bessie Trythall, Shirley Trythall, Miss Harle Field and Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Field spent Christmas in Willimantic, with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hutchins had as Christmas guests, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Stanley and little daughter, of Andover, and Mr. and Mrs. Lester Hutchins and son, Francis, of Columbia.

Special services and music marked Christmas Sunday in the Columbia church. The morning service was well attended, and in the evening the church was well filled at the special service. Two anthems were sung by the choir and Mrs. Edith Isham sang "The Birthday of a King." Carols were sung by all, and the service ended with an impressive candle lighting service. All lights were extinguished and the ushers, with lighted candles, lighted the candles held by the congregation, who followed the choir out singing, "Holy Night." The pastor, Rev. John Howell, played a bell solo during the service.

Christmas was well celebrated by the town schools, some having their exercises Thursday evening, others Friday during the day and evening. The Center school held exercises in the town hall, Friday afternoon, before a large audience of parents and friends. The principal part of the program was the acting of the pupils' own arrangement of Dickens' "Christmas Carol." Songs and recitations completed the program. The West street school held exercises Friday evening and gave a six-act play before a schoolhouse filled with friends. One noticeable feature in the school programs is that they are carried out by the children, the teacher sitting among the audience. It would appear that the children are learning valuable lessons of self-reliance.

A Christmas party for the younger children was held in the chapel, Saturday afternoon, under the auspices of the Sunday school, 29 little ones, under 12, being present. They played games and made fancy baskets and then Santa Claus appeared and presented each a gift and a box of candy. They were given a lunch of sandwiches, cocoa and little cakes. The committee in charge comprised Mrs. Howell, Miss Harle Field and Miss Gladys Rice.

Mrs. Eugene LaFleur left Saturday to spend the holidays with her parents, in Meriden.

Miss Eleanor Collins, of New York, is with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Collins.

The little Christmas tree between the chapel and town hall has been wired and is being lighted every night during the Christmas season. Several trees on the green are lighted this year for the first time.

The many friends of Mrs. Merwin, of Hartford, a summer resident of Columbia, learned, with great sorrow, of her death last week, after a brief illness.

The Christmas mail came in in great quantities. The heaviest was Monday morning when 12 bags, mostly packages and Christmas cards, were brought in from Willimantic by the star carrier. Deliveries Monday were made by Substitute Carrier Donald Woodward.

The 4-H Happy-Go-Lucky Sewing club held a Christmas party Monday afternoon at the town hall.

The tail end of the western blizzard struck here Monday with light snow during the day, turning, just at dark, to sleet and rain, which froze on windshields, making travel difficult for a short time. Later the sleet turned back to snow, with a slightly higher temperature. The recent rains have, in some cases helped the wells quite a bit. Others remain as dry as a bone and, in all probability, will stay that way until the spring rains.

EAGLEVILLE

Christmas exercises by the school were held Friday afternoon. There were plays recitations and singing by the children. Most of the decorations for the tree were made by the pupils. Santa Claus distributed the gifts. Parents and friends of the children attended.

Mr. and Mrs. George Reynolds, Mrs. Edward Warren and Mrs. James W. Green attended a supper at the Memorial church, South Willington, last week Thursday.

A number from here attended the Christmas exercises of the school at Mansfield Depot, Friday night. Articles, made by the children, were on sale.

Mr. and Mrs. George Reynolds attended a birthday party for E. H. Thompson at his home, in Mansfield Depot, Saturday night. Whist was played. Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds won first prizes.

Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Loomis and son spent Christmas with Mr. Loomis' brother, in Suffield.

Christmas exercises at Eagleville Union Sunday school were held Sunday night at six o'clock. The exercises opened with a violin duet by Walter Adams and Paul Hamer; Twenty-third Psalm and Lord's Prayer, by the school; recitations, "The Old Doll," Arlene Linderson, "Christmas Day," Emerald Green and Lyndon Lyman; poem, by Philip Linderson; "The First Christmas," Nancy Langdon; song, "Hung up My Stocking," children; recitations, Fay McCollum, Vivian Johnson; song, "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear," school; recitations, Louise Eaton and Alton Taylor, Evelyn Lound and Lucille Adams; song, Mr. Linderson's class; exercise, Eleanor Hopkins, Elsie Labonte, Marjorie Thompson and Shirley Ashley; song, "Joy to the World," school; song, "Santa Claus has Come to Town," children. Santa Claus arrived while the children were singing and helped to distribute the gifts. The hall and tree were prettily decorated.

Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Dore and children are visiting relatives in Rhode Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Miner have moved to Willimantic. Mr. and Mrs. Goodwin Jacobson have moved into the tenement vacated by them.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hart and children are spending the week with Rhode Island relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Prue, Mrs. H. F. Thompson and Mr. and Mrs. William Danks and children spent the holiday with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Prue.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thompson and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Thompson and family were holiday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Brown, at Storrs.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Landen, of Willimantic, spent Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. Emil Landen.

STOCK PRICES DROPPED FOLLOWING MODERATE RISE EARLY IN THE SESSION

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP) —The rally in stock prices, promoted by short covering which began Tuesday, was swamped with renewed liquidation today, after a final spurt during the early hours of the session. Popular trading shares generally rose to 5 points in the morning, only to lose most of their gains before the close, several closing moderately lower.

With the covering movement apparently completed, the market turned decidedly dull, with the short interest reduced, enthusiasm in the bull camp waned and shares were permitted to drift lower pending more definite measurement of the success of the holiday retail trade, and clearer indications of the course of general business after the turn of the year. Speculators for the advance have of late quickly turned cautious once a technical rally has been completed. The activity of the morning was sufficient to pile up total sales of 3,363,840 shares, 787,100 more than yesterday.

Credit conditions continued to tighten, in keeping with the expectations at this period. Call money renewed at 6 per cent for the first time since mid-November, and held at that level all day. Calling of loans was moderate, however and money brokers believed the rate might be held at that figure until after the turn of the year, when an abrupt relaxation may, in a normal course of events, be expected. Gold continued to flow from this center, $11,250,000 being engaged to shipment to France, carrying the total export movement of the metal since November 1 close to $100,000,000.

Business and trade information coming to hand was largely in keeping with expectations. Railway earnings reports for November continued to show substantial declines, both from October and November of 1928 The Atchison however, was a notable exception to the general trend. President Storey of that road, in announcing a 1930 budget of $280,000,000 for expansion, maintenance and betterments, said he looked for a normal year, but pointed out that normal would not be "anywhere near" 1929 results. The weekly trade and business reviews said that while holiday trade equalled 1928 in volume, a trend toward cheaper lines makes the money value of the business difficult to estimate. Low inventories of goods were indicated as auguring a moderate revival of activity in January.

Such shares as U. S. Steel, General Electric, American Can, American and Foreign Power, Johns Manville, International Telephone, American Telephone and Simmons sold up about 3 to 5 points during the morning, but these gains were practically all almost lost during the afternoon. General Electric and American Telephone closed with net losses of 1 3-4 points, and U. S. Steel ended the session off 1-4. International Business Machines was a buoyant feature, gaining 14 points in a small turnover. Several of the merchandising shares were under pressure, but Macy closed up 5 points.

Fox Film was again depressed, closing off about 3 points. Sears Roebuck lost 4 points. Rails were generally heavy. New York Central, Norfolk and Western and Union Pacific lost 3 to 4 points. Soo Line dropped about 7 points to near its 1929 low. Motors eased, after yesterday's slight upturn. Hawaiian Pineapple dropped 11 points and Westvaco Chlorine 9 to new lows.

Grains reacted. Wheat futures showed losses running to 3 cents a bushel, in reflection of bearish weather reports, lower Liverpool cables and large shipments from Argentina. Corn futures lost about half as much. The cotton market was dull, and closing prices showed little change.

Foreign exchanges were generally steady. The Canadian dollar rallied from 99 to 99.21 7-8 cents. The Spanish peseta continued weak, touching a new low for more than a year at 13.44 cents.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 27—(AP)—A slightly better inquiry was noticeable in the bond market today and the volume increased in all departments, but the list showed little change. High grade industrials, which have been sluggish, made a small upward move in which the best rails and the United States governments joined.

Few features developed. Many of the important changes were on the downside in response to liquidation of several low priced industrials and specialties for tax purposes. Convertibles softened in the late trading as the stock market went into reverse, but the early gains had been fairly generous and the net losses were only moderate. American Telephone 4 1-2s turned over to the extent of more than $1,000,000 for the first time in several days, touching 141 and then slipping to 137. They closed half a point higher for a net loss of 7-8. These debentures are convertible beginning January 1.

Interest in the better grade industrials quickened early in the afternoon after a lazy forenoon. Bonds in this division have not been so popular as some of the rails and utilities but it was apparent that they were regarded as attractive at their recent levels. Armour 5 1-2s, Armour Real Estate 4 1-2s, General Steel Castings 5 1-2s, Inland Steel 4 1-2s, American Smelting 5s and Bethlehem Steel Purchase Money Mortgage 5s rose from 1-4 to a full point. The weak industrials and specialties included Foreign Sugars, Hudson Coal 5s, Pathe 7s and the Schulco 6 1-2s, Series A and B. The last named tumbled 6 7-8 and 9 points, respectively.

The best support in the rails was given to Santa Fe General 4s, Baltimore & Ohio refunding 5s, St. Paul adjustment 5s, Erie convertible 4s, New York Central Improvement 5s, Missouri Pacific General 4s and Missouri Kansas Texas prior lien 4s. Numerous secondary rails shaded lower.

Utilities showed a wide mixture of advances and declines. On the upside were Cincinnati Gas & Electric 4s, Denver Gas & Electric 5s and several telephone company loans, while losses of corresponding size were registered in Western Union 6 1-2s and collateral 5s, North American Edison 5 1-2s, and Ohio Public Service 7s.

The Fourth Liberty Loan, with a gain of 1-4, was the only government obligation to make a sizeable move, although the group as a whole pointed upward.

Prices in the foreign list fluctuated narrowly, as a rule, but weakness persisted in a few Latin Americans. Bolivian 7s lost 7 points and the Peruvians were still heavy. On the other hand, Uruguay 6s advanced more than 2 points after equalling their year's low. Pernambuco 7s touched their 1929 minimum of 70 on a 3 point decline.

European governments were firm. French 7s sold at the new high of 112 1-2 while the 7 1-2 came within a small fraction of their peak price.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Dec. 27—(AP)—Evidence of stubborn refusal to follow North America wheat price advances came from Liverpool and Buenos Aires today and wheat values here suffered material downturns. Premiums, though, for United States wheat both at the Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic seaboard were made stiffer, and indications pointed to likelihood that the amount of wheat afloat for Europe, already much scantier than usual, is to be further curtailed. On the other hand export business today from the United States and Canada lacked volume, and North American breadstuff clearances for the week were disappointingly small.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat today were unsettled, 1 3-8 to 2c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1-4 and 3-8 to 1c down, oats 3-8 to 1-2 and 5-8c off, and provisions varying from 5c setback to a rise of 2 and 5c.

Assertions which were current that Europeans are playing a cat-and-mouse game, and are biding their time to pounce on wheat offerings from North America, failed to alter the fact that this week's Argentine and Australian exports as figured today showed a fair increase over the week previous. Meanwhile Liverpool quotations today were far lower than had been looked for, and the Buenos Aires market was weak notwithstanding sharply reduced official Argentine crop estimates. Undoing of so-called spread transactions between Liverpool and the other market centers was given as one reason for the price breaks at Liverpool, and there were reports that Argentine growers are continuing to offer wheat freely with Argentine exporters buying only on recessions.

Offsetting in some degree the action of European and Argentine markets today were advices that agencies of the federal farm board are arranging for storage space at various market terminals, apparently with a view to preventing domestic wheat from pressing unduly on the market. Messages received here said 1,000,000 bushels of storage room had thus been arranged for at Omaha, and that more space would be taken if needed. Falling off in primary receipts of wheat today was also a subject of attention, today's arrivals being decidedly smaller than either a week or a year ago.

Corn and oats eased down as a result of wheat weakness and because of predicted lower temperatures likely to increase the movement of corn to market.

Provisions were responsive to declines both in hog values and in grain.

COTTON

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—(AP)—Cotton futures closed steady, 3 points higher to 7 lower. Spot steady; middling 17.40.

HANOVER

The closing exercises of the Hanover school, held in the parish house, Friday evening was a truly a community affair, with recitations and songs by the children previous to the appearance of Santa Claus, who distributed gifts from the beautifully decorated tree. Not only all the school children were remembered, but all of the smaller ones in the community and some of the older ones as well.

Special Christmas music was rendered by the full choir at the Congregational church Sunday morning. At 7:30 the young people gave a most interesting pageant illustrating the manger at Bethlehem. The principal characters were taken by Miss Dorothy Lee and Miss Dorothy Thornes. The younger children represented the leading nations of the world as coming with adoration to the manger of the Christ Child at Bethlehem, and they took their parts remarkably well. At the close of the pageant the congregation assembled around the community tree on the park, and, under direction of the choir leader, William G. Park, a number of Christmas carols were sung.

Christmas eve found lighted candles in the windows of the larger part of Hanover's homes.

Those who desired a white Christmas were favored this year as they looked at the hills and roadsides, yet the condition of the snow and hail which came Monday did not favor skiing or coasting to any great extent, but as it did not remain upon the edges of the Airlie Mills pond, the ice on the borders made very good skating for the boys, after inspecting their gifts and eating their Christmas dinners.

The rumble of the truck loads of gravel and sand is still heard, not only as they come from Nelson Adams' bank on the Burr place, but the employes of the state are quarrying this precious commodity from the bank belonging to Mrs. Ella Bennett.

The recent rains have partially filled the reservoir in Judge Adams' park, fitting it for the usual winter occupations and sports so much enjoyed there after the days of playing horseshoes and summer weather.

EKONK

(STERLING HILL)

Miss Lizzie Maynard is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. Warren Tanner.

William Lord and family, of Mystic, visited over Sunday, at Wieland Gardner's. Mrs. Lord and children remaining for a longer visit.

A Christmas concert, held at Ekonk church Sunday evening, was largely attended. After the program gifts for all were distributed from a well-laden tree.

Saturday evening the Grangers and their friends enjoyed a Christmas tree in Grange hall. Each one present received a gift.

George Tanner butchered two fine pigs Monday.

No service was held Sunday on Sterling hill, many attending the pageant given in Moosup Baptist church.

The body of Judson Davis, of Providence, was brought to Oneco cemetery Sunday afternoon for burial. Mr. Davis' parents lived on Sterling hill for a number of years and Judson Davis was a frequent visitor with relatives and friends here. He leaves a daughter and a sister.

STRAY BULLET CRASHES THROUGH WINDOW OF A NEW LONDON HOME

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 27.—Mrs. Ernest Decker, 100 Riverview avenue, reported to the police this evening that while she was seated in the living room of her home, a stray bullet crashed through one of the windows, but did not strike herself or any of her children.

L. E. Dunn, 39 Deshon street, reported to the police tonight that he struck a dog on Montauk avenue, but that he did not know whether the animal sustained serious injury, for the dog disappeared after being struck.

Signs Ignored

Although there are innumerable streets in the city which are restricted to traffic only one way, the law is unheeded and as far as the police are concerned they do not appear to care whether the law is abided by or neglected. Two of the one-way streets referred to are Starr and Green streets; although these thoroughfares have been one-way streets for a long time, not a single arrest has been made for this form of violation. The sidewalks signs which designate that traffic is restricted to more than one-half hour parking are also neglected and the signs are moved to any part of the highway that meets the accommodation of the autoist.

The most congested section of this city is at the intersection of Bank and Truman streets. There are half a dozen streets leading into these thoroughfares and all are extensively traveled highways. Autos come in two directions into either street, and they are the outlet of Shaw and Hebron streets, and Montauk and Jefferson avenue, Town Hill and Ocean avenue. There is a school in the vicinity on Montauk avenue and though children are passing at frequent intervals in the morning, at noon and late in the afternoon, there have been very few mishaps there. Truman street now takes much of the travel that went by way of Bank street, because the former highway is in perfect condition and the street has been laid in cement. Town Hill is the main road from Waterford, also the highway by which all travel goes from New London to the westward.

Oysters and lobsters are in the markets in abundance at present and they have become an important item of food in the homes of the city. They are more reasonable in price because of their abundance this season.

The wild weather of today has cleared the streets and sidewalks of their accumulation of snow and ice, to the gratification of pedestrians and autoists.

At the annual meeting of Home Rebekah lodge, No. 50, held in Odd Fellows hall, Groton, last night, the following officers were elected: Noble grand, Mrs. Frances Packer; vice grand, Mrs. Marguerite Pfeiffer; recording secretary, Ms. Carlone Litwhiler; financial secretary, Mrs. Angeline Lund; treasurer, Mrs. Mary Fowler; trustee for three years, Mrs. Alvina Bowker. The officers will be installed at the meeting Jan. 8.

ICE WHICH WAS 9 INCHES LOST THROUGH WEATHER

New London ice dealers, who had planned to harvest the first crop of ice this week, are greatly disappointed because of the high temperature that prevailed the past 48 hours. The ice, which had attained a thickness of nine inches, has now dwindled to six inches so that more cold weather must prevail before the cutting is started.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

The Palace Management has had so many good things to talk about lately that perhaps it has not said sufficient concerning the great picture which it starts presenting today and which will be played there through Tuesday evening of next week, "Navy Blues," a riotous comedy feature starring William Haines, Anita Page, Karl Dane, J. C. Nugent, Edythe Chapman and Wade Boteler. Here is a picture that is certain beyond a doubt to keep the audience in a continual turmoil.

The story of "Navy Blues" opens when Kelly, a very, very tough gob aboard a destroyer, gets shore leave along with his friends. But just as soon as the bunch hit the town all prepared for a big time, who should they meet but a petty officer who orders all of them to attend a social at the local Y. W. C. A. This arouses plenty of disgust, and the boys seeing their good time fading away, file unhappily into the building.

Kelly feels just as bad as the rest of them, but very soon a silver lining starts to shine through the old clouds when a girl named Alice, whom he meets at the social, takes his fancy and he starts to make love to her. Their courtship proceeds, and is enlivened when another big gob, one "Sven Swanson" decides to become Kelly's rival.

Well, anyway it appears that Alice's mother hates sailors because her father was one, and when Kelly takes the little girl home, he gets a pretty cool reception from the old lady. As a matter of fact, the indignant mother orders him to leave the house. He does, but Alice goes with him, and from then on, the plot is livelier and livelier. Don't miss it!

Once again the Palace reminds its patrons that New Year's Eve is just around the corner and that there's going to be a big time at the Palace midnight frolic and gambol, when "So Long Letty," with Charlotte Greenwood, and lots of vaudeville, plus orchestra music, plus noise makers and other accessories to a good time will be provided by the management. There will be lots of fun at the Palace on that evening, and the lucky people who start right now to reserve their seats will be in the midst of it. Here is something that Norwich will be talking about for months after it is over. Manager R. B. Hamilton invites you one and all!

Broadway Theatre

For a hot spice cake—a delicious treat this winter weather—take a heaping measure of Victor McLaglen, good and tough—one good big dash of spice, that's Fifi D'Orsay—and is she spicy?—one dumb Swede cookie, El Brendel, half baked and goofy—twenty dainty French m'amselles—a big heap of comedy—not just giggles, but hearty laughs—stir well together for an hour and a half, and you have the most delicious, spiciest, appetizing French pastry—that's "Hot for Paris," that scintillating, sparkling all-talking riot of fun, which will be seen at the Broadway today for the first time on an Connecticut screen—opening in Norwich day and date with New York and our other suburbs. Victor, by unknowingly winning the Calcutta Sweepstakes on a lottery ticket, falls into a clean million dollars, with no place to spend it in but Paris! With El Brendel to help him, and Fifi D'Orsay, who is Bordoni and Mitzi rolled into one, Polly Moran, funnier than ever, George Fawcett, Eddie Dillon, August Tollaire and Lennox Pawle, Dave Vallos and Charles Judels, and a bevy of peppy Parisian mamas, Victor sets out to burn up the Seine river, and he sure gets it steaming. Previews acclaim "Hot For Paris" the supreme comedy smash of the year. Added featurettes include Taylor Holmes in "He Did His Best," a featured comedy in which Holmes contracts to look after his buddy's wife during his absence—and then——??? And Lillian Roth with "Her Gang" in "Raising the Roof," a hot music and songfest. The latest issue of the Paramount talking newsreel completes the long program, which is continuous today.

Midnight Show at Broadway

Old Nineteen Twenty-Nine, tottering now on the brink of oblivion will be pushed off to make room for that husky new infant, Mr. Nineteen Thirty, at a special New Year's Eve midnite show at the Broadway theatre Tuesday, starting at 11:30. For the program feature, the management announces Flo Ziegfeld's personally directed dramatic musical spectacle "Glorifying the American Girl," featuring Mary Eaton, beautiful star of "Cocoanuts." In the gorgeous revue scenes, which are all in technicolor, the stars are Rudy Vallee, Helen Morgan and Eddie Cantor. Rudy Vallee croons his "Vagabond Lover," as only Rudy can, Helen Morgan, perched atop her piano, weeps through "What Wouldn't I Do For That Man," and Eddie Cantor is seen in an original and side-splitting sketch. Hundreds of "Glorified Girls" are seen in the wonderful ensemble numbers, and the beautiful score is played by a symphony orchestra of 150 musicians. For the Midnite Show, the management has added a long and peppy program of selected Vitaphone specialties and Paramount talking featurettes. "Glorifying the American Girl" will remain through Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, with a brand new surrounding program of all talking attractions, all different from those shown at the special midnite performance.

Breed Theatre

"Married in Hollywood," Fox Films special all-singing-dancing picture which opens a three day engagement at the Breed theatre tomorrow night is a very successful adaptation whereby an operetta is brought to the screen in a manner that gives real entertainment to picture house audiences. The picture has everything, romance, suspense, music, dancing, and a couple of spectacular shots in Multicolor. In addition it brings to the screen J. Harold Murray and if they ever let him get out of pictures and return to the stage again, then they are simply goofy. Here is a man who has everything that the screen of today requires. He has looks, a voice, can act and a personality that will get over to any audience anywhere. From a box office viewpoint the picture should clean-up.

In adapting the music of Oscar Strauss so that it could be utilized on the screen, the supplying of a story to carry it was put up to Harlan Thompson and he turned out a decidedly workmanlike piece of writing for screen purposes.

The story is carried along in a manner that keeps the audience interested at all times, and there is a theme number that is certain to prove a popular hit. It is entitled "Let's Dance the Night Away," the work of Thompson and Dave Stamper.

In the cast in addition to Harold Murray is headed by Norma Terris, also a recruit from the musical comedy stage, who possesses voice, looks and proves herself quite a capable screen actress. Walter Catlett as the film producer brought to mind a figure in the industry. Of the balance of the cast Tom Patricola and Prene Palasty sized up very nicely. A strong singing and dancing chorus in some worthwhile numbers completes the picture.

Great Prohibition Picture at Y Sunday

The eminent authority and writer, Prof. Irving Fisher has written the story of "Prohibition," and this story is made the basis of an intensely interesting six reel moving picture feature titled "Prohibition at Its Worst." This subject is in the public mind today all over America and in most parts of the world, and it can truly be called a burning subject. No topic more than prohibition justifies the use of all modern means of education to acquaint the public with its operation and reveal the truth amid the maze of uncertainty. It brings into relief the increased responsibility of one citizen to another in our day, when human sympathy embraces the earth. It raises the pertinent question as to the place of beverage alcohol in this day and generation. The headings of the picture include the following: The Survey; Treachery; The Trap and The Victory. The story is portrayed in such a way as to be a live, thrilling and impressive story. It should be seen by a large number of the Norwich public. The invitation is specially to the adult public, though boys and girls fifteen and over will be admitted at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon at 4.

S. A. Iciek, pastor. The musical program was under the charge of Prof. Mr. Hancin, church organist. Burial was in the family lot in St. Joseph's cemetery, where Rev. Fr. Iciek conducted the committal service. Among the large attendance were mourners from New Britain, Meriden and New London, also a delegation of members, representing the society of Kosciuszko of which Mr. Linkiewicz was a member. The members were Joseph Grocawski, Anthony Zuniesiewicz, Frank Snurkowski, Anthony Sulewski, Stephen Geinzrewicz and Mr. Lukowski. The floral tributes were both numerous and beautiful. Undertaker J. Insured parcels were received in such numbers that a pile of packages over six feet square at one time was waiting to be recorded.

OUT OF TOWN SILK INTERESTS MAY TAKE OVER WEST SIDE SILK MILL

It is possible that out of town silk manufacturing interests may take over the Mechanic street plant of the Schwarzenbach-Huber Co., as it was learned Friday evening that several silk concerns have made inquiries regarding the plant, known as the West Side Silk mill. The plant, as was announced some time ago, will be sold by the present owners who decided to withdraw their interests from Norwich, in order to cut expenses of operation by co-ordinating their several plants.

When it became known that the plant was to be placed on the market, the industrial commission of the Norwich chamber of commerce, Joseph C. Worth, chairman, interested itself in an effort to secure an out of town concern to take over the plant and continue operation. Mr. Worth stated Friday night that the industrial commission had received communications from several silk concerns, asking for information regarding the plant, equipment, transportation facilities, etc., and that he had turned the inquiries over to the Schwarzenbach-Huber Co. The equipment of the plant includes 198 silk looms, examining tables, quillers, horizontal warpers, creels, warp sizer, machine and carpenter shop machinery and is well adapted for either skein dye or raw weave goods.

NORWICH TOWN

SIXTEEN JUNIORS ATTEND CHRISTMAS PARTY AT CHAPEL

With the leader, Mrs. Ernest Washington, in charge, a company of children of the Junior C. E. society of the First Congregational church assembled in the chapel Friday afternoon at 2:30 for a Christmas party. The first half hour was devoted to games. In the candy hunt, Betty Barber won for the girls' side and Burton Barber for the boys. Each was presented a ribbon. A feature of the program was a large Christmas pie, which contained a gift for every child present. The ages of the children ranged from 7 to 9. The pie was filled with small parcels. Attached to each was a string. As each child pulled a string, he or she found at the other end a gift. This required some little time and furnished much diversion for the children, who were obliged to untangle the several strings before the parcels could be released. During the afternoon the children, seated at a table, after Miss Jessie E. Hyde had said grace, were served sandwiches, cookies, cake and cocoa. A song period was held when a number of Christmas carols were sung, Miss Elizabeth Browning accompanying at the piano. When the roll was called, the following responded: Doris Leanhart, Raymond Barrett, Robert Haymen, Mildred Barber, Betty Barber, Natalie Browning, Flora Kinney, Pauline Holmes, Mitchell Floyd, Burton Barber, Barbara Benton, Socrates Kandon, Robert Holmes, Delores Horton, Howard Holmes and Natalie Palmer. Other Juniors, who were unable to be present, included Priscilla Huntington, Alice Howard, Lloyd Nelson, Sidney Smith, Marion Cripps, Marie Schaeffer and Harvey Howard. After repeating the prayer of the Junior society in unison and the Mizpah Benediction, the children were dismissed. Mrs. Washington was assisted by Mrs. Charles Barber, Miss Jessie E. Hyde, Miss Doris Seagrave and Elizabeth Browning.

A party for the Intermediate C. E. society is to be held in the Congregational chapel at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon, under the leadership of Miss Jessie E. Hyde.

Monday evening at 7:30, the meeting of the League of Service is to be held at the Congregational parsonage on Elm avenue.

The auditorium of the First Congregational church is effectively decorated with small evergreen trees about the platform and in front of the pulpit. The posts on either side of the aisles are twined with green and the sidelights and window stools are adorned with boughs of green. The work was done by the flower committee of the Young People's C. E. society, Miss Ida Beebe, chairman; Charles Marsh, Bessie Whaley, Victoria Marsh, Marion Buckley and others.

PLAN TO ELIMINATE NOANK GRADE CROSSINGS

A plan for the elimination of two grade crossings at Main street, and Spicer avenue, Noank, has been prepared by the New Haven railroad and the road, through its assistant general counsel, W. L. Barnett, has asked the selectmen of Groton to go to New Haven, where the plan will be explained by officials of the railroad and one of its engineers, it was learned Friday. Noank is a village in the town of Groton.

The plan was not available Friday. Selectman Clark B. Whaley said that it probably called for routing pedestrian and vehicular traffic over an overhead bridge, with the location of the bridge about midway between the present grade crossings. The selectman said that he and other members of the board will go to New Haven soon to investigate the plan.

The public utilities commission of the state in a statement last October suggested the use of an overhead bridge to eliminate danger of travel on the Noank grade crossings. The bridge now located between the two grade crossings was formerly used by the street cars of the Groton & Stonington Traction Co. The commission, in the statement which was released to the railroad and the selectmen of Groton, recommended to the railroad company the consideration of the bridge plan of elimination of the dangerous grade crossings.

The grade crossings have long been a source of discussion. Petitions of the railroad to the selectmen of Groton for permission to install automatic signal lights at the crossing to replace flagmen were refused by the town, and subsequently the railroad petitioned the public utilities commission for the same permission. A hearing was held at Hartford in September with a number of Noank residents in attendance. Opposition of these persons was strong to the plan for removal of the flagmen and the substitution of lights.

In the October statement, which recommended the use of a bridge for crossing the railroad property, a finding against the railroad's petition for removal of flagmen was listed, and the railroad was instructed to extend 18-hour flagmen service to full 24-hour service. This went into effect Nov. 1.

At the hearing on the proposal to substitute the signal lights for the flagmen, it was brought out that the chief objection was because of danger to children from trains, the railroad crossings being used by many children who attend the Noank school. It was also said that there was danger to automobilists operating over the crossings when no flagmen were on duty, especially on foggy nights. It was for this reason that the extra flagman service was ordered by the commission.

A practical plan for elimination of the grade crossings is expected to meet with general favor.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS

Continuing its review of organization, the current Catholic Transcript (Hartford) has the following:

The Knights of Columbus entered a new field in 1916, when learning that our troops in Mexico lacked recreational and religious facilities, the order set up a series of buildings from the Gulf of Mexico to California. The buildings, 16 in number, were furnished entirely from funds of the order. It was this success in the new field that prompted the order to offer its services to the government when the United States entered the war in 1917. More than $46,000,000 was used by the order in conducting this war work and activities for ex-service men which continued for a period of more than ten years. In Canada nearly $1,300,000 was contributed by the people of the Dominion so that work similar to that accomplished for the American forces might be carried on for the Canadian forces. Canadian Knights operating under the name Catholic Army Huts achieved a splendid record for efficient service during the war and post-war period.

When demobilization of the service men began, the order opened employment bureaus in the large industrial centers of the country and was successful in finding jobs for thousands of former service men. In addition to the work conducted directly by the order, contributions were made to other organizations interested in the service and ex-service men. The order contributed $50,000 to the American Legion to be used in extending relief to the ex-service men not otherwise protected and in January, 1925, approximately $40,000 of this fund remained on hand. To this $40,000, the order added a donation of $35,000, making a total of $75,000 available to the American Legion for its rehabilitation program. The order also gave $75,000 to the Disabled American Veterans of the World War to enable that organization to maintain its offices in Washington and to pay the salaries of executives there and in district offices throughout the United States. A substantial contribution also was made to the Veterans of Foreign Wars to aid that organization in caring for ex-service men.

In recognition of the order's war work, the supreme knight was given the Distinguished Service Medal of the United States and the Legion of Honor of France. General John J. Pershing, commander of the American Expeditionary Forces, speaking of the World war work of the order, said: "Of all the organizations that took part in the winning of the war, with the exception of the military itself, there was none so efficient and ably administered as the Knights of Columbus."

THREE RUM RUNNERS SHOT DEAD IN NARRAGANSETT BAY; THREE RUM BOATS SEIZED

Three Men Were Killed and One Wounded When a Speedboat, Headed For Newport, Tried to Run Away When Sighted by a Coast Guard Boat—The Ship Was Captured and Brought to the Coast Guard Base at New London—Two Other Vessels Were Captured—The Crews Escaped—One Boat Had Been Set Afire.

NEW LONDON, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Three liquor smugglers are dead, a fourth is critically wounded, liquor to the value of $600,000 and three rum boats were seized last night and early today as a result of the most comprehensive drive of the coast guard in years against the activities of rum runners. Even today the drive was being continued with the possibilities that the drive will net more seizures.

The three men killed and the one wounded were aboard the speedboat C-5677 of Newport, R. I., which was heading into Newport when sighted by the coast guard patrol boat CG-290 in charge of Boatswain A. C. Cornell. The patrol boat opened fire when the rum runner tried to run away and machine gun bullets raked the pilot house when the rum ship turned and diverted the fire from her stern. Overtaken soon afterward the coast guardsmen found the three dead men in the pilot house with bullets through their chests and the wounded man lying on the deck with his right arm badly shot up. The patrol boat took the four men into Newport and rushed them to the Newport hospital, where it was revealed three of them had been killed instantly. This seizure occurred at 2:30 o'clock this morning in a heavy fog. The speedboat and 500 cases of liquor found aboard were brought to the coast guard base here.

A few hours after the patrol boat Legare sighted the converted subchaser Flor-Del-Mar off Spagwan reef, near Montauk Point. While attempting to exchange signals of identification, Boatswain Otto Bentz noticed a flare aboard and ordered his men to board the boat. Upon arriving alongside they found the hold of the rum ship a roaring furnace. A volunteer crew boarded the vessel and extinguished the flames and found that the crew had taken to small boats. Boatswain Bentz ordered a small boat overboard and went ashore to attempt capture of the crew but was unsuccessful. In danger of sinking, the Flor-Del-Mar was bailed out with buckets, part of her cargo of 5,000 cases of assorted liquors was transferred to the patrol boat and then the vessel was towed to the section base here.

At 8:15 this morning, Boatswain R. E. Cash in charge of the CG-231 sighted the fishing sloop Roamer in Napeague bay off Long Island. Warning shots from shore warned the crew of the Roamer of the presence of the coast guard and the crew took to small boats and escaped to shore. The rumship was found to have 500 cases of liquor aboard and after efforts to capture the fleeing crew failed the boat also was towed to the section base here.

The capture of the three boats brought to a climax an intensive drive which has gone on over the past week. Lieut. R. C. Jewell, in command of the patrol boats operating off this section of the coast, acted on a hunch last night and ordered every boat available to join in the concentration. All of the vessels seized evidently had been trying to land their cargoes under cover of the fog.

The Flor-Del-Mar is of Halifax and is said by the coast guard to be one of the vessels comprising the few which usually remain 50 miles at sea to supply smaller boats with cargoes of liquor. Last night she evidently was trying to make a landing herself.

The crew of the CG-290 and Lieutenant Jewell were deeply affected by the death of the three men. Had the speedboat stopped or had not made the fatal mistake of turning broadside into the hail of machine gun fire it is contended by the coast guard that the men would not have been killed.

WOUNDED MAN REVEALED IDENTITY OF MEN KILLED

NEWPORT, R. I., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Three members of the crew of the liquor-laden power cruiser Black Duck were shot to death and a fourth wounded in an encounter early today with the crew of the coast guard boat off near the mouth of Narragansett bay.

The dead men, as identified by Charles Travers, of 20 Clara street, New Bedford, the fourth member of the Black Duck crew, are:

Jake Weisman, Providence, R. I.; Dudley Brandt, Boston, and John Coulart, Fair Haven, Mass.

The coast guard boat, under command of Boatswain Cornell, put in to Fort Adams here for surgical assistance immediately after the fight. At the direction of Col. Fred V. S. Chamberlain, commandant of the fort, the bodies of the dead were taken to the post morgue and White removed to the post hospital.

The 290, with the Black Duck under convoy, put out for the New London coast guard base. Those aboard the 290 told officers at Fort Adams that 21 shots had been fired. As far as could be learned no member of the government crew had been injured, but because the 290 left before her presence at the fort had become generally known, this was not immediately ascertainable.

The Black Duck was said to have been loaded to the gunwales with assorted liquors and even her tender was said to have been filled with cases of contraband. The craft has been frequently seen in and about Newport harbor.

Details of the actual shooting were lacking and although Travers who was shot through the thumb, was interrogated by officials he declined for several hours even to name his companions. Only when assured that all were dead did he reveal their identities. He refused to talk about himself.

It was reported here, however, that the Black Duck had declined to halt when hailed by the 290 and that the latter had then opened fire, which was returned.

Colonel Chamberlain communicated at once with U. S. District Attorney Boss at Providence, who advised him to turn the investigation over to Coroner Perry B. Dawley and Medical Examiner Samuel Adelson, both of whom later viewed the bodies.

State's Attorney General Oscar L. Heltzen directed that an autopsy be performed at an undertaking establishment to which the bodies were brought from the fort morgue. Preliminary examination revealed only one shot wound in each.

The body identified as that of Weisman had only 76 cents in the pockets, a watch and chain and an auto key. The key was traced to a local garage where Weisman's expensive automobile was found.

Weisman, a widely known bootlegger, was 35 years old, and was out on bail on a federal court charge of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law arising out of the seizure of a big liquor plant at Portsmouth, last March. Another of his automobiles was discovered and seized by federal agents at that time.

Previously he had been arrested and fined for transporting Canadian beer. In recent weeks he was known to have made his headquarters at a Fall River hotel.

In the clothes of another of the victims, $127 was found, while the third had $284 and a watch.

WARNING TO RUM RUNNERS ABOUT DEFYING COAST GUARD

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Rear Admiral Frederick C. Billard, commandant of the coast guard, said tonight that the coast guard "means business" about the matter of stopping liquor smuggling and that if rum-runners elect to defy orders to halt they run "a serious risk of getting hurt."

"The coast guard has the job of stopping liquor smuggling at sea," Admiral Billard said. "It is not a job that can be handled with soft words and amiable gestures. The coast guard is used to carrying out any duty given it to do, with vigor and determination. "It means business about this matter and acts strictly within the law. If a smuggler elects to defy the command of a coast guard craft to stop, he runs a serious risk of getting hurt through a course of action that the law has specifically authorized for a hundred years."

SURVEY OF PROHIBITION BY MODERATION LEAGUE

NEW YORK, Dec. 29—(AP)—The Moderation league in its annual survey of conditions under national prohibition, released today, quotes police department statistics from 565 places to show that arrests for drunkenness in 1928 increased 5.5 per cent over 1927.

This total, of 743,369 arrests, which the report said has been increasing steadily since 1924 when the first statistics were compiled by the league, is 106,872 greater than that year. In 1927 the total was 704,336.

The league, which gives as its aim "the restoration of temperance," concludes from these figures and other detailed statistics it has gathered that "the Volstead act has failed utterly to do what it was intended to do, namely, promote temperance and sobriety."

FIVE MEN NARROWLY ESCAPED DROWNING

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., Dec. 29—(AP)—Five men narrowly escaped drowning today in a forced landing of their monoplane on Lake Flower, in the heart of this village. Lost for an hour in a snow storm, Lieutenant Frank Reed dropped down on the lake and the thin coating of ice gave way. Four of the men hopped to floating ice blocks, the fifth had to be dragged out of the water.

With Pilot Reed, of Syracuse, were Police Judge W. Rufus Wikoff of Lake Placid and Thomas P. Flaherty, publicity director of the Lake Placid chamber of commerce; the ship's mechanic, L. S. Warner, of Syracuse, and a business representative of the Curtiss-Wright flying service, Lieutenant H. S. Wyckoff of New York city.

When Reed brought his ship down on the ice it traveled a short distance and then went through. As the plane began to settle, Warner opened the door and water rushed in. The men crawled through the opening and reached floating ice. Warner turned back to close the door, lost his footing and fell in the lake. The others pulled him to safety.

The pilot left the Curtiss-Wright hangar on mirror lake, Lake Placed, early in the afternoon on a sight-seeing trip over White Face mountain. The weather was clear at the start but soon a storm was encountered. The men flew 40 miles out of their way before discovering they were over Tupper Lake.

None of the men suffered injuries.

JURY STILL OUT IN THE "WHISKEY REBELLION" CASE

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho, Dec. 29—(AP)—More than 24 hours after the Mullan "whiskey rebellion" case was given to a federal court jury nothing had been indicated early tonight as to the progress made in deliberations.

Nothing had been heard from it since deliberation was started. It was pointed out by federal court attaches that this must not be considered unusual, as the guilt or innocence of 28 defendants on a complicated maze of federal and defense evidence presented during the trial must be considered in individual cases.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29—(AP)—In a series of raid slate last night and today, federal narcotic agents arrested 13 men, four of whom they said were leading figures in three narcotic rings operating along the North Atlantic coast and as far west as Chicago.

Federal Attorney Tuttle said the raids were the result, largely, of information obtained from the papers of the late Arnold Rothstein, slain Broadway gambler.

Information which led to the arrests also was obtained, the police said, as the result of the arrest a year ago of Jacob Unger, alias Klein and Meyer, an alleged narcotic ring principal, aboard a train at Buffalo, N. Y.

The most important of those taken last night and today, the agents said, were James de Mayo, 34; Joseph Gialella, 31; Frank Cartalano, 23; and Louis Black, 37, all of New York. Among the other men arrested was John Hogan, 27, of 206 Bloomfield street, Hoboken, N. J.

PISTOL AND HAT MAY LEAD TO SOLUTION OF MURDER

MARKED TREE, Ark., Dec. 29—(AP)—Sheriff A. H. Meanwhile the body lay unidentified in a local mortuary, though thousands of persons have viewed it and two men have claimed it, one as his wife and the other as his daughter. In each case the woman was found alive and well.

Sheriff Landers said the pistol hammer found tangled in the expensive coat with which the body was covered when it was found, fit the weapon just located, which lacked a hammer, and the hat, of good material, matched the unidentified woman's other clothing.

Part of the dealer's label, remaining in the hat, bore the single word "California."

BREACH ABOUT PROMOTION OF DRY LAW ENFORCEMENT

Senator Borah Has Started One of the Greatest Prohibition Rows Since the 18th Amendment Was Voted—Showdown is Expected Between the Hoover Administration and Borah Over the Senator's Charges of "Scandal" in the Permit System and "Open Saloons" Throughout the Country.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29—(AP)—Washington tonight expectantly awaited a showdown between the Hoover administration and Senator Borah, of Idaho, over prohibition enforcement as a result of the Idahoan's charges of "scandal" in the permit system and "open saloons" throughout the country.

The outbreak among republican drys echoed today throughout the capital in the wake of one of the most bombastic prohibition rows since the 18th amendment was overwhelmingly voted ten years ago and observers believed the end was not in sight.

Senator Jones, of Washington, an administration dry leader, has issued the statement that "the president will remove quickly any man in a responsible official position who he is convinced is not doing his duty, and put in a man, who, in turn will remove any unfaithful subordinate as soon as such unfaithfulness is shown."

Senator Borah, who was one of Mr. Hoover's outstanding campaigners in the last election, answered this with the assertion that the "permit system itself as it is being carried on is a scandal", and that "practically open saloons are running in the jurisdiction of district attorney after district attorney in this country."

There the issue stood tonight after a week of public controversy among those most closely identified with prohibition enforcement and with the enactment of the dry law.

Meanwhile, new problems confronted the troubled administration as word came from the North Atlantic coast of engagements between the coast guard and rum runners and a report of three killed by the government forces.

The Borah charges are directed at both the treasury and justice departments. The treasury is charged with administration of the permit system by which industrial alcohol is distributed.

It is generally understood that Mr. Hoover in conferences with Senators Jones and Borah made it clear that he would insist upon complete co-operation in law enforcement by all officers of the government and that he would not hesitate to act when he was convinced a charge was needed.

The situation promises to receive congressional consideration soon after the Christmas recess ends on January 6. All prohibition leaders there are looking forward to the report which has been promised by President Hoover's law enforcement commission. This report will be made to the joint congressional committee when the house authorizes appointment of this committee.

Senator Capper, of Kansas, another republican dry leader, has rallied to the support of the president and urged unified co-operation by the drys in support of the presidential program.

Senator Norris, of Nebraska, another republican prohibitionist, has joined Senator Borah in assailing the enforcement administration. He has called for the resignation of Secretary Mellon.

GUARDSMEN IN SEARCH OF MURDEROUS BANK BANDITS

BOWLING GREEN, Ky., Dec. 29.—(AP)—This city took on a military aspect today as 40 men and seven officers of the National Guard, under command of Brigadier General H. H. Denhart, patrolled roads and transportation terminals in this vicinity. The guardsmen were aiding in the search for two of the bandits who robbed the Oakland, Ky. bank and killed J. Robert Kirby, president of the Farmers bank at Smith's Grove, Ky.

Every automobile entering or leaving Bowling Green was stopped and searched. Every railroad train and bus was entered and the passengers questioned if there was doubt as to their identity. The soldiers, aided by Sheriff T. C. Ferguson and his deputies, scanned passers-by carefully for bullet wounds, as it is thought that one or possibly both of the bandits were wounded in the exchange of shots with citizens at Smith's Grove, which they passed through.

BODY FOUND TRUSSED, WITH BULLET IN HEAD

CLEVELAND, O., Dec. 29—(AP)—The body of Edward Maddens, 24, trussed up with rope and with a bullet in the head and five knife wounds between the shoulder blades, was found in the rear compartment of a small coupe here, today.

Detectives said Maddens, a former amateur boxer, had been selling liquor but that his trade was too small to have incurred the wrath or enmity of the "big time" bootleggers. Police could offer no motive for the slaying.

The car in which the body was found is owned by Charles Gallegher, of Cleveland, who said he loaned it to Maddens last Tuesday afternoon. Gallegher said that when Maddens failed to return he tried to locate him by calling mutual friends.

Gallegher was being questioned by police tonight but authorities had not gained any further information.

Police said the bullet that killed Maddens was fired at close range. They estimated that he had been dead five days.

PLANES SEARCHING FOR GIRL AND TWO MEN

LOS ANGELES Dec. 29.—(AP)—Airplanes were called into use today to circle the reaches of Mount Wilson, near here for a girl and two men who became separated from the rest of a hiking party and are believed to be lost.

The sheriff's office received a report that Celia Caplan, Lawrence Kotkin and Jack Schwartz, with a score of other young folks went up the mountain Friday, remaining Friday night at a hotel.

Yesterday morning the party divided into two units, one of them to visit the observatory, the other to start down the trail. They were to meet at the Half Way house.

When the party met, the trio had disappeared. Several of the men went back over the trail, but could find no trace of the missing ones. After waiting several hours the group came into Los Angeles and reported to the sheriff's office.

DRY AGENT WAS SHOT WHILE CONDUCTING RAID

YOUNTVILLE, Napa County, Cal., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Robert D. Freeman, San Francisco prohibition agent, was shot and perhaps fatally wounded today while conducting a raid on a ranch near here.

Freeman received a charge of buckshot in the chest from a shotgun in the hands of Mrs. John South, wife of a well-to-do Napa County rancher, whose home Freeman was raiding.

Freeman and Henry W. Jones, another agent, entered the dwelling on a search warrant charging South and his wife with the sale of liquor.

Jones said South attacked the prohibition agents with an automatic pistol and fired two shots, neither of which took effect. Then, he said, Mrs. South fired the weapon.

South and his wife are in the Napa County jail, both held on an open charge pending the outcome of Freeman's injuries.

SOVIET GOVT. TO EXPAND SEARCH FOR AVIATORS

MOSCOW, Dec. 29.—(AP)—The Soviet government today intensified its search in several directions for Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland, American aviators who have been missing for nearly two months off the northern Siberian coast.

Pilot Ivan Shuknovsky, who located some of the missing members of the Nobile party after the wreck of the dirigible Italia, with Pilots Straube, Alekseev, and Sterligov will leave here tomorrow for Krasnoyarsk in central Siberia. They hope to leave that point by January 6 for Cape North in a powerful seaplane to take up the search.

The Arctic committee has ordered Captain Mitvozorov of the soviet steamer Stavropol, now frozen in the ice in the vicinity of the section over which the American aviators were flying, to send two search parties. One will explore the region 75 miles west of Cape North and the other will search the coast line as far as Kliluchinsk bay.

The Russian colony on Wrangel Island also has been instructed to send out two search parties toward Cape North. Radio stations on Wrangel Island and the Stavropol were instructed to issue daily meteorological bulletins for the assistance and guidance of both the soviet and American expeditions.

NET INCOME OF RAILROADS HIGHEST IN TEN YEARS

WASHINGTON Dec. 29.—(AP)—Net operating income of the country's important railroads for the past year, on the basis of preliminary reports made public today by the American Railway association, reached a total of $1,282,000,000, representing a return of 4.99 per cent, the highest in ten years.

R. H. Aishton, president of the association, in a formal statement, said this high figure was the result of one of the greatest freight traffic volume years in history and the "highest operating efficiency and economy ever attained."

Preliminary study of the railroads' financial programs for 1930, he added, shows that their budgets call for the expenditure of $1,050,000,000, of which $680,000,000 will be for roadway and structures, and $370,000,000 for equipment.

"It is estimated that the first six months of 1930 will absorb $490,000,000, or an increase of $140,000,000 over the first half of 1929," he said.

EIGHT ARRESTS OF ALLEGED RACKETEERS IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—(AP)—The opening gun in a war to the finish with racketeers who have been preying upon legitimate business to the tune of about $136,000,000 a year was the police description today of the raid on the reputed headquarters of the George "Bugs" Moran gang headquarters.

Eight men were arrested and files seized yesterday at the luxuriously equipped suite situated on the fifth floor of the American Bond and Mortgage company building in the loop business district. The raid followed announcement that Police Commissioner Grover Whalen of New York and Commissioner William F. Russell of Chicago had agreed to combine forces to stamp out the activities of extortionists.

It followed also by a few hours a savage gun battle in the offices of the Fire and Rubber Workers union where three alleged terrorists were shot to death by police who trapped them in a $10,000 plot.

ADDING NEW BEAUTY TO OUTSTANDING PERFORMANCE

New Ford bodies, in beautiful new colors, will be displayed tomorrow by Ford dealers

THE Model A Ford was a good car when it was first introduced. It has constantly been made a better car. As soon as improvements are found and tested they are passed on to the public. That work goes steadily on

Now comes the time when another forward step can be taken and this policy of constant improvement given still further expression. Tomorrow, a new line of Ford bodies will be displayed by Ford dealers.

The introduction of these new Ford bodies is of interest to every motorist. In flowing grace of line and contour—in the carefully planned harmony of every detail of design—they set a new high standard for a low-priced car.

A new, fresh beauty has thus been placed within the means of every one.

All of these new Ford bodies are finished in a variety of beautiful colors, with bright Rustless Steel head lamps, radiator shell, hub caps, tail lamp and cowl finish strip. All have roomy interiors. DANIELSON

REV. A. F. MOLLARD OBSERVES HIS 25TH ANNIVERSARY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Dec. 29.—Further honors were paid Rev. Anthelme F. Mollard, M. S., today by the parish of which he is the head, and there were capacity congregations at all of the masses at St. James' church. Father Mollard is observing the silver anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood. The final mass today was a solemn high mass, with the jubilarian as the celebrant. The church was prettily decorated and outside, flying from standards set in pillars of the stone work along the frontage of the church property, were flags of the United States, of other nations represented among the membership of the parish and also the papal colors.

This afternoon at the auditorium of Killingly high school and with several hundred children of the parish in attendance there was a program in honor of Fr. Mollard. Again this evening adults of the parish filled the auditorium for another similar affair in honor of the pastor. Professor Ernest LaFortune of Worcester, pianist, and Romain Goyette, violinist, of Wauregan, contributed numbers to the program.

Father Mollard has just returned to his duties as pastor here after having spent several months in Europe. He is a native of Chambery, Savoie, in France. Coming to this country about 30 years ago, Father Mollard was ordained to the priesthood by the late Bishop Tierney in Hartford in 1904.

Saturday afternoon at the Baptist church in Foster Center, funeral services for Mrs. Florence Evelyn Hopkins, who took her life by hanging Christmas day, were conducted by Rev. Federick M. Buker of Anthony, R. I., formerly of North Sterling. The body was entombed at the Foster Center cemetery. The bearers were Ollison Cole, Ralph Nichols, Roy Hopkins and George Hopkins. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Satuday morning, the funeral of Louis Levesque was held from the home of the child's parents, with a service conducted by Rev. J. H. Quinn at the Sacred Heart church in Wauregan at 8:30. The body was entombed in the Sacred Heart cemetery. Bearers were Joseph Gagnon, John Gagnon, Theodore Barry and Gerard Ploudre. L. E. Kennedy had charge of the arrangements.

The town court was called upon to deal, Saturday morning, with one of the messiest cases that has been before it for a long time. A father, another married man and a youth of 16, were presented to angwer to charges of abusing a female child of the age of 12 years. The father of the child pleaded not guilty, and consideration of his case went over until Saturday of next week. The case originates in one of the villages of Killingly and has been the subject of investigation by state officers of the Danielson barracks and also by an agent of the humane society.

The entire matter reeks of utter depravity. Out of it John Lemieux, a minor, went to Cheshire by order of Judge W. Fenner Woodward, and in custody of State Officer James Carmody, Saturday afternoon. Later an appeal was filed by Attorney Irving H. Miron of Putnam, who came into the case as counsel, and it was then necessary to bring the youth back from Cheshire. He was being held today, in default of bonds, at the county jail in Brooklyn.

David Daly, a married man who appears to be in his 30's, but insisted he was wholly uninformed as to what his age actually is, pleaded guilty to the charges filed against him. The matter being beyond the jurisdiction of the town court, Judge Woodward bound him over to the next term of the Windham county court having criminal jurisdiction. In default of bail he went to jail.

Danielson people motoring through the storm near Hopkins Mills, ten miles east of here in Rhode Island, were interested today in the wreckage of a car that had skidded on the slippery going and had been smashed as it crashed into a state highway fence and then against a tree. The occupants of the car are said to have been uninjured.

Soon after the first of the year there are upwards of 100 residents of the town of Killingly, men and women, who are going to receive some unwelcome visitations. It all has to do with the determination of the town to collect overdue personal tax accounts. The procedure from now on is going to be on an expensive basis—for those who owe. Warrants are to be issued, and a constable will serve them. The cost in each instance will be in the neighborhood of $10, whereas the delinquents could have discharged this obligation up to Dec. 15 by paying $2. Failure to pay when the constable calls is likely to entail a jail sentence.

It developed today that some generous souls, following up their Christmas giving, are to be good to the needy at New Year's. Information disclosed at Christmas time as to the requirements of some families has prompted the further giving that will be done on the eve of the New Year.

Orpheum theatre, midnight vaudeville show, Tuesday, Dec. 31. All seats reserved.—adv.

Calls for wrecking cars began to come in to local garages as night set in today. Heavy snow and slippery going were responsible for the calls for aid. The damage to most of the cars involved in untoward incidents was not serious.

Danielson's need of a postoffice building is urgent. Figures for the amount of business transacted through this office during 1929 exceed all previous years. The working force is cramped for space. The government's lease on the present quarters in the town hall building will expire next August. Danielson is listed among the New England towns scheduled to receive appropriations from congress for postoffice buildings. Danielson could use what is to be allotted to it as early as 1930.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris Fowler of Pawtucket were visitors with friends in Danielson today.

Young people of the Moosup Baptist church were guests this evening at the Christian Endeavor service at the Danielson Baptist church. Miss Cora Brown was the leader.

Rain, snow and fog were features of the weather on this dark day, yet traffic was not materially reduced below the levels of the ordinary winter Sunday.

It will be back to school for hundreds of children of the towns of Killingly and Brooklyn on Monday morning. The Christmas vacation is over.

Must One Believe in Miracles to be a Christian? was Rev. C. J. Armstrong's subject at the evening service at the Baptist church tonight.

John C. Belisle of Holyoke was a visitor with friends in Danielson today and will remain in this vicinity over the New Year holiday.

On Tuesday dozens of the 1930 automobile registration numbers will appear on cars in Danielson, for the automobile laws permit of using the new markers on the last day of the current year.

PUTNAM

MUCH SPECULATION AS TO NEW POLICE CAPTAIN

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 29—The most thoroughly and openly discussed subject in this city today is, "Who will be Putnam's next captain of police?" The matter of selecting a successor to the late Captain William J. Jarvis, is on the lips of every citizen and from every home, business house and public gathering place discussions of the qualifications of men said to be seeking the public office may be heard. During these few days that the city police department is under the direction of temporary officials appointed by Mayor Charles A. Richard, the vacant chair and the intrigue surrounding its next occupant has furnished more fuel for local gossip mongers than any other municipal topic that has come to the fore in the past five years. Despite the fact that the dopesters are circulating information about the city to the effect that the appointment of Captain Jarvis' successor, "is in the bag," not one whisper of information could be gotten from authcritive sources today.

Neither Mayor Richard nor Police Commissioner John M. Dean have made any statements concerning the appointment other than to say that every applicant is entitled to consideration. The appointment of a new police captain rests entirely with the board of aldermen which will take the oath of office on the evening of January 7. In order to be elected to the office an applicant must secure at least five of the 9 votes cast. Each alderman is entitled to one vote and in the event of a tie, Alderman-at-Large Warren S. Ames will cast the deciding ballot. In all probability the task of appointing the city's new active police head will be the major problem which will confront the in-coming common council.

It was understood today that several men are seeking the position in the police department made vacant by the untimely death of Captain Jarvis. A concensus of opinions expressed by various citizens of repute is that Sergeant and Acting Captain George H. Liard will be favored with the captaincy, by reason of his record of eleven years continuous service as an officer in the police department. Sergeant Liard holds an enviable record as a policeman and public opinion today swung in his favor.

Another prospective candidate for the appointment to the police captaincy, according to widely circulated rumors, is Patrolman and Acting Sergeant Alpherie Sponcey. Patrolman Sponcey, like Acting Captain Liard, is in possession of an excellent service record. During the past six years as an officer, Patrolman Sponcey has performed the duties becoming his office faithfully and impartially. But Officer Sponcey has emphatically denied that he is seeking the appointment as captain of police, expressing that his profound belief is that first consideration is due his superior, Acting Captain Liard by reason of his seniority in the department.

Three former police captains who were removed from office a few years ago during changes of administration are eligible for the position. They are former Captain John Murray of South Main street, now a member of the New Haven railroad police, who retired in 1916; former Captain Joseph A. Ryan, who retired in 1918, and former Captain John H. Bulger, who retired in January 1922. As far as could be learned today none of the three ex-police chiefs will enter the race for the present vacancy.

Since the appointment of Acting Captain Liard is by no means a foregone conclusion, at present, there is a sentiment existing among many that a dark horse candidate may loom up at the last moment. Harking back through the years it will be remembered that in several instances dark horse candidates, tossing their hats into the hoop at the eleventh hour have emerged with the responsibilities of public office resting upon their shoulders.

The newly elected city governing body which will direct Putnam's ship of state for the ensuing two years, with Mayor Charles A. Richard, present incumbent at the helm, will set out on its two year voyage on January 7, after the oath of office has been administered to each councilor and from all indications will begin its cruise on a sea of municipal tranquility unmarked by any waves of controversy. With the exception of the police department, it was learne dfrom an authoritative source that every official serving the city will be re-appointed to office. Among those, whom it is understood, are assured of re-appointment are Fire Chief Ralph E. Thurston and deputy chiefs, Alphonse Dumas and Philias Clouthier, Frederick Dumas, superintendent of streets, Peter A. Gardner, of the health department, the board of water commissioners composed of Ralph E. Thurston, Oscar Dugas and Henry Dubois, City Clerk Thomas P. Ryan. While the re-appointment of the above mentioned city officials is not definitely assured, all are veterans in their respective departments, the general public apparently, is satisfied with the quality of service being rendered by these appointive officials and the political strings which govern the municipal posts are not expected to create any drastic shake-ups within the departments.

CONN. COMPANY FRANCHISE EXPIRES TUESDAY NIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dc. 29—The passing of 1929 will be marked with the passing of the Connecticut company's franchise to operate omnibusses for the transportation of pasengers between Putnam railroad station and the town of North Grosvernordale. It was learned today The Putnam-North Grosvenordale line is as old as electric and gasoline transportation facilities themselves. In fact, the route known to many patrons as the "peanut line" was instituted back in the 19th century when the Worcester Electric Tramway company ran the first street "irons" through this city to provide for public car transportation service. The Connecticut company which has maintained the right to operate over this route will discontinue service on Tuesday evening, December 31 when the last "yellow bus" leaves the center in North Grosvernordale village at 10:40 o'clock. Not withstanding this announcement patrons of the Connecticut company will be provided with service by the line of buses known as the "Short Line," controlled by the Vanderbilt interests. The "Short Line" for the past two years has operated a motor coach, interstate schedule into this city. The coaches leaving the Massachusetts state line left passengers in Connecticut, but under state laws were forbidden to take on passenger traffic in Connecticut because of the superior rights of the Connecticut company. After the Connecticut company's final run on Tuesday the Vanderbilt lines will commence operating on the same schedule as the present concern. Rates are expected to remain the same, although a complete announcement of the concern's intentions will be forthcoming Monday.

Acting Captain of Police George H. Liard has received notification from state police of Rhode Island of a gang of thieves who have been operating in this section looting stores and to date their acts have amounted to almost $500. The Rhode Island state officials in bulletins advise that the burglars prey upon small confectionary and automobile tire and accessory shops. According to the state police of that state the burglaries attributed to the band are those committed at the store of John Newton in the town of Coventry, R. I., on the Plainfield pike road and at a garage and store of Clarence Wade in Oakland, R. I., committed within the past fortnight.

City Health Officer Peter A. Gardner of Livery street said Saturday that a survey finds the city health conditions to be the best in many months. Minor diseases which have existed on an extensive scale in the past month are at a minimum at present. For the past week no new cases of contagious disease have been called to the attention of the health department, a record that has not been attained in several weeks. Officer Gardner has attributed the great reduction in the number of disease cases to the proficient methods being used in the disposal of garbage by the majority of residents in the city and to the adherence by parents to warnings sent out by the school health department pertaining to the child's physical condition. Officer Gardner is highly elated over the remarkable record established by the municipal health department during the past month.

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon at his late home in Quinebaug for Mark Frizzell, suicide victim who took his life by shooting on Christmas day. Burial was in the Quinebaug cemetery.

John Duxbury, minister of the church officiated at the service which was attended by a large number of friends and relatives. Francis, suffering from a compound fracture of the skull was resting comfortable today after regaining consciousness Saturday morning. Bernard is suffering from fractures to both legs.

County Agent Raymond E. Wing of the Windham County Farmers association has given notice of a meeting of the Woodstock Young Farmers club to be held on Thursday, January 2 at the grange hall in South Woodstock. The purpose of the gathering of youthful agriculturalists will be to listen to a talk by Mr. Putnam the subject of which will be, "Feed Crop Production." Agent Wing has urged a 100 per cent attendance of the membership.

Announcements were made at all the masses at St. Mary's church today regarding services to be held on Wednesday, New Year's day. Masses will be celebrated at 6, 8, 9:15 and 10:30 o'clock. Rev. Ernest J. Boileau announced that the third mass will be a solemn high celebration and will be accompanied by the augmented choir of mixed voices.

A death in West Woodstock today was that of Mrs. Frances Emily Bowne, a life long resident of that town, who died this morning in her 88th year. Baptist New Year's Gathering

Committees are busy completing details for the New Year's gathering of the Baptist church, to be held Tuesday evening, beginning with a supper at 6:30. Invitations have been given the members of the church and congregation. The feature of the evening will be an address by Rev. Harold Cannon, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church, New Haven, one of the leading young Baptist clergymen of the state.

The heavy wet snowfall which came Sunday afternoon, made motor vehicle driving a difficult proposition. Not only were the streets filled with slippery slush to the death of two inches, but windshields were plastered with the damp snow, that only left an arc to peer through where the cleaner was in operation. Drivers frequently pulled out beside the road, and cleared their snow-covered shields of the matted snow.

TAX REFUNDS

When the govenment returns the sum of $190,000,000 to those from whom it was collected, it seems like a large amount with which it is parting, but for those receiving it the probability is that it is not as large as they believe it should be. Refunds have been paid over a period of a dozen years and yet they have totaled less than 3 per cent of the amount collected.

In the complicated method of collecting the taxes the government makes sure of getting the money first and deciding whether it is entitled to it afterward. There was the time when the impression was gained that the repayments were determined by favoritism rather than by an actual checking of accounts with the laws. The result of that was legislation making it necessary to publish all repayments over $500. Such publication does not reduce the refunds. It simply goes to show who are the recipients. Even though the amount returned this year seems large it is apparent that no one would have the government keep taxes which it had illegally collected.

These returns are not made until it is finally determined that they should be. If there is a dispute at the time of the collection, the government collects and then proceeds to find out whether it is right or wrong under such claims as are made. In the latter case it is to be expected that the government will refund the overcharges quite as cheerfully as the taxpayer has paid them and there are all kinds of protective measures to insure against mistakes.

In the course of the investigations that the department makes sometimes carrying cases to the supreme court for decisions, there are times when it is found that underpayments as well as overpayments have been made. In the last dozen years the government has obtained through underpayments in the neighborhood of $5,000,000,000, while the money returned has totaled less than a quarter of that amount.

Tax refunds are only what the taxpayers are justly entitled to. Sums payers are justly entitled, to sums and interest on them, but over which opinions differed at the time of collection. They seem large but are relatively small in comparison with the total collections.

DILATORY CONGRESS

Those in the senate who have been making demands for action by the law enforcement commission are finding that they are barking up the wrong tree, that instead of the commission being dilatory in regard to making a report it is congress which has stood in the way of the filing of a preliminary report because of its refusal to carry out the request made by President Hoover to appoint a joint committee to receive and consider such reports.

This isn't the only matter in which the do-nothing policy in congress has stood in the way of the fulfillment of the president's plans. It is not the only place that delay has needlessly been resorted to, but it is one of those occasions when its much-criticized tactics have come home to roost, to the amusement of the country at large.

As far back as last June, President Hoover asked congress to name the joint committee. The desire for a special commission is based upon the fact that unless such reports as are made by the commission are considered by a committee, which has a general knowledge of all the reports by the commission, it will be impossible to get proper attention. It should not have been difficult for congress to have recognized the desirability of such a committe, but more than six months have passed and the committee has not been provided. Thus it becomes a joke for any member of congress to try to create the impression that the commission was withholding reports when, as a matter of fact, the only reason for certain reports of the commission not being presented is inaction by congress.

In view of what has been demanded and in view of the situation which has been brought to light by those demands, it is high time for those who have been taking the leading part in creating a wrong impression to get busy and see that the few minutes that will be required to provide for the joint committee are used for such a purpose. Reports which have been ready for a month and which may be held up for another month are waiting the necessary action by congress. Those who sought them for the purpose of creating a wrong impression are finding that their efforts are coming back at them like a boomerang. The holier-than-thou attitude is often far from justified.

CHINA'S EDICT

When China announces that extraterritoriality will end with the coming January it is putting into effect what it has been seeking from other countries but which has not been sanctioned by them. This means the throwing overboard of treaty agreements by which courts operate for the adjustment of difficulties into which foreigners may find themselves.

This right has existed for years because it was recognized that such cases could not be properly taken care of in the native courts. It was a plan carried out in other countries as well as China but in other countries conditions have so improved and courts brought up to such a higher level that there has been a willingness to accept the justice dispensed by their own courts.

It is only natural that China should desire similar action. This is appreciated by the other countries which now hold extra-territorial rights, but they also recognize that the conditions in China are not such for the administration of justice that they feel they can throw away the protection which the special treaty rights give them. This has been set forth to the present Chinese government, and the position has even been taken by this government that while it is unwilling to abandon those rights at this time it is willing that China should go on what might be regarded as a probationary period relative to such a change. In other words, it is ready to give up extra-territoriality when it can be shown that the Chinese courts can meet the situation.

It is in the face of this proposition, and while negotiations to such an end are underway, that China has announced the termination of the rights. In this procedure it seems to be patterning after Turkey in the hope, possibly, that a new treaty to cover the situation may be negotiated in the future.

China has been cutting loose right and left from former conditions. It has methods of doing these things which are decidedly unique. It seems unwilling to be restrained by common practice, treaties or the advice of friends. There are times when it seems to be trying to get ahead by putting on speed and shutting its eyes.

WELCOMING NEW RESIDENTS

Out in the city of Columbus, O., according to a report in the Christian Science Monitor, the welcome sign has been mounted on wheels for the purpose of making a real gesture of friendliness and good will.

This consists of a closed automobile painted white, on the front doors of which is painted Welcome Wagon, and this welcome wagon is busy demonstrating to newcomers that the city is really glad to see them. The service is sponsored and financed by a group of merchants and business concerns and as soon as it is learned that a family has located there the woman who is the official welcomer drives to the address, extends a "Welcome to Columbus!" and backs up the greeting with a basket of lunch. This is followed by a letter from the mayor welcoming the family to the city and explaining the various services, and the presentation of a month's free use of a safety deposit box, and order for certain free laundry service and information regarding turning on the gas, whom to see for electricity and ice, and other details in which newcomers are interested.

It becomes perfectly apparent that this is a method which has been adopted by certain business men for the purpose of reaching new residents before others do. It represents a service that will be hard for many to understand until it is explained to them what is back of it, and yet it stands out in marked contrast to the reception which most people get or even expect when locating in a new city. It is quite apparent that it must make a favorable impression and a favorable first impression can be of lasting benefit to any city. At the same time, it is a scheme that might without much difficulty be easily overdone.

A PERTINENT QUESTION

The question has been asked, Why did the Fort Victoria sink? This has reference to the crash between that vessel and the Algonquin during the recent fog that all but closed the port of New York. It is to be expected that it will be answered by the investigators who are considering the matter, but it is apparently asked in the belief that the vessel should have been of such construction that it could have been kept afloat even though it did receive the blow that was occasioned by the vessels coming together.

There is some question as to whether fog signals were being exchanged at the time of the collision, when the Fort Victoria had stopped to drop its pilot. There is no doubt about the crash or the fact that there was a gaping hole in the damaged ship, but the impression is gained that with the safety bulkheads it should not have sunk.

Though the Algonquin claimed to be going slow it was no love pat that it gave the Fort Victoria. It struck it in a vital spot, as was evidenced by the quantity of water that put out the fires and made the engines useless, and the badly bent bow of the former ship tells its own story concerning the impact.

But even though the blow was of such a character as to put out the fires and the lights and even though no lives were lost because of the assistance given, it is a logical inquiry as to why the bulkheads on such a ship were not sufficient to have kept it afloat. It makes one shudder to think what might have happened had that collision occurred at some point off the coast where the assistance received was not available. The fact that the ship sank makes it difficult to tell what actually happened and yet there must be those who are in a position to give much valuable light upon the question.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Whether in the shape of rain or snow, all precipitation ultimately helps fill the reservoirs and streams.

The man on the corner says: Have you given those new resolutions determined thought?

A communist restaurant has gone into bankruptcy in New York. Evidently some of those communists were not as hungry as they looked.

Was the absence of deaths from Christmas liquor due to the fact that the drinkers are getting hardened to it or to better liquor?

Although Chicago gets rid of an occasional holdup man there are always plenty of others to keep the business going.

TAKEN DOWN.

"Don't forget you're lunching with me," said Don, hanging on to the telephone after everything had been said.

"Is it likely?" Francena answered.

"At 12:30."

"Provided you hang up in time for me to dress."

"Oh, by the way"—and then Don added the thing that made Francena furious. She wasn't simply peeved, as Don imagined. To her this thing was significant. If Don could criticize her appearance now, what wouldn't he do after marriage?

She wished when the receiver was up, that she had refused to come to lunch. Too late. He'd be gone from his office till noon. She might just remain missing and wait for him to call up and ask why. But no: better go and have it out once for all. He'd have to be abject, too. Otherwise—She twisted her ring and watched the colors flash.

It was as serious as that to Francena. She loved Don, of course, but it would be easier to break it off now than to be tied for life to one of those unspeakable husbands who thought they knew better than any woman how she should tie her shoe laces and use her lipstick. The idea of his daring to say her dress was too short! Prig!

Francena knew she was lovely and clever and wholly desirable. And Don had asked her to lengthen this dress! She flamed again. How could she wither him best?

As Francena said good-by to the mirror she was supremely satisfied with what she saw there. The lines of her fur jacquette were jaunty and the summer ermine collar was really good. She had saved the money to buy that coat, and she liked it. The blue of her dress and her hat matched the blue of her eyes. Her shoes were a dream.

The suburban express was crowded, but there was always a seat for Francena. She accepted it as a natural right. Then she was aware of a figure standing in front of her, a tall worn-looking woman in a thin black coat—too thin for this raw windy day. The collar of it was especially pathetic. "Anything but old mink!" thought Francena with smug pity, as her own lovely chin snuggled into summer ermine. "Poor dear! Probably nobody cares how she looks any more. Wonder if she'd be insulted if I offered her my seat?"

The thin woman refused with thanks. As she did so, her eyes roved thoughtfully over Francena's costume. Discouraged envy, Francena was sure. Think of starting winter in a flimsy coat like that! And a faded last year's hat. Francena wished the woman had happened to stand somewhere else. Determinedly she lowered her eyes. They fell on the flutter of blue silk below her jacquette, and instantly she was furious again. It wasn't too short. The impertinence of him!

As she left the shelter of the downtown station Francena found herself facing an icy sleet. Ahead of her walked the shabby black coat.

"Won't you share my umbrella?" Francena had begun to say, when a well-dressed, important-looking man stepped forward and tucked the other woman's hand under his arm with an air of proprietership. They lingered a minute, so that Francena passed them and she distinctly heard their words as they followed her in the crowd.

"I've been looking at fur coats for two hours," said the man in a rich, pleasant voice. "Guess I've been everywhere. A full length coat is my idea, and a good fur, too. I hope you haven't set your heart on a short thing like that in front of us."

"Heavens! no," said the thin woman fervently, evidently unaware that her voice was carrying. "I wouldn't have one of those as a gift."

"It's Russian marmot," he imparted from his newly acquired knowledge. "And it looks as cheap as it is."

"I know it," she agreed. "And with that painfully short dress, too. Just look at those poor little legs!"

"Sure enough! Look at 'em! I'll bet they're freezing."

Francena fell behind them. She had a sense of defiation and great loneliness. For a minute she hated the whole world—Don included. Then, bobbing up from nowhere, a big smiling fellow blocked her way.

"Whew!" Don whistled. "It's one mean day. Thought I'd better blow over with an umbrella in case you didn't have one. Say, honey, I take it all back about the dress."

"I—I'll take down the hem if you say so," replied Francena contritely.

"I wouldn't change the picture you are now by one hair's breath," her fiance assured her.

"Don—you old dear," cried Francena with a brand-new loveliness in her face. "You're such a comfort."—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29—From the time Oklahoma achieved statehood in 1907, (sixtieth congress) up to the opening of the seventieth congress three years ago Charles D. Carter, democrat and of Indian blood, sat for the third Oklahoma district.

And now, posthumously, he is to be honored for the work he did in behalf of his own people.

A provision is made for that in the Indian appropriations section of the interior department supply bill, first of the huge money bills of the seventy-first congress to reach the floor of the house for discussion.

It would change the name of the Bloomfield School for Indians at Ardmore, Okla.,—Carter's home town, to Carter seminary.

Honored His Race

Speaking of this proposal to the house, Representative Crampton, of Michigan, in behalf of the appropriations committee, said:

"Charles Carter was of the Chickasaw and Cherokee races. His labors for those tribes as well as for Indians everywhere were great and effective.

"He honored his race as he did his country by his splendid service of many years in this house, and especially during the time when he was chairman of the committee on Indian affairs. Later he served on our committee.

"I remember when I was given this responsibility (for interior appropriations), realizing very well how little I knew about the western problems, I said to Carter:

" 'Charley, I am going to depend on you for the Indian end of the bill, and I want you to keep me going right.'

"He responded in splendid fashion. He was 10 per cent. worthy of that confidence.

"He was above all a sincere champion and advocate and defender of his people. Our committee has proposed as a tribute to this outstanding Indian figure that hereafter this school be called Carter seminary."

Praise From Opponent

Of course the house applauded. Why not? It is not often any former house member comes in for such praise in the busy sessions of that body, particularly praise from the lips of a political adversary, for there is no more regular republican on the house floor than Louis Crampton, of Michigan.

And any one who bothers to read Crampton's speech will find, also, that the Michigander has gone far toward correcting that deficiency of knowledge of western problems.

Crampton has unhesitatingly frowned upon Secretary Wilbur's ideas as to turning Indians from national wards to "potential citizens" too quickly.

He added that while "unfounded, baseless and unjust" propaganda had ousted former Indian Commissioner Burke and his assistant Edgar Merritt, from the Indian bureau, "real progress" toward solution of the Indian problems would come only by following their plans.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Missed the Point

Mr. Editor: "Once in a while" I buy the Bulletin, at the places where it is sold here. The other day I noticed this paragraph: "Cold seems to deepen the tints of green in the beautiful row of ancient pine trees below Norwich State hospital."

Now this may not be exactly what President Roosevelt would have called "nature faking," but it seems to miss the point that the pines seem darker, because of contrast with the snow on the ground. Now it appears to me that it should be set down as a fixed law, on a par with those of the Medes and Persians, that contrasting colors nearly always make beauty.

As pines are favorites of mine, I am glad to see that the few left around Norwich are appreciated. In the summer the new growth is so much brighter than the old growth that it is just a good as a blossom, and the trees have a soft and gracious look at all times.

Besides the symbolism of the pines is very fine. A small pine looks as good to me as a big one; in fact they are generally more vigorous. Altogether I think they are far superior to the everlasting "Mapell" and "Allum" which are so much planted.

I suppose many confuse the white and yellow pines with the firs, which are seen in so many New England dooryards, and for which personally, I have no use. They are too stiff and gloomy looking for me.

Yours,
INCONSTANT READER.

YOUR HEALTH

Brains in Children's Diets.

By A. Clement Silverman, M. D., Syracuse, N. Y.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

When Whistler was asked how he managed to get such beautiful colors in his paintings he replied that he mixed some brains with his pigments. The time is ripe for mixing some brains with the foods given children.

A tremendous amount of progress has been made in the past few years in the understanding and application of diet to health and nutrition. Everybody knows something nowadays about vitamines. Many people know the essential principles of a suitable diet. But in the endeavor to follow out the many useful and worthwhile suggestions, mothers are meeting difficulties in feeding their children. For untold centuries, human beings have had to struggle to find food for their hunger; today child specialists are besieged by mothers to find a hunger for the foods children should eat. Is it not likely that in following out scientific precepts in nutrition, mothers and even doctors have sometimes failed to apply good sound common sense?

Children need a sufficient amount of milk, vegetables, fruits, adequate proteins, minerals, and so forth; but it is equally important to know how to make these things desired by the child. That is where the mixing of some brains comes in. The first requirements is that the child shall enjoy his meal. I know intelligent mothers who force milk, cereal or vegetables down the child's throat by main brute force. Usually the child responds by making himself vomit. Soon he becomes conditioned against all such food. Such a state of affairs is certainly not conducive to good health in the broad sense of the word.

The proper approach is necessary in order that a child shall learn to like all foods. New foods tried for the first time are better given in very tiny quantities or combined with something already acceptable to the child. If he does not like the taste at first, let it go and try again several days later. Don't force it upon him; you may impress him with a distaste for it. Especially when a child is ill or seems to be off on his appetite, don't attempt new foods and don't try to push foods he ordinarily likes. Our appetites may vary from day to day. Why should the child be expected to eat the same quantity every day?

Fortunately the necessary elements in a wholesale diet are very widespread and are found in a large variety of available foods. If the child finds spinach distasteful, there are many combinations of vegetables that can be substituted. If he has turned against milk, there are various ways of using milk in preparing his food. It is often advisable to leave out for some time some foods objected to; subsequently they are introduced gradually in very small quantities mixed with acceptable foods until the child gets over his dislike.

So often the young mother has to be so many things to her child without adequate preparation for those jobs. She has to be nurse, mother, playmate, teacher, dietitian. It may help her to know that sound common sense is ordinarily not contrary to scientific teachings. Just let her mix a little brains with the child's diet.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Spooky Is Persistent

'Tis never easy to resist
The one who always doth persist.
—Spooky the Screech Owl.

Spooky knows how to be persistent. Once he has made up his mind that he wants a certain thing, to do a certain thing, he will keep right on trying to get his way despite all sorts of discouragements. Spooky didn't like it at all when he found himself back in his old home in a hollow in an apple tree in the Old Orchard. Farmer Brown's Boy had put him back there despite all his protests. Spooky hadn't wanted to leave that old home in the first place, but when he had made up his mind that he could no longer live there, it upset him considerably to find himself back there.

Spooky ruffled up all his feathers, snapped his bill, grumbled and mumbled, and finally climbed up to the entrance. By this time Farmer Brown's Boy was no longer in sight. Spooky sat there blinking. He looked down at the crack that had let the light and the cold air into his home. He saw where Drummer the Woodpecker had widened that crack.

"Can't live here, can't live here!" Spooky mumbled over and over to himself. "Got to move, got to move! That house Farmer Brown's Boy took me out of was mine. I found it. I'm going back there."

Now, if you have the idea that Spooky the Screech Owl cannot see in the daytime, you are very greatly mistaken. He prefers the hours of darkness, but he can see perfectly in daylight. So now it was a perfectly simple matter for him to fly straight over to that house in the maple tree in Farmer Brown's front yard. He flew straight to the entrance and started to go in. But he didn't go in. Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel was in there, and Happy Jack had no intention of allowing Spooky to get inside. How Spooky did snap that bill of his! How he did scold! And how in his turn Happy Jack scolded. Almost at once Sammy Jay and the other feathered folk gathered around. They were not particularly friendly to Happy Jack, but they were less friendly to Spooky. So they started in to make life miserable for him. They gathered close about him and screamed at him and screamed at him and called him names. Now and then one would dart at him as if to strike him, but at the last instant his courage would fail.

Spooky wasn't enjoying it a bit. In the first place he didn't like to have so much attention drawn to him. In the second place he disliked all that noise. In the third place he felt that it was nobody's business but his own.

Spooky wasn't enjoying it a bit.

So Spooky was a very angry small person. He was, indeed. But he wouldn't give in. He wouldn't be driven away. If Happy Jack wouldn't come out, there was nothing to do but to wait. Sooner or later he would have to come out, if necessary, he would wait until dark. He knew that Happy Jack would be afraid of him then.

By and by Farmer Brown's Boy, hearing the noise out there in the maple tree, came to see what the trouble was this time. When he discovered Spocky he chuckled. "So you are back again!" he exclaimed. "It must be you like that house. You certainly are persistent."

He climbed up in the tree, thinking perhaps he might be able to catch Spooky, but he couldn't do it. Spooky just flew a short distance out of reach. Farmer Brown's Boy tried to scare him out of the tree, but Spooky wouldn't scare. It was clear that he had made up his mind that he was going to get possession of that house somehow and not even Farmer Brown's Boy could drive him away.

CHILD TRAINING

The Child and His Books

Mrs. Florence Milner

With the child's first "Mother Goose" comes the opportunity to begin training him systematically in love and respect for books. It is not enough to give him a highly colored copy and leave him to work his vandal will upon it. When he is learning to walk, his footsteps are guided and his insufficient strength supplemented. It should be the same with books.

In a more or less desultory way, mothers or other elders in the family, according to mood or accidental opportunity, without any real plan or purpose, pick up child and book and tell the story of the picture, or better, read the text dramatically. If the book is "Mother Goose," no improvising equals in effect the rhymes that have stood the test of years. A few repetitions and the child fits words to picture and attempts to repeat the rhymes. Soon he becomes letter perfect and then let the older person be wary of changing a word!

Thus far most mothers go in a spasmodic manner, but this attention should be given to the child systematically. There also should be steady progress from this first classic through all the famaliar childhood tales,—Cinderella, Jack and the Bean Stalk, The Three Bears, and the other time-honored narratives. While the copies of these books given to children need not be expensive, the pictures even when highly colored should be good ones, not crude monstrosities. The bookshops are full of cheap but good picture books.

Along with this interest in the text should go training in respect for a book as a book and in the proper treatment of one. This cannot begin too early. Let each mother own a really fine copy of "Mother Goose." There are several on the market, with pictures by artists of note, who are doing excellent illustrations for children's books. This book should live in mother's bookcase. To bring it out to show Dorothy or Dick the pictures and read the rhymes or let the child try to do it should be an occasion of importance. Make it plain at first that the child is not to touch the book; mother will turn the leaves. Let her, as she does so call attention to her careful way of doing it, and to the fact that one never should put his hand on the page. After the child seems to understand how it should be done, let him turn one for himself. It will take several showings before he can turn the leaf, touching it only at the corner or the edge. When he learns to do it nicely he will take delight in being allowed to do all the turning. Later comes the happy day, when, as a special treat, he is allowed to look at the book alone; still later the book should become his property if he seems really to care for it. Now is the time to assign him a corner of a bookcase where he may accumulate the books that are his very own.

"Mother Goose" should be followed by other attractive books held in reserve, books which the child never has seen until they are brought out as an especial treat on one of those days when he needs to forget his own irritability or when he has done something worthy of reward. The wise mother will find various opportunities to use such a resource.

This method, inevitably, will cause the child to transfer to his own badly treated books something of the care given to the special books. Through this attitude he should develop respect and right feeling for them and acquire habits that may be the beginning of a real love for books and for reading and the desire to possess books and keep them in good condition. It has worked out in just this way

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 29.—John Burgess a laborer, was arrested Saturday afternoon by Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith, charged with the theft of $106 from his former employer, Henry Erno. Burgess was unable to secure a surety on his bond and was locked up at police headquarters. He will be in court Monday. Several months ago, Erno was proprietor of a drinking resort on Atlantic street. When the store was raided, Burgess was in charge and money amounting to $106 belonging to Erno which had been placed in a tin box, was secreted in bedding. Later when the money was sought it was missing. Burgess denies stealing the amount alleged, but does admit taking $4 from the box.

OBITUAY

Col. Frank B. Adams

Word was received in this city of the death Sunday evening in New York of Col. Frank B. Adams, 83, a former Norwich man and at one time champion finger billiard player of the world. He had been in failing health for four years. About 50 years ago Col. Adams lived in Norwich, residing at No. 7 Boswell avenue and in his boyhood days was affectionately known as "Grizzly" Adams when in the minstrel business and later on as "Yank" Adams.

In his youth Col. Adams carried The Bulletin on the Falls and Norwich Town routes and after leaving here entered the newspaper field in Chicago, later going to New York. Of late years he led a retired life and resided at the Hotel Thorndyke, New York. His wife, Eugenia, with whom he was united in marriage about 40 years ago, died last spring at Mount Clements, Mich. He is survived by a nephew, Joseph S. Adams of this city, a nephew Everett H. Adams of Rochester, N. Y., and a niece, Mrs. Olive Potter of East Great Plain. A brother, H. J. Adams, died in Norwich about three years ago.

Mrs. William P. Butler

The death of Mrs. Margaret R. Byrne Butler, widow of William P. Butler, occurred at 9:15 o'clock Sunday evening at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William S. Cotter at Pelham, New York. She was a former Norwich resident. Besides her daughter Mrs. Cotter, she is survived by two brothers, John Byrne of New York and Andrew Byrne of this city, two grand children and several nieces and nephews.

COLCHESTER DAIRY BARN AND SILO DESTROYED BY FLAMES

(Special to The Bulletin)

COLCHESTER, Dec. 29—A large dairy barn and silo on the George Chemerynski farm, two miles below Colchester center, on the New London turnpike, were destroyed by fire of undetermined origin about 5.15 o'clock this morning. The loss is estimated at $5,000.

The blaze was discovered by Mr. Chemerynski who was preparing to look after his early morning chores. A call was sent to the Colchester fire department and Chief Brown with the local engine company responded. The fire had gained such headway when discovered that it was impossible to save the structures which were a roaring mass of flames when the firemen arrived.

However, a line of hose was laid to a nearby brook and the house and nearby wagon sheds were saved. Two horses, six cows, and three heifers were saved from the burning building. Several tons of hay, however, were destroyed. A cat, evidently asleep in the hay mow, was burned to death in the flames. It is understood that the $5,000 loss is partially covered by insurance.

Older Colchester residents know the farm as the old Collins Keeney farm. Mr. Keeney had the barn constructed over 50 years ago. Some of the supporting timbers of the structure were nearly 14 inches in thickness. Credit is due the Colchester firemen for their successful efforts in saving the nearby farm house, a modern two story dwelling which was erected two years ago to replace the old farm house which was destroyed by fire about three years ago.

N. Y. AMERICANS NOSE OUT PIRATES, 3 TO 2

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP)— Two goals in the listless first and a brilliant bit of thinking by Billy Boyd that brought another in the third frame, gave the New York Americans a 3 to 2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates tonight in the battle of the tail enders of the National Hockey league.

The Americans broke loose late in the opening period after both teams had played a poor brand of hockey and scored two counters less than three minutes apart. Billy Holmes and Rabbitt McVeigh made the goals on passes from Kelse and Himes.

Pittsburgh outplayed its rival to tie in the second period. Bud Jarvis scored first Pirate goal on a pass from Hal Darragh. Soon afterward Archie Briden sent a well aimed long shot into the goal to tie the counter.

The deciding goal came in 3:27 of the third period. Boyd took the puck down alone and out-guessed Miller to score.

TABERSKI BEATS GREENLEAF IN SPECIAL BILLIARD MATCH

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Frank Taberski, of Schenectady, former world's pocket billiards champion defeated Ralph Greenleaf, present titleholder, in their 12 block match completed here tonight. Taberski rolled up a lead of eight blocks to four and led in total points as well, 1374 to 1097.

Taberski took both of today's blocks. In the afternoon the score was 125 to 110 in six innings. Taberski's high run was 67, Greenleaf's, 110. Tonight the score was 125 to 25 in 12 innings Taberski had a high run of 53; Greenleaf one of 12.

A word of diplomacy is worth a volume of apologies.

STORRS EGG PRODUCTION AVERAGES NEARLY 60%

For the past five weeks egg production in the Storrs contest has averaged almost exactly 60 per cent. This is admitted) unusually good laying. The incredulous feature of this performance is the exceedingly small week to week deviation. In spite of vagaries and vicissitudes of the weather the extreme variation in production for this five-week's period has not exceeded 2 per cent.

In the eighth week of the contest the total lay for all pens was 4,236 eggs or a yield of 60.5 per cent. With three days yet remaining in December the average per capita production to date is 33 eggs as compared with the expected yield of 30 eggs per bird during the first two months.

During the past week a maximum difference of only 5 eggs separated the seven best pens. With one exception they were all Leghorns. Meadowedge farm from Sterling Junction, Mass., and Toltoman Legnorn farm from Girard, Pa. tied for first place with 62 eggs each. Stee man Poultry farms' pen of Leghorns and F. S. Chapin's Reds from Longmeadow, Mass., tied for second place with 60 eggs each. Geo B. Ferris of Grand Rapids, Michigan, was in third place with a score of 59 eggs. Two other pens of Leghorns entered by Tom Barron of Catforth, England, and Kerr Chickeries of Frenchtown N. J., tied for fourth place with 57 eggs each.

In addition to the good work of particular pens Leghorns as a class have speeded up their production. So did the Australorps and Jersey Giants, Wyandottes and Rhode Island Reds held their own, while the Plymouth Rocks let up a little.

Shifting Positions

In the matter of total production from November 1st to the date of this bulletin, there have been from time to time, some shifts in positions. These changes are naturally gratifying to the breeder who is moving up the scale and equally disappointing to those temporarily moving the other way.

In the Barred Rock class R. Walter Bishop of Guilford, Conn. moved up into first place and R. C. Cobb of Littleton, Mass. into third. In the Rhode Island Red group F. S Chapin of Longmeadow, Mass. moved from fourth place into second. In the Leghorn division Tom Barron of Catforth, England, moved up from fourth place to third; Meadowedge farm of Sterling Junction, Mass., from fifth place to fourth, and Steelman Poultry farms of Larsdale, Pa., are now occupying fifth place.

NEW YEAR'S PARTY FOR 2,000 NORWICH CHILDREN

About 2,000 boys and girls, including children from the New London county and Rock Nook homes, were present at the fifth annual New Year's theatre party given by the Norwich Lions club for children of Norwich at the Palace theatre Saturday morning. A pleasing picture programme was shown through the cooperation of R. B. Hamilton, manager of the theatre. Twenty Norwich Boy Scouts had charge of seating the children.

The gathering was addressed by Max Hanover, who wished the children a Happy New Year and welcomed them to the fifth annual theatre party, after which Manager Hamilton told them about the educational postage stamp collection contest, which he is offering to the local boys and girls. By a show of hands about a half of the children signified their willingness to enter the contest. An Our Gang comedy entitled "Small Talk" and the feature picture, "Navy Blues," were then shown and were very well received by the children.

The Lions club is indebted to Michael Falcone, Scout Executive John Sellman, the 20 Boy Scouts, and the employes of the theatre for their assistance in making the affair a success.

The committee in charge of the transportation included Earl Taggart, chairman; Rudolph Henschel, Abner Schwartz and Melvin Worth. The theatre committee comprised Max Hanover, chairman; Louis J. Fontaine, Charles W. Cassidy, Joseph French, Dr. Kopland K. Markoff and William R. Frisbie.

LEFFINGWELL CHURCH SCHOOL HAS CHRISTMAS PARTY

The Christmas party given by the church school of the Leffingwell church Saturday evening at the church at 6:30 was attended by about 60 persons who enjoyed a baked bean supper, prepared under the direction of Mrs. Alfred H. Beebe. The pastor asked the blessing and Christmas carols were sung during the supper hour under the direction of Miss Lois Leffingwell and Mrs. Nathan Whiting. Each one present received a gift, either something to wear or something to make a noise with. Supt. John H Rathbone announced the evening's program. Herbert Spicer and Raymond Murray assisted in distributing the gifts from a prettily decorated tree, which had been arranged by the gift committee, Mrs. Silas Leffingwell and Mrs. Clinton Rogers. The entertainment committee provided stunts, each class of the school participating, as follows: Mrs. Borden's class, popcorn contest; Mrs. Ellis' class The Traveling Orchestra; Mrs. Rogers' class, Radio Station LEF; Mrs. Beebe's class, song and broom drill; men's class, recitations by Mr Libbey. The judges for the stunts were Nathan E. Whiting, Mrs John Ross and Mrs. Clarence Spicer. The prize, a box of candy kisses, was awarded Mrs. Borden's class. The program closed with singing by all.

GALE DRIVES SHIPPING FROM ENGLISH CHANNEL

LONDON, Dec. 29.—(AP)—A southwesterly gale, with heavy rain, swept the southern part of England last night and early today, with the wind reaching 80 miles an hour at the Scilly Isles. English channel seas, churned to great height, sent shipping scurrying to ports for shelter. The Dieppe-Newhaven steamer service was suspended, and the Boulogne service was diverted to Calais owing to stormy conditions on the French and English coasts.

The Margate lifeboat rescued the crew of the small German steamer Hermine in heavy weather at North Foreland. The steamer, a derelict, was adrift tonight, being pounded by heavy seas.

After going to the aid of a stranded steamer on Goodwin Sands, off the Kent coast, the Ramsgate lifeboat was unable to get back to their home station. The steamer was floated eventually and proceeded on her course.

A gale with heavy rain, raged around London and southern Ireland. Little damage had been reported tonight.

FIVE MEN INCLUDING 2 DESERTERS HELD AT N. LONDON WITH STOLEN CAR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 29.—Harold Gifford, 22, whose home is at 20 Bradford street, Everett, Mass.; William Levis, 22, of 28 Court Park, West Hartford; Arthur Noel, 23, 8 Logan street, Lawrence, Mass., and Robert F. Arrundel, 27, 71 Spence street, Lawrence, Mass., were arrested early today charged with stealing an automobile and are being held at police headquarters. Levis and Gifford, are soldiers, having deserted from Battery B, Field Artillery, Fort Ethan Tlien, Vt.

The stolen automobile is the property of either John M. Kelly, 16 Bradford street, Everett, Mass., or W. J. Manning, 206 Blue Hills Parkway, Milton, Mass. The car, which was stolen in Jamaica Plains, Mass., Dec. 27, was driven to various cities in Massachusetts and Rhode Island and there the number plate of other automobiles were stolen and substituted for those on the stolen auto. The car and its occupants came to New London, arriving here Saturday night and the machine was parked on State street. It was finally driven to Golden street and parked and there it attracted the attention of Patrolmen Frank Linehan and Louis Tooker. When the occupants returned to the car after having absented themselves a long time the officers demanded to see the registration of the auto and when it could not be produced, the quartet was taken to police headquarters. It then developed that the auto had been stolen. Gifford declared that he stole the auto and picked up the other occupants of the car wherever he chanced to make their acquaintance. This story is doubted, for it is a matter of police record that Arundel was arrested here May 2, 1928, charged with automobile theft and was sentenced to two months in jail. He was also arrested June 16, 1924, charged with theft of clothing, but on the latter charge he was not convicted for a nolle was entered. Since the arrest of the quartet it has developed that Levis and Gifford are deserters at Fort Ethan Allen, having skipped out in September. Since then they have been roaming from one place to another, until they finally landed in New London. The police of Boston have been communicated with and will probably come to New London and take charge of Gifford, or perhaps of all the arrested men, together with the stolen car.

Boys Damaged Grand Stand.

City Manager William A. Holt has instructed Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney to make an investigation in an endeavor to ascertain who is responsible for the causing of damage to the grand stand at Morgan Park. When the investigation was made, it developed that the damage was perpetrated several months ago. The police had knowledge of the deprecations at that time, but it was not until recently that the damage was reported at the office of the city manager. The damage was caused by mischievous boys residing in the vicinity of the park.

Trott-Fillmore.

Walter E. Trott, Millinisket, Me., and Miss Madolyn E. Fillmore, of Groton, were married Saturday afternoon at the parsonage of the First Church of Christ by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth.

JERSEY CITY WOMAN FOUND BEGGING ON STATE STREET

Winifred Hitchcock, 22, married and residing at 62 Adams street, Jersey City, N. J., was arrested Saturday night, on State street, by Patrolman Braxton Hill, charged with vagrancy. The woman was soliciting alms from pedestrians when her acts were observed by the officer.

Disagreeable Storm

This city had another touch of real winter today. The storm started with rain and was followed by snow causing disruption of trolley and train traffic, but not seriously. Because of the complaint of farmers that brooks and ponds were dry and that water was greatly needed, the storm of today will be welcomed by many.

Montauk avenue, ne of the most constantly traverse dhighways of the city is in a most deplorable condition, a condition that exists almost every year. The highway is full of ruts and beside the rails of the Connecticut company, depressions exist that make it extremely dangerous for automobiles to use the street. To date there has been no attempt to repair the highway, not even to causing tar and blue stone to be laid there. Pequot avenue is also in a state of ill repair, as is Ocean avenue, but neither thoroughfare needs the attention that does Montauk avenue.

The storm of today was not welcomed by the icemen, for where six inches of ice covered the ponds, this thickness was greatly diminished, so that any cutting that was planned will have to be deferred until another cold wave produces ice at least eight or nine inches thick.

Unemployed Seek Work

City Manager William A. Holt continues to receive applications of the unemployed. Within the past 48 hours that official has received numerous applications, particularly because the city is giving men ou tof work employment at Bates' woods where the woodland is being cleared and the underbrush taken away.

Mrs. M. V. Burgess, of Parkway, is spending several days in New York.

Mrs. John Stickle and infant daughter, of 39 Chapel street; Mrs. Louis Bishara, 11 Gorton street and Peter Lunaas, Noank, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged Saturday.

Prof. Esther Cary, Connecticut College for Women, is visiting Mrs. Caroline de Jory of Chile, who is spending a few weeks in New York.

James Darling, of 106 Shaw street; Mrs. William Tatro and infant daughter, Mystic, and Miss Anna Newbauer, 118 Willetts avenue, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged Saturday.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel has ordered the return of the driver's license of Leon McLaughlin, 220 Jefferson avenue.

Barney Kosakow has caused an attachment levied against Kalim Murad to be released. A certificate of the release was filed for record at the office of the city clerk Saturday.

FUNERAL

John G. Skipworth

The funeral of John G. Skipworth was held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of his son, George Skipworth, 12 Oneco avenue. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. Former associate workmen with Mr. Skipworth for the New Haven railroad acted as bearers. Burial was in Jordan cemetery.

An automobile owned by A. B. Neimon and driven by James Treadwell, 23, of 82 West Coit street, was damaged and the driver was painfully injured Friday night when the car collided with a tree. Mr. Treadwell was driving on Fishtown hill, Groton, when the car skidded and before he could get it under control it crashed against a tree. Treadwell sustained multiple contusions of the right side of the body and is now a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital. State Police Officer James Dygert conducted an investigation, but Treadwell was not arrested.

Mrs. John Hannick, of Montville, was in the justice court there Friday, charged with breach of the peace, upon complaint of her husband. Justice Oscar Church imposed a fine of $10 and costs. Mrs. Hannick gave notice of appeal and will be tried at the next criminal session of the court of common pleas. Hannick sought the arrest of his wife earlier in the day by making complaint to the state police with the result that the woman was arrested by Officer Charles Hill. Hannick said that when he went to his home he was verbally and physically abused by his wife.

Rudolph Chouatte, of Uncasville, was charged with evasion of responsibility, upon complaint of Seigfred Sonnenberg, of Groton. Chouatte, who was arrested by State Police Officer Donald Brown, was discharged.

THERRIEN'S CASE CONTINUED FOR ANOTHER MONTH

Joseph Therrien, 20 Squire street employed at the Auburn Sales Service station, Bank street, was in the police court Saturday, charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law, in parking an automobile on a public highway without the brakes being properly set. The case was continued a month. Therrien drove the auto from the sales station to Bank street two weeks ago, and parked it on a grade. He then left and, before he returned, the auto got into motion and descended the grade, climbed the curbing to the sidewalk, where it struck Mrs. Wallace Cobb, 16 Jefferson avenue, and her daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Corey, 23, of 36 Summer street, who were standing at Jefferson avenue, intending to board a bus. Mrs. Cobb was knocked down and sustained bruises. Mrs. Corey was pinned against a fire hydrant and received painful lacerations and bruises of both legs. She has since been a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital. Therrien will not be tried until such time as Mrs. Corey is able to be discharged from the hospital.

WESTERLY

IRON FENCE AT STATION TO REPLACE WOODEN ONE

Since the wrecking of twenty-three freight cars near the Westerly station of the New Haven railroad the first of the month, the protecting division fence between the east and west bound main line tracks, with the exception of several length at the west end of the station has been down. The saving of trips down through the subway has been attempted by many railroad patrons when they have started to cross the tracks only to be warned by a New Haven railroad policeman on duty at the station platform. The day after the wreck, carpenters began the erection of a wooden fence which was said to have done duty at Providence railroad station. The unsightliness of this fence was observed by President Lewis Starton, of Westerly chamber of commerce, and reported by him to the Providence officials with the result that the work on the fence was stopped by a telephone order the following day. Now plans call for the erection of an iron fence to be secured from a non-stop station near Boston.

Judge Sprains Ankle

Judge Oliver H. Williams of the Third District court Thursday night, slipped and fell on the ice leading to the steps of the courthouse on Union street. He sprained his ankle and lameness has developed to such extent that it was necessary for him to limp into the courtroom for the Friday morning session. Over the week end he has become so lame as to necessitate his remaining off his feet for several days.

Real Estate Transfers

Dec. 28. John H. Austin, of Stonington, to Leonard Finizo, lot of land of 54,000 square feet, on eastern half of Norman farm off Noose Neck Hill road.

Dec. 28. Antonio Di Perri, Catherine Grilis, Mary Frisella and Michael DiPerri to Peter DiPerri, land with buildings and improvements on the easterly side of High street, bounded northerly by land of Aniellio Matarase, easterly by Jay street extension and southerly by land of the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

Before daylight Sunday, taking advantage of the open weather and clear channel in the Pawcatuck river, the nearly new oil-burning tug "Socony No. 27," with town, steel tank barge, "Socony No. 75", of New York, under Pilot Michaelson, came up the river to moor at the Pawcatuck plant of the Standard Oil company. The barge was no sooner moored to the crib piling than the steam pumps began pumping the cargo of light fuel oil to the recently-constructed tank container located at the rear of the lower Mechanic street yard, near the tracks of the N. Y., N. H. and H. railroad. Agent Ernest H. Ozanne and Clerk Frank Thoumaine were of the opinion that the boat would be emptied before night and that when the big storage tank was filled it would be necessary to use an auxiliary tank for the remainder of the cargo. The tug was the most recently constructed craft of the Standard Oil fleet to come up the Pawcatuck since the channel was widened and deepened, although not as long as the tank steamer "Oswego", which made several Pawcatuck river trips, its last departure being for Norwich. The town coming up the sound from New York and the New Jersey port of departure, stopped over at New London harbor before making the early morning trip to Westerly. With favorable weather conditions it was expected that by Sunday night the tug and barge would drop down the Pawcatuck river for a return trip to New York.

Staff Sergt. Paul C. Merrill, of Westerly, younger brother of the late Harold W. Merrill, from whom Westerly post of the American Legion takes its name, writes Westerly friends at Christmas from Chanute Flying field, Rantoul, Ill. In the mechanic section of the government field he reports that he is getting along well, although it has been real cold out there, with much snow So far, he states, he has led his class in mark and hopes that he can keep it up. He closes his letter by wishing Westerly friends a happy New Year.

Officers have been elected by Harley P. Chase post, No. 1265, Veterans of Foreign Wars, as follows: Lawrence E. Rook, commander; senior vice commander, George C. Harris; junior vice commander, Herbert Robinson; officer of the day, Wilfred Mathieu; quartermaster, Harry M. Bricker; trustee for 18 months, Past Commander Michael McCarthy, Jr.; surgeon, Charles Knight; judge advocate, John J. Donahue; chaplain, John L. Sullivan.

The new officers will be installed the first meeting of the new year, January 10. Through the generosity of the merchants and citizens of the town who helped make the last dance a success, the Post Relief corps has been able to do a great deal for the needy ex-service men in town and in various hospitals throughout the country, also for their families.

The Christmas season was brought to a close in Vets' hall, when the post was host to between 75 and 80 children, who were entertained by Santa, at a well filled Christmas tree. Cake and ice cream were served.

LIGHTSHIP MEN WIN IN A CARD CONTEST

When Christmas day came in the village and two sailors from Cornfield lightship, and their manager, Fred Phillips, got a few hours off at night from their captain to play for the championship bridge game of the village, against two crack-players, Eddie Burns and Lawrence Sullivan, of the Aunt Sarah Peabody club, for a 14-lb goose, given by a well known farmer, Austin Lamb of Ledyard. The games took place at the Aunt Sarah Peabody club hall, before the largest crowd that ever saw a card game here. Over 500 people were jammed like sardines in a can. The two sailors were Deckhand Speed Carson and Cook Dale Aldrich, already for the battle. Billie Barry was in charge of the non-smoke players when the hands of the clock read 8:30 the table was all set. Then in walked Referee Joe Walsh having a new Christmas tie and told the players the rules of the game—and no cheating.

Manager Phillips said: "Play every card carefully and take no chances, for we are up against the two slickest card sharps this side of the Connecticut river." Then Manager Barry, with a nice line of talk that pleased the crowd, told his men to do their best for the non-tobacco users' club and let the best team win. So Referee Walsh called for action and the first game was on. The young salts from the good lightship, had a trick learned from an old whaler that almost put the books in Never-Give-Up Sullivan and Shorty Eddie Burns. But a lucky card saved the non-tobacco users that set. The crowd was in an uproar and it was hard for the house man to keep them still.

But the sailors won out after a hard battle and good playing also Bread-Mixer Aldrick almost had a 13-card trump, a perfect hand. But he did not wipe his glasses off and read one card wrong and sure brought a laugh from the crowd. One rooter said: "Did Santa Claus overlook your letter for a new pair of glasses?"

Second match was ready after a 5-minute rest and the non-tobacco users were ready to even it up, and Shorty Eddie Burns and Chief Cool-Them-Off Sullivan said: "We will give them the heavy oil." But Deckhand Carson was taking his time like a watch-maker looking over a $125 watch while Cream-of-Wheat Cook Aldrich was so slow on a play that the crowd was yelling for more speed.

The men of Manager Oller Phillips were holding everything that a card player could for the luck was breaking good and the lightship men won the last match, bringing back with them the golden goose from the farm of Austin Lamb also the championship of the Indian town of Noank. The crowd did more cheering than a fireman hero saving a child on the 39th floor.

MONTVILLE MAN MADE BLIND: SQUEALS ON BOOTLEGGERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 29.—Victor and Bronislawa Kowalczyk, husband and wife, residing at 185 North Bank street, were arrested Saturday afternoon charged with violation of the liquor law and will be in court Monday on three counts, manufacture, actual sale and keeping with intent to sell. Kowalczyk and his wife furnished surcties on their respective bonds of $1,000. Information was obtained within a day or two that Kowalczyk and his wife were selling liquor. A search warrant was issued and State Police Officer Peter Busch and Automobile Patrol Officer Augustus Ray and Patrolman Cornelius Moriarty, went to the house and made a thorough search. A 20-gallon still with complete equipment, a barrel of mash, four gallons of hooch and a gallon of wine were seized as evidence against the man and women. The arrest of the couple was the result of a Montville man making complaint against Kowalczyk and claiming that he had been partially made blind by drinking the output at the North Bank street house.

Headaches, for example. They come without warning, but one can always be prepared. Bayer Aspirin tablets bring immediate relief. Keep a bottle at the office. Carry the small tin in your pocket. Then you won't have to hunt a drugstore, or wait till you get home.

And don't think Bayer Aspirin is only good for headaches, sore throats, and colds! Read the proven directions for relieving neuralgic, neuritic, rheumatic, and other aches and pains. Remembering, of course, that the quick comfort from these tablets is not a cure; for any continued pain, see a doctor.

Bayer Aspirin is genuine. Protect yourself by looking for that name. Always the same. Always safe. Never hurts the heart.

"Though The Mills of God Grind Slowly----"

TIME passes quickly and great changes are wrought. Nineteen Hundred and Twenty-nine will soon be history and with it, pass all the year's achievements to be remembered only as stepping-stones and building blocks for the future.

In retrospect, we find that in the year just closing, Economy has allied itself with New England's greatest chain food system, First National Stores, Incorporated. It thus rounds out a perfect organization and enables itself to offer unsurpassed service and an even more complete line of finest groceries, meats, fish, fruits and vegetables than ever before.

The past year saw also the introduction of highest quality meats and fish into Economy stores; and the opening of several new markets, unexcelled for beauty, cleanliness, sanitation and service. Economy has every intention of expanding state-wide in this new phase of its activities.

During 1929 too, the great new plant, comprising warehouses and bakery was begun at Economy's headquarters at East Hartford. Here is a project which will increase Economy's ability to serve beyond all preconception — if such improvement had been possible.

It is with a great deal of pride and anticipation that we face 1930. If we have reason to feel proud of Economy's record of fifteen years of service to Her Majesty, the Connecticut Housewife, we have all the more reason for feeling confident of what 1930 will bring in the way of benefits from Economy to Connecticut homes.

It is Economy's firm purpose to make life happier and the load lighter for Connecticut housewives by bringing them the very best foodstuffs the world affords at substantial savings in price.

And thus, by doing its share, Economy gives reality to its hope that the New Year may bring life's richest blessings and happiness into every home and every heart in Connecticut.

BUSINESS LEADERS ARE CONFIDENT OF NATION'S ECONOMIC STABILITY

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP)—The last full week of the year in business and industry, a year which has broken production records in many basic lines, and set a new high level in corporate earnings generally, was marked by hesitancy and a sobriety offering sharp contrast with the enthusiasm of a year ago.

Confidence in the nation's economic stability, however, was the keynote of the array of business prophecy which bursts into full flower at this season. It is found particularly reassuring that the year-end inventories disclose abnormally low stocks of goods in most lines, and while new buying is being deferred in the hope of price recessions, it appears inevitable that stocks must be gradually replenished during coming weeks.

Most statistical, economic and business advisory services are telling their clients that the first half of 1930 will be comparatively quiet, but will witness a gradual recovery of business and industry by springtime.

Steel mill operations during the past week, have fallen off to around 50 per cent of rate capacity. The year-end is normally a slack period, owing to inventory taking and plant repairs.

Inquiry from the railroads and for structural steel has been large. There are definite indications of revival in activity in automotive manufacturing.

Freight car loadings as reported for the latest week again declined substantially below the like week of last year, but held above the like period of 1927. The first 49 railroads to report net operating income for November, showed a decline of more than 20 per cent, but November of 1928 showed a gain of 31 per cent over the like month of 1927. Bank clearings last week declined 12 per cent from the corresponding week of last year, but the lessened stock market activity was undoubtedly an important factor.

Mercantile failures during December have been comparatively large. While the reports show a numerical gain of only 6 1-4 per cent over the previous December, the total liabilities jumped more than 40 per cent, and were the highest for any month in seven years.

Copper remained firm, despite the abnormally large stocks of producers. Copper futures are selling substantially below the 18-cent level, but producers have sharply curtailed production, and will hold it at a low level pending renewed buying. Zinc eased off further. Anaconda ordered the regular quarterly dividend on the common stock.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29—(AP)—A concensus from authoritative sources indicates a continued business recession during the early months of the coming year, some measure of recovery in the spring, and a gradual improvement following, according to the guaranty survey, published by the Guaranty Trust Co. "The closing year began well but ended badly," the survey adds. "While the new year bids fair to reverse the process."

The Lautaro Nitrate Corp. of Delaware, controlled by the Anglo-Chilean Consolidated Nitrate Co., will issue 10 shares of common stock for each $1,000 bond held by bondholders on Jan. 1. It is expected that application will be made to list the stock on the New York Curb exchange.

Lumber orders received at 805 leading hardwood and softwood mills during the week ending Dec. 21, were 88 per cent of current production, as compared with 89 per cent the week previous and about 77 per cent for some weeks before that, according to reports to the National Lumber Manufacturers association.

They will be priced at approximately $28 each.

Silas W. Howland, of the law firm of Root, Clark, Buckner, Howland & Ballantine, will retire from the practice of law Jan. 1, and become a partner in the firm of Guggenheim Brothers, capitalists owning important copper properties.

The Colin B. Kennedy Corp., manufacturers of radio receiving sets contemplates opening an assembly factory in Australia because of the preferential import tax now imposed on American-made sets. The tax amounts to about $50 on an eight-tube set.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Old felt hats, cut in inch pieces, make excellent strips for doors and windows.

To remove chewing gum that has stuck to clothing, cover the gummed part with the white of an egg.

If a three-minute hourglass is placed by the telephone, long-distance toll calls can be timed.

If food is too salty place a wet cloth over the top of the vessel which is cooking. The steam will draw the salt into the cloth.

In order to make home-bread glossy, rub the top with vinegar when almost baked; then return it to the oven for a few minutes.

A custard pie, spread over with a thin icing of chocolate, is twice as appetizing to the child who needs custard but is tired of it.

Before putting potatoes in the oven to bake brush the skins thoroughly, then roll them in bacon fat if you like the flavor of bacon.

To remove brown marks from dishes caused by baking in the oven, rub them well with damp salt; then wash off and repeat the process if necessary.

When making a cake containing nuts, raisins and citron much labor may be saved by putting all these ingredients into the chopper at one time.

If postage stamps have become glued together lay a thin paper over them and run a hot iron over the paper. The mucilage will not be hurt.

Sponges used in the bathroom may be kept soft and sweet if washed occasionally in warm water to which a few drops of lemon juice have been added.

Excellent milk for cooking may be made in this way: Boil two quarts of water, remove it from the fire, let cool, and add one can of evaporated milk, one teaspoon of salt and two teaspoons of sugar. Keep it in the refrigerator until ready to use.

LEFT-OVER MEATS

You can make excellent supper sandwiches by grinding up any left-over bits of meat, mixing them with mayonnaise and serving single slices of hot toast.

CANDLES

To remove candle grease from clothing or furniture, lay a piece of clean blotting paper over the spot and press the paper with a very heavy hot iron. The heat will melt the grease and the blotting paper will absorb it.

HOW TO BUY A TURKEY

The three essential points to remember when buying the turkey are as follows: First, avoid the long and lanky birds. Wide, plump, full well-rounded fowls not only have more meat per pound but that meat is usually tender and better flavor. Second, the skin should be soft and smooth, clear and unbroken. Third, the flesh should be firm to the touch and white or pale yellow in color. The giblets in ready-dressed birds should be of good color. Avoid fowls with thick deposits of fat.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

A gargle of salt and water is splendid for a sore throat.

Blisters caused by perspiration may be relieved by the application of spirits of camphor on a piece of cheesecloth.

For the girl who intends to keep her tan all winter there is a dusting powder in a deep rachel shade, which tones in beautifully with a tanned skin.

Baked oranges are equally as good as lemons for a cold. Cut off the top of an orange, remove the pith, put in a teaspoon each of orange syrup and lime juice, and bake until heated through.

Bruises can be prevented from swelling by applying immediately a cloth about five folds in thickness, dipped in cold water. When the cloth becomes warm renew the wetting.

An excellent salve for chapped lips can be made by mixing 20 parts of white wax, 40 parts of spermaceti 10 parts oil of sweet almonds, and 80 parts of perfectly pure fresh lard.

A hot bath lasting just a few minutes or a hot foot bath is found restful when one is fatigued, but the tepid bath is the most restful of all because of the nervous relaxation induced. They also often induce sleep.

MODERN POTTERY

Luncheon and tea-sets of Brittany pottery are particularly charming since they have adopted new and modernistic motifs and designs.

SHOE TREES

To use too big a shoe tree is worse than none. The little pads are very satisfactory and can be covered with cretonne to match one's closet equipment.

GOLDFISH LUXURY

A most luxurious home for the goldfish consists of a large glass elephant, with a wide opening in the back. Inside the elephant the fish swim gayly around and add a delightful note of color to the room.

APPETIZING TEA

For chilly afternoons, nothing is nicer than a steaming cup of tea with a bit of mint in it. You can use dried mint or you can raise a little sprig or two of it in a sunny window in an ordinary flower pot.

SUIT-CASE PACKER

When packing weekend suitcases, if you use corrugated paper to hold your most fragile garments, they will emerge at the end of the trip wrinkleless and fresh—if you are careful, that is, to pack carefully.

USEFUL BOX

A smart looking and most useful box is of cardboard, with a sloping cover, which conceals six lotion bottles. The box is paper-covered with a Godey print upon the top. It would be an excellent choice as a gift for the college girl whose space is somewhat limited.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Muff bags in black satin, velvet or fur are among the novelties.

The newest two-piece dress, like the one-piece, places a belt at the high waistline.

French fabric manufacturers are trying to popularize printed satin for spring wear.

Pajamas in glove and other silks are being eagerly bought for holiday gifts and uses.

Wool embroidered handbags are among the novelties intended to complete sports costumes.

The long earring has returned to fashion, perhaps because the long fluid line of the new evening frocks seem to call for them.

Satin, velvet and romantic silver cloth ribbons all play a part in the new modes. Bows, loops and girdles of ribbon are seen on many gowns.

Dainty white handkerchiefs have a tiny motif set in one corner, which consists of a small peasant figure, either man or woman, appliqued in colored lines.

NEW HATS

In spite of the general unbecomingness of off-the-face hots for many faces, the predominating style is just that. Turbans now come in at least 24 varieties, with the bonnet turban growing more popular, especially for girls and young matrons.

BROWN FELT HAT FOR MEN

For the man who likes a felt hat of a rather heavy weight, there is a smart model of brown felt. Shown with these hots are neckties of an unusual shade of red.

FORMAL HANDBAGS

Bags of antique brocades mentioned some weeks ago, have grown increasingly smarter. These rich old fabrics of mellow colorings have been sought for creating bags revealing distinctly the influence of other periods. Curiously they are most interesting when of envelope style and simply tailored.

THREE-PIECE WINTER SUIT

For the first time in years is the three-piece suit of winter weight. Many chic models are fashioned from heavy tweeds in the favored winter colors, including tan, brown, red, green, blue, purple and black. Dressier suits are done in broadcloths of black, brown, green, navy and wine shades.

MOIRE FOR EVENING

Almost in defiance of the gorgeousness of the sheer metal gown, the evening frock of moire suddenly springs into the limelight since it is a fabric which depicts the ancient elegance now revived. The moire frock may be black, it may be white, soft green or a shade of red, but it will be very smart.

SEWING SUGGESTIONS

After threading the needle, tie a knot in the end of the thread that was last broken from the spool and the thread will not kink.

When the scissors are dull, run the blades across the neck of a small bottle, in the same position as though cutting off the neck of the bottle.

Cut the strips containing buttons and butonholes from discarded garments. It saves time and labor.

For the woman who likes to embroider, there is a lunch cloth stamped with a stunning design, which is meant to be embroidered in cross-stitch with a thread so heavy it almost resembles wool.

MENDING HINTS

If your small son wears out his knickers' knees almost before he turns around, try backing them with some staunch material before he puts them on, instead of patching them later. You can put the patch on the back with invisible stitches and prolong the good appearance appreciably.

FANCY SEAMING

Little frocks and informal daytime dresses make much of fancy seaming. A navy blue flat crepe frock has its drop yoke, its skirt and its inverted box pleating all let in with a touch of red in the seaming. Flat crepes often have satin seaming and vice versa.

EASY MENDING

The actual mending is only half of the difficulty. Getting the mending equipment together and getting down to the mending is the other half. When one wears unmended clothes it is usually because they were overlooked when put away, and forgotten until time to put them on. Then time was limited. To mend them meant to find a needle and thimble, the right color thread, perhaps a button, a hook and eye or a tape. These things would take time, and so the garment has to be worn unmended.

Especially if you dislike mending and sewing generally have your mending equipment placed very conveniently. A good idea is to have a mending corner in your room. This should be where the light is good by day or night. A little table or stand should serve to hold your equipment, and there should be a small chair for your convenience.

In the top drawer of your stand have a spool case, or the spool case may rest on top of the stand. These spool cases may be bought, or you may make one by driving long nails into a smooth board at regular intervals and enameling it all over with white or colored enamel. The spools can be put on these nails in plain sight and thread may be taken off without removing them.

RAG CARPETING

Modernistic striped and blocked designs in striking color combinations are a feature of the new rag carpeting made in Germany by peasant workers. It is about twenty-seven inches wide and may be bought by the yard.

WALL ORNAMENT

An unusual wall ornament is a wide flat metal bowl, painted a rusty red, which contains an assortment of metal flowers, extremely exotic in shape.

CONCERNING WOMEN

More than 50,000 women are in business in the six New England states. This number is exclusive of factory workers.

Judge Florence Allen, of the supreme court of Ohio, has a unique position of honor and influence. She holds the highest judgeship held by any woman in the United States.

Mrs. H. S. Howard, of Winslow, Me., has the reputation of being the only woman cheesemaker in the state. She averages 4,000 pounds each year and sells it all to tourists.

The newest hospital in London, Eng., exclusively for women patients and devoted to cancer, is operated entirely by women. It has 25 beds and 17 women doctors compose the staff.

The women of America spend approximately $55,000,000 annually on the various purchases made for the household. Women buy 96 per cent of all dry goods, 80 per cent of electrical supplies, 49 per cent of hardware and 31 per cent of the clothes worn by men.

TO ENRICH PLANTS

To enrich the earth around plants, water them with a solution consisting of 150 grains of glue to two gallons of water.

FERNS

Cold tea is excellent for plants especially ferns. A spoonful of tea added to the water in the vase will make cut flowers last much longer.

FLOWER SPRINKLERS

If you have flowers in your house invest in one of the cute little sprinklers with ridiculously long spout. They are really sensible for they prevent the water from dripping when you go from one plant to another.

POTS FOR CACTUS PLANTS

Delightful little pottery flower-pots hold spiky cactus plants, which make decorative and unusual ornaments. Small stands of painted tin may be purchased to hold them.

RECIPES

Orange Fruit Cake: Cream one-fourth cup of butter, add gradually one tablespoonful of sugar.

Beat one egg until light, add another tablespoonful of sugar and combine the mixtures. Then add two-thirds cup of orange marmalade. Sift together two cups of flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder, a pinch each of baking soda, cinnamon and cloves and add to the mixture with one-third cup each of chopped raisins and nuts. Bake in a loaf in a moderate oven.

Pineapple Pudding: Cream one-fourth cup of butter and half a cup of sugar and add one well beaten egg. Add half a cup of milk and one cup of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and a pinch of salt sifted together. Add rings of pineapple thinly sliced. Bake in a flat pan in a moderately hot oven for about 30 minutes. Serve with the following sauce:

The sauce—Mix one teaspoon of cornstarch with one-eighth cup of sugar, one-fourth cup of cold water and one-fourth cup of pineapple sirup. Cook, stirring constantly, until the mixture thickens. Remove from the fire, add one teaspoon of butter and two rings of pineapple finely cut. Serve slightly warm with the pudding.

HUNGARIAN SISTERS PAINT CAPITAL NOTED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 29—(AP)—Berthe and Ellena de Hellebranth, Hungarian artists, have the national capital highly interested today in their "sister act" art exhibit.

They have been painting notables in duplicate. Berthe puts the subject down as his personality appeals to her. At the same time, Ellena is brushing away on her artistic interpretation of the visiting sitter's character.

Berthe put Nicholas Longworth, speaker of the house, on canvass as an outdoor sports man. Her sister's depiction was of a studious statesman.

Countess Szechenyi, wife of the Hungarian minister, and Senators Borah and Lawrence C. Phipps are others of their subjects.

I saw Speaker Longwoth viewing himself as the two artist sisters had interpreted him. He bore a quizzical smile and had only this to say:

"The forehead is a bit too high."

"But," chorused Ellena and Berthe, "you only gave us 28 minutes!"

Berthe is a year older than Ellena. They began drawing when they were 3 and 4. Their father, John de Hellebranth, who is a lawyer in Budapest, looked at the childish sketches.

"They will be great artists," he said.

The girls drew rapidly, getting their subjects to talk about something which interests them. Speaker Longworth talked of Europe. Senator Borah of historic places in Washington.

"We just let our brushes walk around while they talk," says Berthe.

HUNGARIAN WOMEN FIRST IN CITY PLANNING DESIGN

GYOR, Hungary, Dec. 29—(AP)—A woman architect, Mary Anne Varnay, has created a sensation by winning the first prize in a competition for the town-planning scheme of this city, which has 65,000 inhabitants.

Miss Varney, who is the only woman architect in Hungary, told The Associated Press she had great difficulties to overcome at the university, where the professors regarded her almost as an intruder.

After she had obtained her diploma in Budapest she went to Paris, but could not find employment there, so she left for Prague, Czecho-Slovakia, where she found a job.

As she wished to obtain experience in practical bricklaying she returned to Budapest and worked as a laborer for about three months.

Since then she has executed some good work, one of her chief tasks having been the planning and construction of the workmen's colony at Wiener Neustadt in Austria.

ENGLISH WOMEN TRAIN FOR DOMESTIC SERVICE

LEAMINGTON, England, Dec. 29—(AP)—A new method of dealing with England's unemployment of girls and women between 16 and 25 is being undertaken by the government.

A large new house in Leamington soon will be opened as a residential training center where relays of 40 girls will take a concentrated 16-week training course for domestic service.

The school, which will be operated by the central committee on women's training and employment, is to be opened especially for girls from the mining district, where unemployment is serious.

ST. MORITZ SKI WOMEN COPY BELL BOY UNIFORMS

ST. MORITZ, Dec. 29—(AP)—Emerald green and ruby red are the dominant colors on the ice and tobogan run.

Ski enthusiasts seem to prefer black and dark blue costumes with scarves, gloves and helmets of white or bright color.

Long trousers tucked into heavy boots and waist-long jackets, modeled on the lines of the bell boy's uniform in America, comprise the winter sport outfit the smartest women are wearing.

ISLAND HEROINE CARES FOR BUSINESS WOMEN

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 29—(AP)—Five months' reign as the uncrowned queen of a bleak little island off the coast of Greece was the unique experience of Dr. Olga Statsny, newly appointed health chairman of the National Federation of Business and Professional women.

After the Smyrna disaster in 1928, Dr. Statsny cared for 12,000 refugees who poured onto the island at Mucronissi when Greece closed its doors to them.

She now will direct the health program of 56,000 American business women.

A YOUNG GIRL'S COLONIAL TYPE BEDROOM

A BOUDOIR FOR THE SUB-DEB

Comfort, good taste and convenience are the basic requirements in planning a room for the sub-deb—or for anyone else.

In planning the younger girl's room, it is wise to select furniture of simple construction, graceful in line and of a good period. Perhaps Colonial is best, since it harmonizes with many draperies and accessories in vogue today.

Care should be given to arranging the proper light, both natural and artificial. Another nicety for the youthful type of room is the well-equipped dressing table as an incentive to developing the proper habits of beauty culture.

Needless to say, a cupboard with presses and receptacles for holding clothes and other belongings is a vital contributor to the peace of mind of Mother as well as inculcating a sense of order at the tender age.

In the accompanying sketch a corner of a delightfully feminine but simple room is illustrated.

A built-in seat flanked by bookcases is conveniently arranged below the window group. This may be upholstered in a plain or printed material which harmonizes or contrasts with the prevailing color scheme. As a rule, window seats are equipped with a top that opens, but here the canny decorator has decided to provide convenient space for hat boxes, shoes and other odds and ends by opening the panels at the side, outward.

The bookcases have shelves on the side facing the window seat and deep cupboards at the top.

Draperies are of simple, straight-hanging glass panels of celanese voile, with overdraperies of contrasting material, either plain or printed.

The furniture suggests the early American, and would be excellent in maple or one of the unfinished woods lacquered in a favorite shade. Note the simple lines of the narrow bed and the frilly, bouffant dressing-table with its simply framed mirror and colorful toilet accessories.

DIXIE BEAUTIES GO IN FOR FLYING

ATLANTA (AP)—Dixie beauties are going in strong for aviation.

Most of them hope to become commercial pilots. Some intend to have planes of their own.

Atlanta alone has nearly a dozen girl aviation students who are paying their flying school expenses from their earnings in jobs that range from school teaching to sales direction.

Stenographers, office girls, clerks and secretaries are on flying school rolls.

Your Health And Brain

By Dr Leland E. Alford

The Psychopath

When we set out on a program of crime prevention, it is necessary to have a clear understanding of the psychopath, for he is eminently the criminal type.

Almost from the day of his birth he finds it easier to do wrong than right, and the number of bad things he can think up surpasses belief.

Moreover, the usual disciplinary measures often have little effect.

Psychopathic personality and moral imbecility are names applied to the disorder of which there are a number of other types than the one now under discussion.

The psychopath is neither insane nor feeble-minded. The only evidence of his disorder is the consistent and gross misbehavior.

The nature of the disorder is far from clear. The very tenacity with which the victim pursues wrongdoing would indicate that the fault is with his brain rather than in his psychology.

Still, some psychologists would insist that the slip was made in his early training. Against this position is the observation that if as a child he is an orphan and is adopted into a good family he generally follows his natural bent regardless of environment.

The psychopath's crimes cover everything on the calendar, including murder, and each psychopath runs through a fair percentage of them all. The worst are assault, brutality to animals and children, bigamy, rages, vandalism, arson, blackmail, thievery.

Stealing in some form is a trait of nearly all psychopaths and gets them in jail if nothing else does. He has strong desires, is energetic and aggressive in crime. To properly understand his versatility one should read a life history of one of his number.

Above all, the psychopath is resistent to punishment for his crime. He will commit the same offense over and over.

In childhood, by the finest supervision, the psychopath may be led into busying himself in some useful occupation, and be thereby kept away from mischief. In child guidance measures seem to lie his chief hope.

Guiding Your Child

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

Sauce for the Goose

"Come, Helen, this afternoon will be a good time to get the boy's mending done. Joey's shirts almost all need to have buttons sewed on, and I don't believe Ed has a whole pair of golf stockings left."

"But mother, I don't see why I should have to do the boys' mending. They don't ever have to do anything like that. What do they ever do for anybody?"

"Why-er-they go fishing dear. Don't you remember the lovely trout they used to bring us home for supper last summer?"

"Fishing! That's just fun. I wouldn't mind going fishing either. I'm perfectly willing to change jobs and let the boys stay home and darn my stockings."

"Helen, I'm ashamed of you. You are positively selfish."

"Well, I can't see why its worse for a girl to be selfish than for a boy. And I don't see why I should do things for the boys when they don't do anything for me."

Girls, as a good many people have noticed, are not what they used to be. The world which used to relieve women of economic struggle in return for their devotion to the service of the home has passed out of existence.

The mother who tries to inculcate standards out of tune with changed conditions only forfeits her influence with her child.

It is up to us to examine critically the ideals which we have always taken for granted, and to readjust our values before the younger generation shows us up.

NECKWEAR EXPRESSES THE FEMINIZED MODE

PARIS, Dec. 29—(AP)—There is a boom in the women's neckwear line.

All kinds of detachable collars, ties, jabots and capelets are forecast here for spring wear.

Present daytime fashions give lingerie trimming a bigger place than it has occupied for several seasons. But the people who know what is coming say that the present vogue is slight compared with what is due in the immediate future.

Pique is the most popular form of washable trimming.

It appears on dresses of varied types, from wool jersey to sheer chiffon. Starched linen is next in importance. Silk pique and wash satin are employed for vests, collars and cuffs of semi-tailored silk or wool dresses.

With the formalized type of afternoon frock, made of crepe de chine or chiffon, intricate jabot and collar sets of lace and net, with touches of embroidery, are of increasing importance.

Round collars of real lace with small lace jabots or butterfly bows attached are a classic form of chic with black afternoon dresses.

They are regarded here as the almost exclusive property of debutantes, however, and characterize ankle length dresses for young girls.

New Green Is Phosphorous.

PARIS, Dec. 29—(AP)—Phosphorous green is colored satin introduced for evening. It is a shade between pale jade and light robin's egg. Couturiers combine it frequently with sable or fitch.

A rock slide in the west recently started a forest fire, when a spark apparently was caused by rocks striking together or by the friction of a rock with combustible bark.

POETRY

Gloria In Excelsis

Glory be to God on high!
Peace to men afar and nigh.
We bless Thee, we worship Thee,
On the land and on the sea;
We thy praise devoutly sing,
God of heaven, God our king.

Christ, Redeemer, Son of God,
Grant us grace and mercy, Lord.
Grant us mercy everywhere
For our sins, and hear our prayer;
Unto Thee all glory be,
Savior of the Trinity.

Glory be to Thee above,
Christ of peace and Christ of love,
Thou art holy, Lord on high,
Guarding us with watchful eye;
Glory, glory be to Thee,
Christ who died on Calvary!

—By Charles Nevers Holmes.

The Wayside Spring

Fair dweller by the dusty way,
Bright saint within a mossy shrine,
The tribute of a heart today,
Weary and worn, is thine.

The earliest blossom of the year,
The sweetbrier and the violet,
The pious hand of spring has here
Upon thy altar set.

And not to thee alone is given
The homage of the pilgrim's knee;
But to the sweetest birds of heaven
Glide down and sing to thee.

Here daily from his beechen cell
The hermit squirrel steals to drink;
And flocks, which cluster to their bell,
Recline along thy brink.

And here the wagoner blocks his wheels,
To quaff the cool and generous boon;
Here from the sultry harvest fields
The reapers rest at noon.

And oft the beggar masked with sin,
In rusty garments gray with dust
Here sips and dips his little can,
And breaks his scanty crust.

And lulled beside thy whispering stream,
Oft drops to slumber unawares,
And sees the angel of his dream
Upon celestial stairs.

Dear dweller by the dusty way,
Thou saint within a mossy shrine,
The tribute of a heart today,
Weary and worn is thine.

—Thomas Buchanan Read. 1822-1872.

BRIDGEPORT HANDS LOCAL "Y" FIVE FIRST DEFEAT IN STATE LEAGUE

The Y Seniors dropped into second place in the state Y league Saturday evening at the Y gym, when they lost their first game of the campaign to Bridgeport, 42 to 33. Middletown took undisputed possession of first place the same night by winning from Torrington and continuing its unbroken string of victories. The locals have now won four and lost one in league play.

The seniors started off strong and battled the visitors on even terms in the first quarter, which ended, 8-7, in the local's favor but the Park City five started to pull out ahead about the middle of the second period and had a 19-15 advantage at the half.

In the third quarter they increased their margin to 33-23 and then coasted down through the final stanza. The locals made several threatening gestures in the closing moments of the game but missed too many easy shots to deserve to win. Bridgeport had three or four six-footers and this was a big advantage to them.

Once again, as in last Saturday's tilt with Westport, the Demarest-men were handicapped by the absence of their star forward, Aubrey Brown, who will return home this week after a stay in Toledo, Ohio.

Brown is one of the big defensive men in the league and his absence the past two weeks cost them Saturday's game and made them travel at a torrid pace to win last week's by one point.

Lynch and Harris were the big point scorers for the locals Saturday night but Enos Eccleston, right guard, played the best floor game. Shey, right forward, was the leading scorer for the winners.

This week the Seniors play two games, meeting the Heller Bros. Wednesday (New Year's) at 3 p. m. and Saturday evening taking on Norwalk Y here in a state league game.

In the preliminary the Willimantic Red Men were too strong for the Gamman leaders in the local church league and won, 42 to 17. Greene and M. Mandell scored 30 of the points between them.

YALE AND MICHIGAN HOCKEY TEAMS READY FOR GAME

LAKE PLACID CLUB, N. Y., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Hockey squads of Yale and the University of Michigan practiced today for tomorrow's encounter, the first of three which will feature the eighth annual college week carnival here.

While the hockey games are in progress the next three days, eight events counting toward award for the President Harding Winter Sports trophy for colleges will be under way on the ice and snow. Forty athletes from Dartmouth, Bates, Williams, Ottawa, McGill, Wisconsin, New Hampshire, Vermont, Bowdoin, Maine and Stolaf college of Minnesota will compete.

The seven mile cross country ski race will open the program tomorrow morning, followed by a slalom ski race, quarter mile skating race, figure skating contest, [illegible] mile skating race, two mile snow shoe race and ski jumping.

PITTSBURGH TEAM HAS WORKOUT AT TUCSON

TUCSON, Ariz., Dec. 29.—(AP)—After a brisk workout here today the University of Pittsburgh entrained tonight for Pasadena where they will meet the University of Southern California Trojans in the tournament of Roses game New Year's day.

Coach Sutherland put his men through signal drill, dummy scrimmage and work on Trojan formations. Considerable time also was devoted to passing practice, both offensive and defensive. Sutherland said the workout here was the most satisfactory they had along the route.

The team visited Saint Xavier mission and other points of interest and made an effort to re-arrange their schedule for a stopover here until tomorrow but this was unsuccessful.

Line Coach A. W. Stevenson said he believed the defeat Saturday of Army by Stanford would impress his team forcibly as to the calibre of the Trojans since the Southern California team had beaten Stanford earlier in the season.

Several additional amounts have been pledged and Manager Falk expects to purchase the suits the latter part of this week. He is now negotiating for games with teams in Middletown and New London and as the local quintet is unusually strong and well-trained, some fast and exciting contests are expected during the coming weeks.

WEST TEAM SUFFERS TWO LOSSES IN LOM AND SLOAN

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 29.—(AP)—The west got down to serious football practice on the St. Mary's campus, in Moraga valley today, in preparation for the Shrine's annual East-West grid classic Wednesday at Kezar stadium here.

The east is armed with a bright array of All-American stars, but this has not lessened the general confidence of the west. Under the command of Coach Percy Locey and his lieutenants, Jack Patrick and "Clac" Hubbard, the westerners worked intensively today in final preparations for the battle.

Only two things have disturbed the feeling of confidence in the western stronghold. Benny Lom, California star halfback, turned up with an injured leg and yesterday Clair Sloan, Nebraska's backfield ace, reported with a deep eclat wound in his shin.

While Locey was sending his charges through their paces, Head Coach Andy Kerr of the east marshalled his forces on one of Stanford university's practice fields. The squad from the sunrise side of the Rockies has shown great power in its workouts, and Coach Kerr believes that game honors are due to fall to his team. Tom Dowler, Colgate, halfback, still is on the shelf with a wrenched knee, but may be sufficiently recovered by Wednesday to play a part of the game.

ARMY ON WAY EAST AFTER DEFEAT BY STANFORD

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Army's football squad was on its way back to West Point today bearing with it memories of the most decisive defeat of the 1929 season but leaving behind a tribute to the Stanford eleven that came out of the fracas on the long end of a 34-13 score.

The soldiers, who spent last night in San Francisco and departed early today for the east via Los Angeles, paid the Stanford eleven the compliment of being the best team they faced all season. The opinion was expressed that Stanford would be more than a match for Notre Dame and that Yale and Harvard would have proved easy victims to the Cardinal squad that thrilled more than 70,000 spectators at Stanford stadium yesterday. Army lost to Notre Dame and Yale and played a 20-20 tie with Harvard.

TORONTO TAKES ROUGH GAME FROM BLACKHAWKS

CHICAGO, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Toronto's Maple Leafs took a rough and tumble National hockey game from the Chicago Black Hawks in the Chicago stadium tonight, by a 4 to 3 score.

After a slow first period, the Leafs jumped out to a two-goal lead which was cut to one within a few moments. They scored another to again lead by two goals, but the Hawks came right back with another. Blair scored the first one for the Leafs on a pass from Day, and a few moments later scored with help from Pettingerr. Cook scored on a pass from Ingram to give Chicago a start, and Gottselig put on a great individual demonstration to score again for the Hawks. Nedved tied it up for Chicago in the final period, but Conacher took a pass from Primeau to rifle in the winning goal about midway of the session.

"A quiet evening at home." Yeah, who has 'em?

You all hear now and then somebody, in answer to the question, "Whaddo you going to do tonight?" say, "Oh, I'm just going to have a quiet evening at home."

A quiet evening at home, blah. In other such a thing, and if there is what's the recipe? When you say you're going to have a quiet evening at home it's like saying you're going to beat the income tax—it can't be done.

Here am I, a poor, hard working woman, who has only one night a week to myself and I would like a quiet evening at home now and then if such a thing is possible.

Saturday night I says to the other half of the matrimonial combine, "Let's have a nice quiet evening at home," and he says "All right, that suits me."

Well after the dinner dishes is washed we adjourns to the living room for the quiet evening. Friend husband makes a dash for the radio and gets a station that's broadcasting red hot dance music. He grabs me, whirls me around the floor a few times and seems surprised when I says "Let's sit down."

I turns the radio to some quiet classical music and he turns it back to jazz. Well we have a verbal battle as to the relative merits of classical music and jazz and finally compromise by turning off the set.

I gets settled with a good book and the husband is looking over one of the papers and every little while he says "Listen to this," and he reads something about a husband giving his wife poison 'cause he snored. When I says "She oughta" he gets peeved again.

About that time Junior comes home from the theatre with a boy friend and they start making the kitchen into a gymnasium and finally I gets disgusted and sends the boy friend home. Then I find I got Junior to entertain.

I says "Oh, Junior, you get your father to play with you," but I find the husband has gone to sleep in his chair. Well, I play a couple games with the boy and he accuses me of cheating so I quits and goes back to the book.

I read about one page when the telephone rings and it's one of the girls who is also having a quiet evening at home. Well, she's got a tale of woe about what she wanted for Christmas and didn't get it and how she ain't going to give her Aunt Minnie a litta silk underwear and get picture postcards in return.

Well after a half hour of that conversation, my part of which consists of saying "Uh huh," and "You don't tell me," and "Ain't that a shame," she rings off. Meantime I can hear husband splashing around in the bathroom and I know as soon as he gets through I'll have to clean up the room.

Well after I get the room cleaned up it's time to go to bed and I do.

A quiet evening at home. Hokum.

OFFICIALS DISCUSS FOOTBALL RULES, NO CHANGES MADE

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP) — The eastern association for the selection of football officials met today, talked over the rules but failed to do anything about them.

Contrary to expectations neither the new fumble rule nor the suggestion that the goal posts be restored to their old position at the goal line figured in the discussions. Considerable time was devoted to a proposal that a penalty of five yards be charged against the punting side when it touches a kicked ball. This suggestion was advanced in order to prevent ends of the punting side from going down the field to stop a wayward punt which hopped backward or killing it with a touch of the hand so that the safety man, watching for an opening, cannot run it back. As it stands now such a play is ruled a foul with no penalty. No definite action was taken on the proposal.

A report was made on the progress of the re-codification committee headed by E. K. Hall of Dartmouth. The committee was named last year to clarify the rules.

Wilmer Crowell, Swarthmore, was re-elected president; Hugh McGrath, Boston college, vice president, and W. G. Crowley, Bowdoin, secretary.

BENNY LEONARD ORGANIZES NEW HOCKEY LEAGUE

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 29.—(AP)— Announcement that he had virtually completed arrangements for the organization of a four-club professional hockey league with teams in Dallas, Fort Worth, Tulsa and Oklahoma City, was made here today by Benny Leonard, retired undefeated lightweight boxing champion.

Leonard expects to have active charge of the Dallas club and an agent in charge of the Fort Worth member.

All that remains to complete the circuit, he said is for Tulsa—already in the American Association Ice Hockey league—to agree to place another team in his loop.

Leonard intends to import competent coaches for his two Texas teams and to bring in promising young stars from independent and school championship clubs in Canada to form the personnel of the teams. He is anxious to develop talent for the Pittsburgh, Pa., team in the National league, in which he is a stockholder.

MAROONS TAKE ONE-SIDED GAME FROM DETROIT

DETROIT, Dec. 29.—(AP)—The Montreal Maroons took a one-sided game from the Detroit Cougars by 6 to 2 here tonight to go into the lead in the International division of the National Hockey league.

The Cougars were outclassed by the fast skating Maroons who slipped in four goals in the first period alone.

Rockburn, second string defense man for the Cougars, was injured in a hard fall and was taken to a hospital. It was feared that a hip bone was fractured.

College Chess Game.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Defeating City College of New York by a narrow margin of 2 1-2 to 1 1-2, the chess players of Columbia university won the annual championship of the Intercollegiate Chess league and gained possession of the Phillips trophy.

The final standing of the teams showed Columbia in the lead with 1 1-2 points; City College second with one point and Penn third and last with 1-2 point.

Penn drew with Columbia 2-2 and lost 4 to 0 to Cit College

LITTLE TO INTEREST BOXING FANS THIS WEEK

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP)—There's little on this week's metropolitan wide boxing program to tantil the ticket public.

Maxie Rosenbloom's tangle with Lee Lomski, the Aberdeen, Wash., "assassin" in Madison Square Garden, here Friday night, seemed to head the list here in quantity but decidedly short in quality.

Rosenbloom, a contender for Tommy Loughran's vacant light heavyweight crown, and Lomski, another leading 175 pounder, have met three times with honors all even. Rosenbloom holds one decision over the far westerner and Lomski outpointed the New Yorker in another encounter. Their third bout resulted in a draw.

Welterweights will hold the spotlight in the New Year's day card at the Philadelphia arena. Gorilla Jones, Akron Negro, swaps punches with Billy Angelo, of Lafayette, Pa., in the windup. Sammy Baker, of New York, faces Gene Moretti, of Atlantic City, in the semi-final.

King Tut, Milwaukee lightweight star Billy Wallace, of Cleveland, will furnish the chief entertainment at a New Year's matinee card at Milwaukee.

At Detroit, Friday night, Harry Ebbets, blond Freeport youngster, whose winning streak recently was checked by Rene DeVos, of Belgium, will encounter Willie Oster, Boston middleweight in the windup of 10 rounds.

Other bouts on the national schedule include:

Monday, at San Francisco, Speedy Dado, Manila vs. Bobby Garcia, Manila, flyweights, 10 rounds; at Oakland, Cal. Tony Fuente, Mexico City vs. Max Baer, Oakland, heavyweights, 10 rounds.

Wednesday, at Cincinnati, Bushy Graham, Utica, N. Y., vs. Freddie Miller, Cincinnati, featherweights, 10 rounds; at Columbus, Ohio, Mike O'Dowd, Columbus, vs. Eddie Shea, Chicago, featherweights, 10 rounds; at Los Angeles, Jack Demaree, New York, vs. Lee Kennedy, Hollywood, heavyweights, 10 rounds; at Tacoma, Wash., Doc Snell, Tacoma, vs. Joe Glick, New York, lightweights, six rounds.

COLLEGE HOCKEY AT PARK RINK ON NEW YEAR'S

Weather permitting, the Conn. Aggie varsity hockey team will appear against Norwich at the Park open air skating arena on New Year's afternoon. This same team from Conn. will shortly afterwards journey to West Point to play the Army.

The Norwich team, which is the result of a great deal of hard work consists of several semi-professional hockey players who have performed in Canada. It is expected that Dave Welker will star for Norwich at guard.

The game will begin at 2 p. m. and is free to the public.

VERDE MATCHED TO BOX BATTALINO AT NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Phil Verde, Rochester, N. Y., featherweight, was signed tonight to meet Bat Battalino, world's featherweight champion, in a ten-round bout at the Arena here, on January 9. Battalino's title will not be at stake.

Battalino was signed up for the match, which will be his first since he became the titleholder, yesterday by Al Weill, matchmaker of the Arena A. C.

Church League Standing.

With about one-fifth of the 1929-30 Church league schedule played, the Gammas seem well on the road to another title, and possibly a chance to play in the county or state church league at the end of the season. Second place is far from being decided and any one of these teams may bring the Gammas down to defeat.

Tonight at 7.15 the Phi Delta Nu team of the United Congregational church will attempt to win its first game with the Central Baptist. Both teams have been rivals, not only in basketball, but in baseball, with the Baptists ahead in basketball, and an exciting game will be the outcome tonight.

In the other game of the evening the Brothers of Joseph are favored to win over the Stronghearts of Jewett City, who have lost their first two encounters because of lack of basketball experience.

Both games will either break the tie for second place by sending the two higher teams up or down, or in a tie for second place between these two teams alone.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Ford Autos.

DETROIT, Dec. 29.—New Ford bodies, with added beauty of line, roomier interiors and a variety of new colors and color combinations, will be introduced throughout the United States by the Ford Motor company Tuesday morning, (December 31), Edsen B. Ford, president of the Ford company, announced today.

This is the first statement by the Ford company of the specific reason for the recent temporary shut-downs of branch plants for the purpose of making changes in machinery and plant equipment.

Introduction of the new bodies comes on the heels of two recent significant announcements by the Ford company—a general reduction in prices of all types in the Model A line, and a wage increase throughout the Ford plants in the United States, which steps up the minimum wage from six to seven dollars per day.

"Since the Model A was first introduced, it has constantly been made a better car," said Mr. Ford, in announcing the new line of bodies. "As soon as improvements have been developed and tested, they have been built into cars in production and immediately passed on to the public. That process goes steadily on in the Ford plants. This policy of constant improvement is now given still further expression in the new bodies to be presented by dealers throughout the United States, beginning Tuesday morning."

It is stated that the new bodies are to have a number of conspicuous features, not the least of which will be gracefully sweeping lines and proportions usually associated only with custom coachwork, rather than mass production. Polished rustless steel will make its appearance in lamps, radiator shell, hub caps and cowl finish strip. Colors that have not been seen before in the Ford line will accentuate these new developments of the body builder's art. Fenders more generous in proportion and with an added sweep of line will make their contribution to the trimness and smartness of the car, and a lower and fleeter appearance will be immediately apparent.

Complete details of the changes made in Model A bodies were not given by the Ford Motor company today. It was stated, however, that no change will be made in the prices of the various types.

Palace Theatre

William Haines, whom motion picture fans have seen in such successful roles as baseball and football player, has become a sailor. Yes sir, a gob, right off one of the Navy's destroyers. William is a tough, tough gob, too, in his new role, which happens to be the lead in "Navy Blues," the brand-new full-length talking comedy feature now being presented at the Palace theatre, the home of the best entertainment.

Haines plays the part of Kelly, this awfully hard-boiled gob, who gets shore leave with his buddies and is off for the usual rioting good time when a petty officer steps in and orders him and the rest of the bunch to attend a social at the local Y. W. C. A.

Kelly meets a girl at that social—and what a girl. Her name was Alice, and Anita Page plays the part. He soon falls in love with her, and she comes right back with the same. They go to her home where Kelly is to meet her mother. He does, and is ordered out of the house. It seems that the mother doesn't like sailors. Well, anyway, Alice declares that if the boy friend is going to get kicked around like that, she's going along too, and so they go off together to find a rooming house. But that isn't the end of it, by any means. In fact, the story is just getting good at this point. Don't fail to see "Navy Blues." Karl Dane is in it, too.

Once again the Palace begs leave to remind the public of the great entertainment that it is planning to give next Tuesday night when it will hold a New Year's frolic and gambol that will be an eye-opener. Those who attend will see plenty, laugh hard, and have the time of their lives. Owing to the nature of the event, it has been necessary to reserve all seats. There will be a great motion picture, eight big novelty acts, orchestra, noise-makers and everything that goes to make life merry.

The motion picture, "So Long Letty," which is to be shown in connection with the midnight revel, will be continued through Wednesday, Thursday and Friday along with "Oh, Yeah," a marvelous new comedy full-length feature starring James Gleason, Robert Armstrong, Patricia Caron and Zasu Pitts. Another great double feature program!

BROADWAY THEATRE MIDNIGHT FROLIC

A brand-new baby will be adopted by hundreds of happy Broadway patrons Tuesday at midnight, when they welcome to Norwich the husky Infant 1930, at the New Year's eve midnight show, offered by the management. The feature of the bill will be the initial showing of Flo Ziegfeld's personally directed masterpiece, "Glorifying the American Girl," in which Mr. Ziegfeld for the first time, lets the public in on the secrets of how the shop-girls, laundresses, nursemaids, cafe girls, and even high school girls win their way to the ranks of the "Follies," and are "Glorified" beyond their wildest dreams. A tense and vivid drama is the keynote of this great picture, with some marvelous revue scenes in technicolor as a background. A long program of Vitaphone specialties and Paramount talking novelties, specially booked for the midnight show only, are also on the long program, and with plenty of carnival novelties and noisemakers, 1930 is sure of a royal welcome at the Broadway.

Breed Theatre.

William Haines' first dramatic picture, "Alias Jimmy Valentine," made from the famous stage play and with talking sequences, will play an engagement at the Breed theatre.

The picture is of interest because it gives the star his first real chance at a straight dramatic role. Hitherto, his name has been associated with roles of the smart-aleck type, and the comedy angle has predominated. In "Alias Jimmy Valentine," while there are a number of funny moments, the dramatic interest has been emphasized first of all.

Noted players in the supporting cast include Leila Hyams, Karl Dane, Lionel Barrymore and Tully Marshall. Jack Conway directed from an adaptation by A. P. Younger, Joe Farnham wrote the titles.

Haines plays a young safe cracker who outwits the police at every turn. Then he meets a girl, determines to go straight, and is tracked by his old enemy, Detective Doyle, in a succession of scenes full of excitement and surprise.

Chile has started its public works construction program involving an expenditure of more than $191,000,000.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

After Christmas

Said the Christmas tree by the old back fence
To the one just over the way:
"It seems to me it is hard to be
Out here in the cold today.
Last week I stood in a brilliant room,
With children dancing by,
And beautiful candles warmed me through."
Said the other tree, "So did I."

Said the Christmas tree by the old back fence
To the one just over the way:
"I wish out there on the mountain side
They had only let me stay.
My roots were strong, I was warm and green,
While the merry snow flew by,
But now I am trembling, old and weak."
Said the other tree, "So am I."

Said the Christmas tree by the old back fence
To the one just over the way:
"A little boy threw a rock at me
As he passed along today.
And last week, up by a beautiful doll,
A sled was hanging high
For that bad little boy. I'm tired to death."
Said the other tree, "So am I."

Said the Christmas tree by the old back fence
To the one just over the way:
"It's hard to die so far from home,
But I guess we've had our day.
And the children maybe in years to come
Will think of us with a sigh
And the joy it gave. I am reconciled,"
Said the other tree, "So am I."

Only a Dog

Yes, it's only a dog, that's true, but then
Just count on your fingers the women and men
You know as good friends—the friends you have made.
Then, count through the years those that came to your aid;
But, at the least sign of grief or mishap,
Your dog, as your friend, had his head in your lap;
And true to his light, you know he'd confess
To your aid, his poor life. A dumb brute? oh! yes.
I know it's a dog, but—give him his due;
It's only a dog that knows how to be true.

Lament of a Little Girl

My brother Will, he used to be
The nicest kind of girl
He wore a little dress, like me,
And had his hair in curl.
We played with dolls and tea-sets then;
And every kind of toy;
But all those good old times are gone—
Will turned into a boy.

Mamma made him little suits,
With pockets all complete,
And cut off all his yellow curls,
And packed them up as neat;
And Will, he was so pleased, I b'lieve
He almost jumped with joy;
But I must own I didn't like
Will turned into a boy.

And now he plays with horrid tops
I don't know how to spin;
And marbles that I try to shoot,
But never hit or win;
And hoops free—I can't give a "back"
Like Charley, Frank or Roy——
Oh, no one knows how bad I feel,
Since Will has turned a boy.

I have to wear frocks just the same
And now they're mostly white;
I have to sit and just be good,
While Will may climb and fight,
But I must keep my dresses nice,
And wear my hair in curl;
And worse, oh, worst thing of all—
I must stay a girl.

—The Children's Realm.

A Lion's Lament

I'm just a lion in the Zoo,
I walk and think of what I'd do
If I could to the jungles go,
And once again the wildwood know.

But I must stay, men locked me in
(And yet to God they are akin),
I cannot understand just why
They wish to see me slowly die.

I know He never did intend
That I should meet this gruesome end;
I'm sure that they would set me free,
If really civilized they'd be.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

When the old year goes out and the New Year comes in the old folks think it is time to make new resolutions and to overcome bad habits, and perhaps some little folks do, too; and they do a great deal of resolving, and it usually all ends by seeing how soon they can forget all their good resolutions. A few people are benefitted by such resolutions, but with most it finally becomes a very bad habit.

Now, Wide Awakes, get the better habit of resolving every day to make today better than yesterday, and do not get into the habit of dealing with tomorrow. Tomorrow will take care of itself. It is the station in front of you that will never be reached—you never wake up tomorrow, but always wake up today. Then wake up to its value. It is day by day that greatest good is accomplished—the greatest successes achieved. Tomorrow means delay, today means now. Let's be day-resolvers for good, not annual resolvers for next year, which means to most folks, never. Strive to be a good deer rather than a poor promiser. If you do this you will never be sorry.

Uncle Jed thanks the Wide Awakes who have pleasantly remembered him, and wishes all the Wide Awakes a happy New Year.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

A Ride on A Hay Load

Dear Uncle Jed: One day my father was going after a load of hay he had bought from a neighbor, which was in a stack in our neighbor's yard. He had a dog and quite a number of young roosters and pullets. My father got the horse hitched to the wagon and my father, my brother, my sister and I went after the hay.

When we got to our neighbor's yard I saw that one of his pullets had all of its toes crippled. All the chickens were tame and as my sister was loading the hay and my father pitching it on, I was playing with the crippled pullet and my brother was playing with the dog, and watching him crawl on his stomach. For a while we were jumping on the hay stack and seeing who could jump the highest, but my father stopped us by saying it scattered the hay around.

After awhile the hay was all on and the load was quite big. We all got on the load and my father started to turn the horse around. I was standing up holding on two forks, when all of a sudden I felt myself falling and before I knew what was happening I found myself scrambling up from a heap of hay on the ground.

As the horse was turning around the hay was not on very good and the top half of the load had slid off, taking us with it. None of us were hurt but we were frightened from the fall. My father put some of the hay that had fallen off on again, then we all got on and went home.

Gifts for Needy

Dear Uncle Jed: My letter to you this week is merely some facts.

In Putnam our eighth grade is in the high school building. This is my first year there but I like it.

It being near Christmas time we naturally think of our friends. Usually we contrive to give them some gift, but there are always some who do not have the means of buying presents. They are just as much pleased as we are and are pleased even more easily.

In our high school each year it has been a custom to bring many presents for these people. Clothing, food and toys are wanted. Each pupil is asked to bring any one of these or all of them, if possible.

On Christmas morning our principal with a few of the high school boys distribute these gifts among the needy. Our class is, of course, a grammar school grade but we are in the high school building and I am sure that all the members of the class will help as much as he is able.

Our school closes on Dec. 20th and on that day there will be a play. The admission will be ten cents and the proceeds will be spent for the benefit of the school and its pupils.

After Christmas the eighth grade will have a spelling match with the Tourtellotte Memorial high school. I think it is to be held in February. I am wishing that Putnam will win and I am also hoping that the other high school is working for their school. This is all that I shall write today but after the match I will write you a letter describing it.

Merry Christmas to you and the Wide Awakes.

A Narrow Escape

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first letter I have written to you and I hope you will enjoy reading it.

On my way home from school I had to pass the railroad station and I always stopped to watch the passenger trains.

One day as I was coming home a friend told me that a freight train was due and that there were cows coming in it. Instead of waiting at the station I decided to take a short walk along the tracks to help pass the time away.

I soon heard the whistle on the engine and was about to turn and go back when I noticed a place where the track was broken. The train would certainly be derailed if it were allowed to reach this place. I tried to think of a way to save it, and looked around for something red which I could use as a danger signal. Not being able to find anything I thought of the red scarf around my neck. I took it off and waved it on high just as the train appeared.

The engineer saw it and stopped the train instantly. He came down from his cab and angrily asked me why I had stopped him. I showed him the broken track. His anger vanished immediately and he thanked me and told me I had saved his life and the lives of others who were on this train with him.

A purse of money was offered to me as a reward but I refused to accept it and asked that it be given to some charitable institution.

The Poor Muckrat

Dear Uncle Jed: I would like to tell you a story which I will name "The End of a Poor Muskrat."

One day while we were having our lunch hour in my school a boy from our school came in with a dead muskrat. He had caught it in one of his traps and was going to show it to our teacher. It had fur that was about 1 inches long. It was grayish-brown with black stripes.

While looking at it I noticed that when caught in the trap, it had gnawed off one of its front paws. When I saw this I felt very sorry that I could not look at it any more.

Later the boy told me that when they are caught in a trap they are numb, and do not suffer when they gnaw their paws off.

I felt better, but whether it is true or not I do not know.

Camping

Dear Uncle Jed: I have written to you before and I have won a book. Now I wish to tell you of a day I went camping. It was Saturday morning and my friend, Vincent, and I packed our provisions which consisted of potatoes, bread, brown sugar, cake, cookies, etc. After getting our supply together we started for the Falls woods, which was to be our camping place. It was a long but pleasant walk. Arriving at the woods we picked out a good place to build a fireplace. After the fireplace was built we made a fire and cooked our potatoes and spread a c

ELDERLY GREENEVILLE MAN FOUND INJURED ON PLAINFIELD HIGHWAY

George Grimshaw, 73, resident in the Greeneville section of Norwich, was badly injured just before 6 o'clock Saturday evening when he was struck by a motor vehicle while he was walking along the state highway in the town of Plainfield, at a point near Bishop's crossing. He was brought to the W. W. Backus hospital in this city. The aged man was cut over the left eye and there were indications that his left leg was fractured. He was unable to give any clear account as to how he came to be injured.

State Officer Henry Mayo of Danielson barracks, who went out to check up the accident, found that Joseph A. Ware of Attawaugan and John Studerman of Lisbon, riding along in a car, southbound, saw a man crawling along on his hands and knees. Sensing that he probably had been injured by some machine, they stopped to render assistance.

Soon after they did so they signaled to another car, that of Alfred Royal of Plainfield, also going south, to stop. This machine, swinging out to the side of the highway, unfortunately struck the injured man as it was being brought to a stop.

Mr. Grimshaw, a peddler, is said to have been awaiting a Connecticut Co. bus to get back to Greeneville, and to while away the time was walking along the road. It was rainy, foggy and visibility was poor at the time he was found injured. It appears that a Connecticut Co. bus had passed Mr. Grimshaw shortly before he was found but he either did not attempt to signal it to stop for him or the driver did not see him. No one was held because of the accident.

NORWICH MEN ON LEAGUE OF NATIONS COMMITTEE

Rev. Joseph Cooper and Arthur E. Story, of Norwich, Dr. Katharine Blunt, Prof. Henry W. Lawrence and Homer K. Underwood, of New London, are members of the Connecticut committee which will observe the 10th anniversary of the League of Nations at Woolsey hall, New Haven, Jan. 7th. A galaxy of speakers will appear at the public mass meeting. They will include not only the former premier of South Africa, General Jan Christian Smuts, and the president of Yale university, Dr. James R. Angell, and a former ambassador to Turkey, Henry Morgenthau, but also a woman, new member on the labor side of the British parliament, Mrs. Mary Agnes Hamilton.

Mrs. Hamilton is well known here and in England as the author of "Ramsay MacDonald— the man of the hour." She is heralded as unquestionably among the best of women speakers, and in England she is a tremendous worker. She was for a number of years editor, with Sir Philip Gibbs, of the English Review of Reviews, and Stead has publicly acknowledged that for a long period Mrs. Hamilton bore, alone, practically all of the Review's editorial burdens. Until recently she was also, with H. N. Brailsford, editor of the New Leader.

During the last election in England Mrs. Hamilton campaigned for the fourth time for Ramsay MacDonald. Mrs. Hamilton was the only woman on the Balfour committee on trade and industry, appointed in 1924, and she is one of two women on the British delegation to the present League of Nations conference at Geneva.

Mrs. Hamilton will speak upon her experiences in Geneva at the recent assembly of the league of nations. Other speakers will review the work of the last decade toward constructing the machinery of militant peace.

The meeting is under a state committee representing over 30 organizations, who consider the tenth anniversary of the league of nations as an opportune time to stress the progress being made to promote international co-operation. Mr. George W. Wickersham is chairman of the national committee and Professor Charles Seymour, provost of Yale university, is chairman of the Connecticut committee. The secretary is Mrs. Florence L. C. Kitchelt, executive director of the Connecticut League of Nations association. At her office in New Haven free admission tickets may be obtained.

FALSE ALARM PULLED IN SUNDAY AFTERNOON

During the snowstorm, which swept over the city Sunday afternoon, the fire department responded to a false alarm pulled in from Box 26, Cliff and Oak streets. Upon the arrival of the apparatus at the box there was no one in sight and after an investigation it was learned that there was no fire.

An effort was made to learn the identity of the person responsible but without result. It was learned that after the first stroke on the bell a person in the vicinity of the box looked out of the window, but saw no one in the street. Fire officials said Sunday evening that the party who rang in the alarm evidently made a very hasty retreat.

When it was discovered that there was no fire in the section of Cliff and Oak street it was thought that the blaze might be in the location of Box 236, so Deputy Chief Dennis J. Brennan immediately started out for that section, which was also a fruitless run.

The recall was sounded about ten minutes after the alarm was struck, which was at 3:31 o'clock. Responding to the call were Engines Nos. 2 and 3 and Truck No. 1.

SOULS DIE WITHOUT CHRIST AS FOOD, SAYS PRIEST

Yesterday was the Sunday within the octave of Christmas, the gospel read in all the masses offered in Catholic churches throughout the world being Luke 2.33-40. The epistle was Galatians 4. 1-7. Preaching to a congregation which filled the auditory and galleries in St. Patrick's church at the 9 o'clock mass, Rev. Myles P. Galvin continued his study of the Holy Eucharist. The catechism teaches Catholic children from the first that holy communion is the very body and blood of Christ. The Catholic's attitude toward this sacrament of love should not only be one of respect but of devotion and love. This is shown by frequent visits to Christ in the tabernacle and by being present when possible at benediction, to receive the blessing of Our Divine Lord. Yet, the greatest of all ways to prove our love for Our Lord is through frequent reception of holy communion.

The real purpose of the Lord in establishing this sacrament was to unite us to Himself—He intended to be the food for our souls. Like food for our body, the soul must be nourished if it can live. The Eucharist, first of all, sustains the spiritual life; there is constant warfare in the soul's life, between the devil and God. Holy communion sustains the soul so we can make the right choice, are strengthened to overcome evil inclinations, can turn to God, can resist the lure of satan.

Secondly, it increases our spiritual life—promotes wisdom and will power, through contact with Christ, the Source of wisdom. Again, it gives us greater love for God, through inciting in us greater subjection to God's will. Our nature is so weak that we are very prone to fail. Holy communion has the effect of removing the stains of venal sin from our souls; it increases our love for God and renders our hearts more pure.

Fifthly, it gives happiness to our soul. Only one thing brings real unhappiness to the human soul and that is sin; it is akin to the sickness which brings unhappiness to our body. Holy communion helps to remove the vain love we have for self, and for sinful creatures. Saint Augustine has declared that there is only one form of true happiness for the soul, and that is found when it rests in Christ.

The Holy Eucharist is the true food, the true nourishment for the soul, the only food that satisfies it, hungering for the reception of Our Divine Lord. Lacking it, the soul is weak, dies, in so far as life in God is concerned. The speaker enjoined frequent communion, weekly, daily if possible, since the spiritual life of the soul depends upon holy communion. The Saviour Himself has said expicitly: "Except ye eat of the flesh of the Son of Man and drink of His blood ye shall have no life in you." Catholics realize that if received often and properly, this divinely instituted food will aid them to save their souls. Again the preacher quoted the convincing words of the Redeemer, "He who eats of My flesh and drinks of My blood abides in Me and I in him—and I will raise him up at the last day."

Giving point to the earnest teaching of Father Galvin was the great number receiving holy communion at this mass—so many that he was required to assist Rev. John J. Reilly in administering the Eucharist.

It was announced that Wednesday, New Year's day, the feast of the Circumcision of Our Lord and a holy day of obligation, masses will be at 5:30, 7 and 8. Tuesday, from 4 to 6 and from 7 to 8, confessions will be heard, for those who desire to receive holy communion on New Year's. Confessions will be heard as usual on Thursday, in advance of the first Friday of the month, when masses will be at 5:30 and 7. Friday evening devotions in honor of the Sacred Heart of Jesus are held at 7:30.

At the four masses Sunday, the three priests expressed appreciation of the generous Christmas offering of the people, with the hope that throughout the coming year God's blessing might reward that manifestation of good will.

At the 9 o'clock mass, two boys and two girls from the Junior choir sang the stanzas of the hymn "Christmas," the chorus joining in the refrain which ended with "Come hasten to Adore Him." The organist, Henry J. LaFontaine, sang the beautiful solo in "Noel," the juniors swelling the chorus with evident understanding of its import and solemnity.

A good sized congregation attended high mass at 10:30, when the music of Christmas was repeated in a very pleasing manner.

NEW AUTOMATIC SIGNALS IN OPERATION TODAY

Today, Monday, the highway crossing flashing signals recently installed at the Eighth street crossing in Greeneville, will be placed in operation by the N. Y., N. H. and Hartford railroad. The signals, of the very latest type, replace with 24-hour protection the part-time protection which has been afforded by a flagman.

Officials of the railroad have announced that tests have proven these lights to be even more effective than flagmen. They can be depended upon to flash warning in all kinds of weather, never go to sleep, are never inattentive to duty and are not subject to human ills.

These new signals consist of two high-powered lights mounted on the crossing signs and placed about thirty inches apart and six feet from the ground. One is located on each side of the crossing so that they can be plainly seen by day or night from either side when approaching the railroad.

The signals are operated automatically by the approach of a train and start to operate at least twenty seconds before the train reaches the crossing. The lights flash alternately about 35 times a minute, giving the effect of a watchman swinging a red lantern.

Vehicles approaching the crossing while the lights are flashing should be stopped before passing the signal so that the driver can see when it stops flashing. Vehicle drivers should not attempt to cross the railroad tracks while the signal is flashing, as there may be a second train approaching.

Sunday afternoon Ever Ready Circle of the King's Daughters held the annual Christmas service at Norwich Alms House, conducted by Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of Norwich Town Congregational church, with which this circle is connected. Ten had a part in the service, singing carols and hymns. Miss Bessie Grant accompanied at the piano. Rev. Mr. Bailey read a Christmas story and offered prayer, also gave a brief address on The Birth of Christ. Nearly every member of the household was able to come down stairs and attend the service, among them a woman of 90, who is able to get down stairs each day to her meals. To each member Ever Ready Circle presented a gift, also a box of candy.

The annual meeting of the First Congregational church school took place Sunday following the regular session of the school. Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey presided and opened the meeting with prayer. The church by a standing vote endorsed the League of Nations and sent a petition to Washington so stating. In spite of the heavy downpour at church time there was a congregation of over fifty and the church school was also well attended. The subject, "Youth's Needs That Christ Can Meet" was well taken care of by Mrs. Lewis E. Aldrich, who led the C. E. service. Score One For the Chinaman

SOME of the Chinese customs seem ridiculous to us, but in one respect at least they show superior if rather quaint wisdom.

These people of the Ta Tsing Kwo pay their physicians for keeping them well. When a client falls ill, the doctor's pay stops. He is judged not by the number of years he has practiced medicine, but by the length of time his patients have lived and retained their health.

How about that for a good way to judge a printer?—not by the multiplicity of customers he has managed to accumulate and lose, but by the ones he has been able to keep. The number of clients he gets may be merely a testimonial to his cleverness as a salesman—but the ones he keeps are tributes to his ability to give satisfaction at all times.

It is very gratifying to us that many of our customers are as old as our business.

BORAH SENDS PROHIBITION LETTER TO THE WHITE HOUSE

The Letter Will Not Be Made Public—No Answer Has Yet Been Drafted—House Wets Are to Make Proposal For Light Wines and Beer, "Not Intoxicating in Fact"—Representative Schafer, Republican, Wisconsin, Declared That "the Whines and Wails of the Dry Leaders Are Comparable to Rats Leaving a Sinking Ship"—Prohibition Has Become the Dominant Topic in the National Capital.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30—(AP)—House wets took their first part in the capital's prohibition melee today with a proposal for light wines and beer as a weak game in the series of warring statements by senate drys over the Hoover administration enforcement methods.

Representative Cochran, Democrat, Missouri, issued a statement advocating "a dignified effort" by the wet bloc of congress for modification of the Volstead act to permit the manufacture of beer and light wines "not intoxicating in fact."

With word from the white house that President Hoover was not going to be drawn into the public discussion of the 18 year old prohibition law it was said at the same place that the president today received a letter from Senator Borah, of Idaho, who has so severely attacked present enforcement methods.

This letter is understood to follow the public condemnation made on Saturday by the Idaho dry champion with suggestions for remedies. Neither the white house nor the office of Senator Borah would make public the letter.

After the week end bombardment of the administration enforcement program by Senator Borah, his letter threatened tonight to provide fuel for another outburst in the warfare between the other republican prohibition leaders in the senate and the outspoken Idahoan.

Senator Jones, of Washington, a republican dry spokesman who has appealed for united support of the Hoover administration by the drys, called on the law enforcement commission and after a two hour visit announced he could have something to say later in the week.

The next outbreak in the prohibition discussion may await the promised report of the president's law enforcement commission, however. That report will be made as soon as the house approves the senate's resolution for the appointment of a joint congressional committee to study methods of reorganizing the prohibition enforcement machinery.

The declaration by Senator Borah that "open saloons" are running throughout the country and that a "scandal" exists in the administration of the alcohol permit system has gone unchallenged. Borah has indicated that if the prohibition subject comes up for debate when the senate reassembles next week, he will be ready to take a prominent part.

Representative Schafer, republican, Wisconsin, joined in the day's statement-making from that wing of the capitol with the expression that "the recent whines and wails of the dry leaders are comparable to rats leaving a sinking ship." He said the drys "are attempting to open up an avenue of escape from their untenable position by attacking those charged with enforcing the federal prohibition laws."

This was countered by a statement by Representative Kelly, republican, Pennsylvania, appealing for support of President Hoover and declaring the 10 years of prohibition have proved "the determination of the people as a whole to retain the eighteenth amendment and to secure its enforcement."

He said the "task now confronting us is to follow the leadership of a president who recognizes his responsibilities and who has challenged all Americans to assist him."

The department of justice announced that an appeal would be made to the supreme court to uphold the conviction of Alfred E. Norris, of New York, on charges of conspiracy to transport liquor between Philadelphia and New York. The circuit court of appeals has reversed the conviction of Norris in the district court.

At coast guard headquarters, Rear Admiral Frederick C. Billard, the commandant, was standing by his men who killed three members of a crew on a rum runner off Newport, Rhode Island, Sunday. He described the work against liquor smuggling as the most difficult that has ever confronted the coast guard.

"We are, and we have, gone about this thing strictly within the law," the commandant said. "If anybody gets hurt, we regret that. But we cannot help it if they violate a foundamental law of the country which we are charged with enforcing."

Senator Borah was inclined to sympathize with Admiral Billard's view and the action of his men off Newport "if the facts are as they were reported."

Representative Cochran urged light wines and beer as a farm relief proposition. He said "this would mean nearly a billion dollars in taxes to the government, money now going into the pockets of the bootlegger."

"The farmers would again have a market for their cereals," he argued, "and there would be no surplus. The farmers' bankrupt condition dates back to the time prohibition was forced upon the people of the country."

Chairman Snell of the house rules committee announced today that the senate resolution to create a congressional committee to consider the reorganization of the prohibition units, would be brought before his committee next week.

The New Yorker said he understood the treasury and justice departments had agreed on the units to be transferred and added that he believed the committee—with the aid of the legislation drafting service of the house—could quickly prepare legislation to carry out the president's desires for re-organization.

Snell said he did not believe the proposal of the treasury department to limit the number of ports on the Canadian border would materially aid prohibition enforcement. He expressed the conviction that it would work a hardship on many persons living on both sides of the border, and that he would not approve any such move.

TEN MINUTE DIVORCEES SEEK MARRIAGE LICENSE

RENO, Nev., Dec. 30—(AP)—Ten minutes after being granted divorces here today, Thomas Boyd, author, and Mrs. Ruth Fitch Bartlett applied for a marriage license.

Mrs. Bartlett obtained a divorce from Walter Scott Bartlett, New York banker. Boyd was granted a decree of divorce from Margaret Woodward Smith Boyd, whom he married in 1920.

The marriage of Boyd and Mrs. Bartlett had been predicted in the divorce colony here, for they have been in each other's company almost constantly. Boyd's decree was granted on the grounds of mental cruelty. He said his wife criticized and found fault. Custody of an eight year old daughter was granted to Mrs. Boyd and the author is to pay $200 a month for their support.

Mrs. Bartlett, normal social leader of Milwaukee, Wis., also charged mental cruelty. She told the court her husband would not return to their suburban home at New Canaan, Conn., at nights and not even for week ends, but spend his time in New York entertaining other women. A property settlement was made out of court.

Boyd figured in the news here recently when he was arrested on a charge of disturbing the peace at a party and paid a fine of $150 in the police court. He is a World war veteran and the autohr of a number of war stories.

MAGISTRATE INVOLVED IN NARCOTIC RING SCANDAL

NEW WYORK, Dec. 30—(AP)—City and federal investigations into the alleged connection between Magistrate Albert Vitale and Ciro Terranova, "artichoke king," with various criminal elements took three distinct turns today.

Four men, arrested by federal authorities as members of a nation-wide narcotic ring and said by the United States attorney to have possessed Magistrate Vitale's telephone number on their "frequently called" list, were held in heavy bail on indictments charging violation of the federal narcotic laws.

The federal indictments were returned against Louis Saccarona who was held in $50,000 bail with his brother, Frank Saccarona; Frank Porco, held in $15,000 bail, and "Buddie" Jones, $10,000 bail.

Charles H. Tuttle, the United States attorney, charges that the Saccarona brothers headed three of the largest narcotic rings in the country and that Louis frequently has boasted that he could fill orders up to $2,000,000 worth within 24 hours, because "he was very well protected by the police."

TO INCORPORATE $30,000,000 COTTON MARKETING ASS'N

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30—(AP)—Incorporation of the $30,000,000 Cotton Marketing association by January 15 and early selection of facilities and personnel for the Farmers' National Grain corporation was promised the federal farm board tonight as Chairman Legge and Carl Williams, member representing cotton, left for conferences in Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas.

Speaking for the growers' sub-committee on charter and by-laws, Williams said counsel had completed legal phases of the draft that was expected to be submitted to the board tonight.

"Unless some unforeseen difficulty arises," he said, "I see no reason why the National Marketing association for cotton cannot be incorporated by January 15."

NOME, Alaska, Dec. 30—(AP)—A roaring fifty mile an hour wind bearing down from the Arctic circle today kept Pilot Ed Young on the ground at Teller under heavy clouds and fog while supplies on the ice-bound fur trading vessel, at North Cape, Siberia, base for the fliers searching for Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland, were being requested by the airmen already there.

The vessel is without ham, bacon, eggs or coffee, Harold Gillam and Joe Crosson, who flew to the ship from Teller several days ago, reported to Alfred J. Lomen, head of the searching expedition here.

Crosson and Gillam were prepared to resume their search for Eielson as soon as the gale subsides and the visibility permits.

With Young at Teller awaiting a chance to hop across the Bering Sea to the Nanuk, Frank Dorbandt is being held here awaiting the arrival of the six Canadian fliers and the three cabin planes from Fairbanks. Eight thousand persons and a thousand automobiles lined the bridge to watch the efforts of the rescuers.

Pols disappeared last summer, shortly before his creditors started bankruptcy procedings against him. The message said that Mexican officials asserted that the only solution to the matter was the resignation of the district attorney but that Valls refused to do so and requested that if he had committed any wrong that charges be filed against him.

Garner wired the president of the Laredo chamber of commerce that he had transmitted the appeal to Secretary Stimson.

WASHINGTON UNDISTURBED BY CHINESE GOVT. MANDATE

Most important of these developments was the receipt at the state department today of the text of the Chinese decree abolishing the rights on January first. Poisoning Traced To Christmas Fruit Cake

Some Person, Thinking Poison Was Flour, Had Dumped It Into Flour Bag.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—(AP)— By speedily establishing the presence of poison, in nine Christmas fruit cakes, the United States Food and Drug administration not only protected the persons who might have eaten them but also probably saved the life of the woman who baked them.

Her case had baffled physicians up to the time the analysis was made. Now she is being treated for poisoning, and is responding, though still seriously ill.

Inspector G. P. Larrick, who traced eight fruit cakes in this region and one to Quebec, Canada, today told the peculiar circumstances which led to the investigation but refused to reveal the name of any of the persons concerned.

"The fruit cake first was brought to our laboratories by a physician," he said. "He had been treating a woman who was very ill of some sort of poisoning, but he could not establish its nature. The symptoms might have indicated one of several poisons.

"It just chanced that he was invited to the home of a dentist friend, and the doctor and his wife and dentist and his wife sampled the Christmas fruit cake. All four became ill. The doctor asked where the fruit cake had been purchased, and when he learned that it was at the home of his patient, he at once thought of the possibility that he might have hit upon her ailment."

Inspector Larrick's story was that a poison, flour-like in appearance, had been so unevenly mixed through a batch of flour that the housewife had eaten but small doses in her baking. It was his opinion that some persons, wanting a paper bag, had dumped its poison contents into a sack of flour, thinking it was flour.

DISASTROUS FIRE SWEPT CHICAGO GRAIN ELEVATORS

CHICAGO, Dec. 30.— (AP)— Grain worth hundreds of thousands of dollars was destroyed and several persons were hurt by a fire which swept through a huge gain elevator in South Chicago today. The flames spread rapidly to two adjoining elevators and four others in the immediate vicinity were in danger.

The fire started in a work house at the top of one of the big elevators owned by the Albert Schwill company, malt manufacturers. In less than an hour this building collapsed. It housed 700,000 bushels of grain, valued at $1,000,000, and the building itself was valued at $500,000. Two adjoining elevators, each with about 300,000 bushels of grain in storage, caught fire. One belonged to the Columbia Grain company and the other to Advance Milling company. Four other big elevators nearby were in momentary danger of igniting.

Firemen, handicapped by the intense heat, were unable to get within 100 yards of the structures.

TWO MAMMOTH STILLS SEIZED ON FARM IN ORANGE

NEW HAVEN, Dec. 30.—(AP)— Two stills, with a total capacity of 1050 gallons, 100 gallons of alcohol, and 5,000 gallons of mash were seized by federal prohibition agents today on a farm in Orange.

Frank Benedetto, of New York city and Salvatore Apuzzo, were attending the stills, which were in operation, when the raid was made. They waived examination when brought before U. S. COAST GUARDSMEN STOLE LIQUOR FROM SEIZED SHIP

They Were Arrested by New London Police Following a Brawl in Which a Sub Base Man and a Guardsman Were Brutally Beaten—Admitted That the Liquor Had Been Stolen From the Flor-Del-Mar—Search Disclosed a Few Cases of Liquor on One of the Destroyers.

NEW LONDON, Dec. 30.— (AP) — While an investigation of the slaying of three rum runners by coast guardsmen was in progress here today, a second inquiry was begun into the theft of liquor by guardsmen from the Flor-Del-Mar, a rum runner, seized Saturday night with 4,000 cases aboard.

Captain L. T. Chalker, chief of staff, acted as a result of a brawl in which two men, one a sailor attached to the submarine base and the other a guardsman, were brutally assaulted in a rooming house in the city.

Seven guardsmen were taken into custody today by coast guard officials and face court martial. Several other guardsmen, it was learned tonight, have been placed on report for being intoxicated on the state pier.

A thorough search of all patrol boats and destroyers and of men coming and going, was ordered by Captain Chalker.

Guardsmen arrested by New London police admitted, the police say, that liquor they had been drinking at a party early today attended by several members of the coast guard's basketball team, had been stolen from the Flor-Del-Mar. The rum runner was towed into port here Sunday morning, and was unloaded last night.

George Rupert, of the submarine base, was taken to a hospital early this morning, and may lose the sight of one eye. Jack Easely, guardsman, was also injured severely. They are alleged to have been beaten by Harry Stone, of the submarine base, who was arrested by police on charges of aggravated assault and battery. A woman, Mrs. Ruth Cummings, operator of the rooming house, was charged with keeping a disorderly place.

The Flor-Del-Mar, set afire by her crew before they made their escape in small boats, was in danger of sinking, and immediate removal of the contraband liquor was ordered. Working parties remained at their task until late last night before the cargo was stored in a warehouse.

Physicians were ordered to examine guardsmen this morning, who were alleged to have been intoxicated on the base last night, and a number of them were said to face court martial.

Captain Chalker, in admitting that an investigation was under way, said that because of the condition of the Flor-Del-Mar, it was necessary to make haste in unloading, and that many cases had been broken open by an explosion on the boat. This, he said, made it comparatively easy for the guardsmen to obtain the liquor.

He said that a few cases of liquor had been found on one of the destroyers when a search was ordered.

He pointed out, however, that 1500 men were at the base last night, and that those involved in the thefts was only a small percentage of the personnel. None, he said, was an officer.

INVESTIGATING SHOOTING OF THREE RUM RUNNERS

NEW LONDON, Dec. 30.—(AP)—The coast guard investigation into the shooting of three rum runners in the foggy waters of Long Island sound early Sunday morning by the crew of the patrol boat CG-290, began today.

A veil of secrecy was thrown around the inquiry which Lieut. Commander C. C. Von Paulsen was instructed to conduct, but it was learned that several members of the crew, including Boatswain A. C. Cornell, were questioned.

The crew six in number, was restricted to the confines of the base until the official report of the affair has been completed.

LOOKING FOR MOONSHINERS, OFFICERS SHOT EACH OTHER

COLUMBUS, Kas., Dec. 30.—(AP)—A deputy constable was near death tonight and a deputy sheriff was suffering severe wounds, the result of a shooting affray at the mouth of an abandoned coal mine between two parties of officers who said they had mistaken each other for moonshiners.

John Crawford, a deputy constable from Spring Valley township, shot through the left lung, is not expected to live. Ora Folk, a deputy sheriff, a member of the other party, was wounded in the right shoulder and head by Crawford.

A ten gallon keg of liquor, found in the constable's automobile, was confiscated by the sheriff.

Numerous raids have been made in Cherokee county, where the mine is located, in the past two weeks. Approximately 2,000 gallons of liquor have been seized.

GUARDSMEN TO BE ARRAIGNED FOR MURDER

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 30.—(AP) — Three members of the crew of the U. S. patrol boat CG-2245, held in technical arrest at coast guard barracks here in the fatal shooting Christmas day of Eugene F. Downey, Jr., suspected rum runner, will be arraigned in city court here tomorrow on charges of second degree manslaughter.

As the men, Randolph Thompson, Asa Ennes and Orville La Grant, already were in confinement, Judge Frank W. Standart, was not expected to sign the warrants until just previous to the arraignment.

The funeral of Downey, who was wounded fatally when the boat in which he was riding in Buffalo harbor failed to halt on command of the coast guardsmen, was held today at Holy Family church.

A demand that the guardsmen be held in $5,000 bail each following arraignment, will be made by District Attorney Guy E. Moore, he announced today.

FIVE PERSONS KILLED WHEN PLANE CRASHED

AMARILLO, Tex., Dec. 30.—(AP) — Five persons were killed today, when a plane piloted by Lieut. Robert H. Gray, manager of the Amarillo branch of the Texas Air Transport company, crashed on the golf course of the Hillcrest Country club, shortly after an impromptu landing and takeoff on the course.

The dead: Lieut. Gray, Mrs. Gray, H. L. Allison, tire dealer; Robert Moore, filling station proprietor, and C. M. Dillon manager of an Amarillo oil company.

Mrs. Dillon had been in the plane a short time before. She said Lieut. Gray and the party had been flying over the city for about two hours. They flew over the country club, she said, and made a landing so that she could join a party there.

After letting Mrs. Dillon out, the plane took off and flew around for about 15 minutes. Then again approached the field, as if to make a landing. About 200 feet from the ground, according to Mrs. Fred Allen, a witness, the plane went into a spin and crashed.

SEIZURE OF 2,000 CASES OF LIQUOR VALUED AT $270,000

OCEAN CITY, Maryland, Dec. 30.—(AP)— Acting on information supplied several days ago two coast guard officers today seized nearly 2,000 cases of liquor valued at $270,000 and arrested 23 men who were charged with smuggling in the landing of the liquor cargo from a motor trawler four miles off shore.

More than 500 cases of the liquor were piled up on a deserted stretch of beach several miles south of Ocean City when the guardsmen swooped down on the 19 men transferring it from lighters to a house on the Sinepuxent bay. A raid on the house netted 1300 more cases of liquor and four additional prisoners.

When the coast guardsmen arrested the men on the beach, the trawler weighed anchor and made its escape.

Several minor figures in the case, most of them women who testified about vice conditions, were not convicted. Federal Judge J. Stanley Webster will pass sentence tomorrow.

DANIELSON

THREE LOCAL MEN NOT SERIOUSLY HURT IN WRECK

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Dec. 30—Henry Madon, 30, Antoine Cote, 22, and Walter Lis, 21, all taken to the Rhode Island hospital in Providence yesterday after the car in which they were riding with three companions was wrecked near Dolly Cole Hill in the town of Foster, R. I., were reported this afternoon not to be seriously injured, though they remained at the institution.

Armand Genest driver of the car and oldest member of the party, he being 34, Clifford Withey and Leo Comtois, 18, were back in Danielson today. Genest was at work as usual today, driving truck for a local manufacturing concern. Withey is recovering from an injury to his hand and Comtois has cuts on his hands and face.

Madon has a head injury that at first was believed to indicate a fracture of the skull. Cote has some internal injury and as was quite seriously cut up by flying glass.

The closed car that figured in the accident is so badly damaged that it cannot be repaired. The men, all residents here, were returning to Danielson from a visit in Rhode Island when the accident occurred. What appeared to be a stretch of bare state highway surface was covered with a thin film of ice that caused the car to skid and go out of control. It first smashed into a post in a state highway fence, crashed through that obstruction, then went down an embankment, rolling over meanwhile, it now appears, and banged into a tree.

The accident was investigated by Rhode Island troopers from the barracks at North Scituate. The wrecked car is now at a local garage. There is not much whole about it any more excepting the wheels and tires.

Fire Loss Was Low

Once again Danielson is very proud of the fact, and the citizens and insurance companies are regarded as being very appreciative, that the borough's fire losses have been kept at such an exceedingly low figure during 1929.

Alarms have been frequent enough during the past twelve months, but no really serious fire has visited destruction on Danielson. This has been due largely to the fact that Danielson has a motorized volunteer fire department that really is exceptionally efficient and willing. The fact is far from being mentioned for the first time, but the public here regards it as being well worth reiterating.

It so happens that the borough's fiscal year begins April 1. It is from that date that official reports of the fire department are figured, but Chief A. P. Woodward graciously agreed this afternoon to report from his records for the calendar year 1929, what the losses during that period have been. There were 40 alarms with a total loss of only $2550, which amounts to approximately 80 cents per capita. That's a record, but not unusual, that Danielson will like to boast about a bit.

This morning the officers and directors of the Danielson Trust company held their final meeting of the year. After the meeting Treasurer Clifford H. Starkweather made the interesting announcement that the bank, which was organized in 1914, and has been unvarying successful, had a very profitable business during the last six months of this year, and that 1929 was the most successful in the entire history of the bank, all of which, of course, leaves the institution in a stronger position than it ever before has enjoyed though it has grown stronger with each passing year since its doors were opened.

From Chief A. P. Woodward down through the list of officers and personnel of the fire department there was joy today over the receipt of group pictures of the officers and men of the department as holiday gifts from the Pappajohn Studio. The pictures, taken some time since and with the men appearing in their new uniforms, are framed and are about 24 by 19.

While the great majority of Danielson's people will be tucked away for the night when 1930 dawns, there will be hundreds of others out welcoming the birth of a New Year—welcoming it in ways as far apart as being engaged in worship and making whoopee. Dances, dinner dances, vaudeville shows and what not are among diversions arranged for those who will greet the new year in lighter vein. Many families are planning entertainment for out of town guests over the holiday.

Along the trunk line highways in this section last night and today dozens of cars were stalled and unable to make progress because of the slippery going, especially where there were hills to be climbed, and not a few drivers experienced some of the worst thrills that they have known while seated back of the steering wheels of their machines. State highway crews were doing their best to relieve the situation, which was well in hand this afternoon, but they could not be everywhere at once while the storm was on and it is what many termed a mean one. One heard today of how cars just slid down Hampton Hill, as though they were sleds, brakes holding the rear wheels stationary, but unable to halt the cars, and Hampton Hill isn't a pleasant place to have that happen. Similar happenings were reported to drivers negotiating hills to the east of here. Yet very few cars were damaged. At times and in certain places cars were unable, even with chains on, to climb against the wet and slippery conditions.

When members of the Westfield Men's club meet on Friday evening of this week they will elect officers for 1930.

Tuesday of this week is the last day on which current hunting and fishing licenses will be valid. For those who wish to go fishing or hunting on New Year's day and thereafter during the coming year 1930 licenses will be necessary.

The custom of making New Year's calls, observed by hundreds of people here a dozen or more years ago, has largely died out. Those who enjoyed making them declare them to have been a great institution. The custom was prevalent here for a generation.

On New Year's day, the feast of the Circumcision, there are to be special services at St. Jame's church that will be attended by hundreds of parishioners during the morning hours.

The rush to get registration numbers was on in earnest today, and many sets of 1930 plates for cars came out of Hartford and New London today for machines in this and nearby towns. The new numbers will begin to appear on cars here Tuesday.

Those who would hunt deer, notwithstanding that it has been announced that there is no penalty clause in the statute prohibiting it, are being reminded by game officials that being found responsible for killing a deer illegally will result in loss of hunting license.

Mrs William McLaughlin was hostess to the Entre Nous club. At bridge honors were won by Mrs. L. E. Kennedy, Mrs. Earl Wood and Mrs George J. Heneault.

Benjamin Weisberg of New York is visiting with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Weisberg, of Academy street.

The Watch Night service under the auspices of the Danielson Federation of Churches and at the Westfield Congregational church will open at 1 p. m., Tuesday. From 10 o'clock until 10:45 there will be an informal fellowship service. Groups from each of the three schools will take part. At 10:45 the service of worship, with song, testimony and special music. Rev. Harding W. Gaylord will preach the sermon.

The prospect today was the town of Killingly would close 1929 with its snow removal appropriation intact. To date this season the town has not been required to spend any money clearing roads.

The usual holiday schedule of service will be effective at the postoffice on New Year's day. The office will be closed as to transacting money order and other such business, but the lobby will be opened and mails will be distributed and despatched as usual.

The annual meeting of the Westfield Congregational church will be combined with the monthly Church Family night on January 9, and the standing committee also is to meet at that time.

Miles of walks were sheathed in ice this morning following the fall of snow and rain last night and the later drop in temperature. Getting about in Danielson was not an easy task today.

JEWETT CITY

CHAS. MORRISY APPEALS FROM FINE OF $200 AND COSTS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Dec. 30—Charles Morrisy, proprietor of the Jewett City hotel, was fined $200 and costs in Griswold town court Monday morning by Judge John T. Barry, with Attorney Richard J. Dudkowski prosecuting for the state. Morrisy was defended by Attorney Thomas M. Shields of Norwich, who took an appeal to the next term of the court of common pleas; bonds $200. This case was one of three which had been postponed since the trial of seven other cases, which followed a raid by the state and federal officers Nov. 22. The only evidence against the hotel proprietor was the part of a bottle of beer, purchased by the spotters, Gray and Eustice, who were in court as witnesses for the state.

Marcurelle Also Appeals

Lucien Marcurelle appealed from a fine of $200 and costs for violation of the liquor law. The evidence against him was also secured by the Bridgeport operators prior to Nov. 22. Attorney Charles L. Stewart of Norwich appeared for the accused.

Nofle Bound Over

Steven Nofle was bound over to the next term of the superior court; bonds $1,000. The operators, Eustice and Gray, testified that they gave to Victor Chartier the price of a bottle of the liquor that was said to be obtainable at Nofle's place. Watching Chartier all the time, they testified that they saw him go into the place, when he soon returned with the goods. Under oath in court, Chartier denied the whole transaction. Attorney Stewart defended Nofle.

On Perjury Charge

Chartier was arrested and found guilty on a charge of perjury and was bound over to the superior court by Judge Barry under bonds of $1,000.

The usual Watch Night services will be held at the Methodist church this (Tuesday) evening. Beginning at 9:30, a short concert program will be followed by a social hour and refreshments. There will be a devotional program at 11:15 and at midnight an altar service will close the meeting.

Wednesday afternoon, the Epworth league meeting in the vestry will be at 1:30 instead of 3:30 as is the custom. The change to an earlier hour is made on account of there being no school session. Thursday afternoon, at 2:30, the Woman's Foreign missionary society is to meet at the home of Miss Bessie McCluggage.

NORWICH MAN'S MACHINE FIGURES IN BEND COLLISION

At noon, Monday, two machines were in collision at "The Bend" in Lisbon, a Willys-Knight traveling south and driven by Edward L. Rene of North Grosvenordale crashing through the fence, sliding down the 30-foot embankment backwards, and landing on its four wheels on the ice. George E. Pendergast of 170 Broadway, Norwich, driving a Buick going north, was arrested by State Trooper Theodore Strand of Danielson barracks for failure to grant half travel on the highway. He was tried before Judge Earle Palmer at the home of Grand Juror Francis Johnson and fined $5 and costs. The Willys-Knight was taken to Miller's garage, one side being completely torn off. The Buick was taken to Brieske's garage, also badly bent and broken. No one was injured. Officer W. E. Howeson straightened out the traffic jam that resulted, following the accident.

PUTNAM

NO BID MADE FOR NATIONAL RHEA PROPERTY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 30.—A dozen men representatives of business and textile circles of Connecticut and Rhode Island interested in the sale of the National Rhea Co.'s property in this city which went on the auction block today, gathered at the company's plant on Canal street, listened to the reading of legal documents and decrees of courts and terms pertaining to the sale but not one bid was offered the auctioneers. Subsequently the receiver for the bankrupt organization, Lewis A. Waterman of Providence, suggested that the sale be postponed until Saturday, Jan. 4, at 1 o'clock when another effort will be made to consummate the sale.

Rhode Island and Connecticut superior courts have decreed that the lowest acceptable bid shall be $147,503. Textile officials hereabouts are agreed that this price is an exceedingly low one and great surprise was indicated when a bid was not forthcoming from the prospective purchasers assembled. The auction opened on the first floor of the mill.

N. Stuart Campbell, Providence millionaire and treasurer of the National Rhea Co., which led to voluntary bankruptcy proceedings last summer for re-organization purposes, was present. It was expected that Mr. Campbell or one of his representatives intended to purchase the property at the price decreed by the courts. When approached by C. B. Goss, auctioneer, and asked if he intended to bid, Mr. Campbell smiled and shook his head in a negative expression.

State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford of this city, retained by the stockholders and creditors of the concern, was present at the opening of the sale but made no statements concerning the proceedings.

It was said this afternoon at the auction that some stock now in the process of manufacture will require that the machinery be operated for a short time to complete an order, it being understood that after that date the plant will not begin operations again until the new ownership assumes control.

Auctioneers, prospective buyers and others interested will re-convene at the premises of the Rhea company on Canal street again Saturday afternoon when a second effort will be made to dispose of the salable property at the price set by the court.

ERWIN E. ROBBINS, PROMINENT BUSINESS MAN, DIES SUDDENLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Dec. 30.—Erwin E. Robbins, former Putnam business man and realtor and well-known resident of this city, died this morning at his home at 239 Main street shortly after 5 o'clock as the result of a heart attack which he had suffered Sunday evening. He was in his 83rd year.

Favored all his life with almost perfect health, Mr. Robbins became ill early in the week with heart disease that had forced him to remain at his home. He was attended by physicians during the week but succumbed today when unable to combat the serious attack suffered yesterday.

Mr. Robbins had been a resident of this city the greater part of his life. He was for a time engaged in the stationery and jewelry business in the old Central block on Main street which has been destroyed by building wreckers and a modern business house being erected on its site by Charles A. Seder. This business he sold to the late Edward Wright, who, in turn, disposed of his interests to the late William A. St. Cyngo. Mr. Robbins then established himself in the manufacture of leather goods, conducting a small factory on the site where the White Front buildings on Pomfret street now stand.

Several years ago, Mr. Robbins parted with his manufacturing interests and retired from business life. He was married to Miss Louise Ross of this city, who died about two years ago. Mrs. Robbins, with her sister, were owners of the Central block on Main street and other property in the city. Shortly before Mrs. Robbins' death, the downtown business block was sold to Mr. Seder, who razed the building and is now erecting a three-story structure to be occupied by the mail order firm of Montgomery & Ward Co., of Chicago, after its completion.

Mr. Robbins was an ardent movie fan and previous to his illness witnessed every screening at the local theatres. He was a member of the Putnam lodge of Elks and of the Quinebaug lodge of Masons and other societies, being active in every one of his fraternal affiliations. He was popular among his associates and was deeply interested in community projects and a willing worker in activities of the various lodges where he held membership.

Mr. Robbins was born in Eastford on April 22, 1847, the son of Elisha K. and Lucy Ann (Burnham) Robbins. He early removed to this town where he maintained his residence until his death today.

A heavy snow storm of Sunday evening beautified the landscape in this section but the transforming of the feathery flakes into a glassy surface made driving a nightmare and was the direct cause of several minor automobile accidents which occurred in this city and surrounding towns late last night. The storm, besides creating hazardous driving conditions, paralyzed vehicular and train traffic. Busses and trains, at an early hour, were running several minutes behind schedule because of the ice-coated condition of the highways. Despite the frantic efforts of crews of the state highway department, who worked throughout the night, scraping the slush and sanding most inclines and dangerous hills, automobiles skidded helplessly out of control. On Nichols' hill in Thompson scene of a fatal accident last Sunday evening, an automobile crashed a tree at the side of the road and was abandoned by its owner. State Officer John Murphy of Danielson barracks was investigating this afternoon in order to learn the identity of the driver, so the wreck could be removed from the highway. In this city, autos skidded on Wheaton's hill and Hospital hill in the Gary district but no serious accidents resulted. When the snow turned to rain and began to freeze early this morning sand trucks were added to the fleet of scraping vehicles of the state highway, which were manned with capacity crews which made every effort to minimize the hazards to motorists.

City workers under the direction of Superintendent of Streets Frank Dumas were out early this morning sanding sidewalks and bad spots on city streets. No complaints were had this morning by the highway department, which indicated that the force had eliminated slippery conditions at an early hour.

Funeral services for George Bellerose, who died Friday, were held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's church. A high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. U. O. Bellerose. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery. Rev. Father Bellerose conducted a committal service at the grave.

Treasurer J. Dyer Potter of the Cargill Trust Co. announced this morning that a dividend of 3 per cent was declared in favor of the stockholders of the bank, at a meeting of the directors held in the banking rooms on Union street last Friday.

A session of juvenile court was held this morning in the offices of Judge M. H. Geissler, who presided.

Lieutenant Inspector Albert S. Fields of the Ridgefield barracks of state police, formerly in command of the Danielson barracks, was a visitor in this city today.

A new building, which will be ready for occupancy on or about Feb. 1, is being erected on the site of the plant of the J. M Tatem Handle Co. in Eastford, which was destroyed by fire on Dec. 6. J. M. Tatem, president of the wood-working plant, said that manufacturing operations will be resumed on a larger scale upon completion of the new structure.

The funeral of Mrs. Mathilda Fortney, who died Friday at her home on High street, was held this morning at St. Mary's church at 10 o'clock. A high mass of requiem was celebrated. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery. Rev. U. O. Bellerose officiated at a committal service at the grave.

THE EIGHTH STREET CROSSING

Over the protest of the city and town officials and the chamber of commerce, the public utility commission ordered the establishment of an automatic light signal at the Eighth street crossing to replace the flagman who has been stationed at that point.

That signal is now inoperation and it behoov s all users of that crossing, whether it is a matter of daily occurrence or only occasionally, to bear in mind that dependence must be placed henceforth upon the lights. When flashing lights are observed it is time to stop and remain still until they have ceased to operate. It is to be remembered that the end of a train does not necessarily mean that all is safe. The lights continue to flash as long as there is a train within a certain distance of the crossing and it is entirely possible that one train may be following another.

This is one of the bad crossings in this city because it is obscure and located at the foot of a sharp decline. In the past, much dependence had been placed on the fact that a flagman would give warning of approaching trains. Henceforth, that reliance must be placed upon flashing lights operated by an electrical mechanism which is regarded as reliable and effective. At times, when switching is being done within the signal limits, it will be obligatory for the railroad to place a flagman at the crossing in order not to unduly hold up the highway traffic.

The change means that all crossing users must look well to their own protection, but there is one outstanding benefit in the fact that the lights will be in operation 24 hours a day, while the flagman was stationed there only part of the time and the crossing was unguarded late at night. Thus, in the future, those who watch and obey the lights at Eighth street will have nothing to fear and it is to be sincerely hoped that there will be sufficient regard for the warnings to prevent any accidents at that point.

This method of guarding crossings is one which may well be employed at other points along the New Haven road where private crossings have been the cause of accidents and fatalities in the past. It is a method that means far more than the customary signboard indicating a railroad crossing.

LINING UP THE HOUSE

When Congressman Garner made his move for the establishment of a coalition in the house patterned after the combination that exists in the senate, he was seeking to create a situation that would dispose of the tariff bill without sending it to conference. His hope was to create such a body in the house that it would be possible to approve the tariff as it came back from the senate, a tariff which it would be difficult for the house to recognize as compared with the bill which it originally adopted.

This is not the first time such a move has been suggested. It is the first step that has been actually taken and Representative Garner indicates by his action that there are enough western congressmen who can be lined up with the democrats to accomplish his purpose. At least, the fact that he has started something indicates that he thinks there is a possibility.

Should he succeed there would be a decided reversal of position by many members of the house. There is nothing as yet to indicate that the backers of the house bill anticipate that the house is going to be placed under the same control as the senate, a control that means a disregard for the tariff revision that was called for by the president and which would include therein the much-opposed debenture and the elimination of the flexible feature of the tariff.

As the house stands at the present time it is strongly republican. If the Garner plan goes through it will mean many republicans will desert their former position, which gives consideration to agriculture but also to industry, a stand which appears to be much more in accord with the view as expressed by northwestern newspaper editors than that which has been displayed in the senate. While the power of the coalition in the senate seems to be extensive, it can hardly be said that it represents the sentiment of the country or of those particular sections from which the insurgent senators come. The feeling that the revision should include industry as well as agriculture, since agriculture is dependent upon industry, is in accord with common sense, even though there may be opportunities for modification of certain features of the house bill.

ADJUSTED GERMAN DEBT

The United States has held certain claims against Germany as the result of the war, which have now been adjusted, subject to the approval of congress.

Under the terms of the armistice there was provision for the army of occupation in which American troops were included. The cost of maintaining this army fell upon Germany and it has reached a substantial sum. It is some time since American soldiers were withdrawn from German soil but while they were there they piled up a large maintenance expense, higher than the corresponding number in other armies because of the more favorable pay received by American troops. Up to last September there were unpaid costs for this American force of nearly $200,000,000. In addition, there were mixed claims which had been approved by the commission amounting to more than a quarter of a billion.

In order to get an adjustment of these debts this country has been negotiating with Germany direct, quite the same method being used as was done in arriving at a separate peace between the countries. The result is that an understanding has been reached as to the amount Germany is to pay, that the sum will be forwarded in yearly installments over a period of 52 years and the interest will be paid at the rate of 3 3-8 per cent.

At the time of the recent conference of nations for the purpose of changing the Dawes plan there were concessions granted by other nations to Germany. Along with them were concessions which were agreed to by this country to the amount of about 10 per cent of the claims. We took the position that with the rest cutting their bills in order to permit Germany to carry out its obligations there was nothing else for this country to do but to join hands with the others in accepting a cut.

This will mean an apportionment of the cut between the army costs and the mixed claims and it seems probable and fair that the adjustment of the claims should be taken care of before the treasury is reimbursed for its outlay in behalf of the army.

There will be those who will advance their opposition to any concession but there is no indication that it will interfere with the early approval of the negotiations.

REMOVING THE SNOW

Snow on the streets has always been a problem in the winter. The problem was made greater when trolley lines were developed and the clearing of that portion of the streets which they occupied became necessary. It was further increased with the coming of the automobiles.

It has gotten so now that the snow must not be thrown to one side by plows but must be removed so that there can be thoroughly cleared streets to permit of the motor vehicle traffic and to accommodate those machines which occupy a place in the parking areas.

The changing conditions in regard to the use of the streets have been such that the snow removal expense in winters when the snow fall is considerable and the storms numerous is enormous. Where the plows can make a path through the outlying streets much the same as the state highways are cleared, such is not satisfactory in the business streets. It is a case of shovel there, which requires a large force of men and carts to deal with the conditions.

Getting the snow and ice to river banks or sewer manholes has been the method employed in most places. In some of the large cities, devices for melting the snow have been employed, and, only recently, as the result of much study in Canada, there has been a chemical placed on the market which only needs to be sprinkled on the snow and ice to accomplish its removal. There is a simplicity about this method which makes an appeal. The cost of the chemical should be far less than the cost of removal as now practiced and the results quicker. Tests are being made of this method which are certain to be carefully followed.

Up to now, the chief objection raised is that the chemical results in the pollution of streams, and in states where pollution is being fought this phase cannot fail to receive due attention.

FOOL-PROOF PLANES

There is unquestionably a need for a fool-proof plane. This was recognized by the Guggenheim fund, which opened a competition by offering a prize of $100,000 for such a flying machine.

We haven't as yet gotten to the point where safety in the operation of automobiles has reached the point where it can be said that there we are immune against needless and foolish accidents, and certainly the number of airplanes is decidedly small in comparison with automobiles, and yet there is good and sufficient reason for seeking a fool-proof plane before the number increases.

With the automobile the chief trouble lies, not in the machine, but in the operator. The machine would run safely enough if it was safely guided and driven with good judgment. With the flying machine it is demonstrated on frequent occasions that even with experienced and safe pilots something too often goes wrong which results in a crash and death. In the interest of aviation, it would be a great achievement if it could be shown that there was a machine which could give assurance of safety in flight provided the operator knew his business and exercised good judgment. The desire that the time should be hastened when the responsibility for accidents can be placed upon the pilot rather than on the machine is an excellent one. That should remove one of the existing hazards in flying and reduce the crashes and fatalities. The need of a flying machine as near perfect as possible is apparent, for when that is obtained there will remain the uncertainty of air conditions and the chance-taking operators.

Thus far the competition for the fool-proof plane is by no means keen and it will occasion no surprise if the statement is made that it will be some time before the man in the street can expect to step into a plane and fly where he pleases.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30.—Governor Trumbull will be the speaker before the Washington board of trade on January 13th, when that body in joint sponsorship of air ports, holds a meeting here. The meeting is under the auspices of the National Aeronautical association, of which Senator Bingham is president, and the Aeronautical chamber of commerce.

The chief purpose of the meeting is to arouse nation-wide interest in the movement to secure an adequate air port for the capital of the nation. This will be the first time the two great associations have united to rouse public opinion as to Washington's aeronautical needs. A distinctive feature of the meeting will be the flying by several winners in air craft model contests. They will not be air flights, but an exhibition of tiny models of the various type of craft exhibited in the ball room of the Willard where the meeting will be held.

Connecticut will hold a high and commanding position at the meeting, as Senator Bingham is president of the association and devoted to flying, whenever he finds it possible to do so, and Governor Trumbull, a flyer in his own right, and the possessor of a flying field of his own. It is said he is the only governor of a state to possess such a field in his own right.

Secretary of the Navy Adams is air minded, but not personally devoted to flying, although he has made a number of flights in his official capacity. In fact the three heads of the navy department live up to their faith in aviation and practice what they preach.

Secretary Adams has made several long flights in the Los Angeles, but he does not try to keep up with the pace set by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Jahnka, who flies wherever he can, when making trips of inspection. Jahnka flew to Alaska, then to Hawaii; has flown off plane carriers, and has also taken a deep plunge in a submarine. He carries off the palm for adventure.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ingalls is more conservative, but uses airplanes once in a while, and he has made personal inspection of everything connected with the navy, whether in air, below the sea or on the surface of the earth and the water. He is especially devoted to air craft as an aid to commerce.

If Surgeon General Hugh S. Cummings has his way, we shall continue to see matrons and maids in knee length dresses. But they will be portly matrons and maidens, not rail-starved specimens. Dr. Cummings has issued a formal statement upholding the short skirt, but refers to slenderizing diets as "both silly and dangerous." He calls it "a craze" and states officially, that it has led to an increased death rate among young girls.

The noted scientist, W. H. Hoover, of the Smithsonian institute, recently returned here from South Africa where he, his wife and small daughter spent three lonely years on top of a mountain. Hoover was weather observer, and "shot the sun" six times a day obtaining much valuable information for future study. This was done from his high perch on Mt. Brukkaros.

The nearest neighbors were Hottentots, the only white person was ten miles away, and he was just a lone German missionary. The Hoovers were 60 miles from any available supplies, and the only playmates the little daughter knew were a few hens and a cow.

Mr. Hoover tells thrilling tales of how the family had always to be on guard from the peril of leopards, lions and poisonous reptiles; how one morning, when he opened the door of his observatory he felt a drop of moisture fall on his face, he dodged quickly, and found, coiled in a rafter above him, a huge cobra, spitting its poison at him as it prepared to spring.

The Hoovers lived in a three-room iron house. Keetmanshoop, 50 miles away, was their nearest source of water supply, but Hottentots, though unwilling to "work" were quite ready to run 50 miles a day as errand boys.

In spite of other privations the little cabin was equipped with radio, electric lights, refrigerator and telephone, even though a journey of 122 miles for the round trip was necessary to get meat and other foods.

Speaking of scientists—and Washington is full of them—reminds me of a story I heard recently about Dr. L. O. Howard, chief of the bureau of entomology. They say Dr. Howard would rather chase a beetle to its lair, or study an ant hill, than make a formal bow to royalty when it bestows a decoration on him. Be that as it may, France has already conferred three decorations on Dr. Howard, in recognition of the great work he has done in entomological experiments and research.

As the story runs, Dr. Howard was a dinner guest where he met a lady of high social ambitions but whose lack of knowledge regarding scientific terms was woefully lacking. There are many "ologies" but they are all one to her. Before introducing the lady and Dr. Howard, the hostess had just time to whisper "he is a noted entomologist." The lady wanted to make a hit, and fired a random shot. "Oh, Dr. Howard, she exclaimed with enthusiasm "you are an entomologist?" The chief replied courteously, "yes, I have paid some attention to entomology." Then the lady gushingly burst forth, "Oh, will you tell me the botanical name of a whale!"

Just what the learned entomologist replied remains locked in the innermost recess of his memory. He refuses to divulge it.

Hon. Charles S. Dewey, former assistant secretary of the treasury and now financial advisor of Poland, tells many interesting tales of how the people of Poland and of northern countries in Europe regard Christmas festivals, still clinging to old time superstitions and customs of centuries. Mr. Dewey tells of the difficulty in securing adoption of our practice of hanging Christmas wreaths or any sort of Christmas green in windows or the use of Christmas trees in some sections of Europe, while in other sections they "make more of it" than we do over here. In Poland, we are told, green wreaths and hangings of greens are used as emblems of death, just as we hang crepe or wreaths of flowers on door knobs, to indicate death has occurred in the home. So, in Poland and elsewhere, great baskets of fruit gaily decked with ribbons, red tapers shining from windows, and cakes with bright red candles are made to take the place of greens in many an American celebration of Christmas and New Year's.

The weather man has kept us guessing. Out of his Christmas sack rain pelted down on us one day to be followed by several inches of snow the next, then came a warm spell only to be followed by a freeze that made it impossible for government flags to be lowered at nightfall, so tightly were they frozen to the staff.

Washington has a rather easy going way of dealing with snow and ice. It just lets nature caper. You child, float with or plunge, according to conditions until the sun comes out and takes a hand in cleaning up.

UNCLE HALEY CHOOSES A WIFE

Uncle Haley Durham had made his plie and at 40 he decided the time had come for him to marry. But in the small town where Uncle Haley had been born and had made his money all the ladies of his acquaintance who might be eligible either were married already or were engaged, or else had lost that bloom of youth so essential to the woman whom Uncle Haley vaguely visioned as the futue Mrs. Durham.

One bright December morning Uncle Haley decided to turn the affairs of his coal office over to his young nephew, Henry Durham Harris, fresh from college, and take a trip to the city over the holiday season to look about for the woman of his dreams. He confided his secret mission to Henry, who outwardly took it gravely and wished his uncle a profitable trip.

Uncle Haley's life had been spent so close to the coal business that few of the ways of women were known to him. But he pictured to himself things which he felt must be appealing to the feminine taste, though, after all, the fact that he was a prosperous merchant and a figure in his community made him confident the young woman he decided to favor with the important question would indeed consider herself lucky.

The first thing Uncle Haley did upon reaching the city was to find the classiest tailor in the vicinity of his luxurious hotel. The tailor sensed the situation with almost uncanny prescience. He brought out cuts and hues which made Uncle Haley gape in astonishment and satisfaction. And in the end Uncle Haley bought five suits with hats and topcoats of complementary flavor.

The haberdasher, whom Uncle Haley next visited, again was most understanding and assisted Uncle Haley to a really astonishing selection of ties, pocket handkerchiefs, socks, shirts and spats. In the end Uncle Haley was resplendent.

It may have been a fortnight later—anyway, Uncle Haley had had time to make his contacts—that his nephew was surprised one morning with an urgent request to come at once to the city.

"I am in a quandary," Uncle Haley wrote. "I've met some of the loveliest young women you can imagine. But I can't make up my mind which one to marry. I've gone carefully over the situation and picked out four, any one of whom would make me a very charming wife. This is what I want you to do:

"Meet me here day after tomorrow. In the meantime I will have arranged four dates. I'll ask Martha Meynard, the clever girl at the theatre broker's office, to have luncheon with us. I'll invite Betty Bartlett, the public stenographer, to go to the matinee. I'll have Ernestine Eercie, the chief telephone operator, dine with us, and I'll arrange with Gladys Griffith, the auto saleswoman, who's selling me a new car, to go to the opera. I want you to help me decide which of them to make the future Mrs. Durham."

Nephew Henry was overjoyed at his uncle's invitation and he accepted with alacrity, although not without secret misgivings. He caught the specified train and soon was conversing happily with Uncle Haley.

Everything happened that day according to the terms of Uncle Haley's letter. They had a delightful luncheon with Martha. They enjoyed the matinee and the lively chatter of Betty. They dined with Ernestine. And the opera, in the company of Gladys, proved exhilarating beyond all expectations. It was well after midnight when Uncle Haley and his nephew finally smoked their last cigar in the dainty parlor of Gladys' home and made their way downtown.

They drove in silence, each busy with his own thoughts. They left the cab and entered the elevator in silence and in silence they found their rooms. But when Henry turned to bid him goodnight Uncle Haley reflected anxiously that his nephew had not offered his ultimatum on the point under advisement. Well, he would wait. Henry would come to him when he had undressed, from his adjoining bedroom, and they would go over everything.

Uncle Haley waited half an hour, an hour. Henry undressed slowly. But up to the time he tuned down the covers of his bed Henry had said nothing at all. Uncle Haley could stand the suspense no longer. He entered Henry's bedroom.

"Henry," he said deliberately, "tell me candidly your opinion of the young ladies we have entertained today. Don't be afraid to reveal your inmost thoughts," Henry shied, but finally spoke.

"Well, Uncle," he began slowly, "I'll tell you what I think." Uncle Haley's face lighted in expectation.

"I thought Martha," Henry said, was very nice indeed. And I liked Betty extremely. Ernestine was a very beautiful girl and Gladys——"

"Yes, yes," urged Uncle Haley, "I want your opinion of Gladys most of all. Because after tonight I've about decided to ask Gladys to become your future aunt."

"Oh, no, uncle, I wouldn't want Gladys for an aunt at all," Henry exclaimed. "The minute I looked at Gladys I knew she was the one woman in the world for me. I asked her to marry me in the theatre and in the cab she accepted. Uncle, your search for a wife has made me the happiest man in the world!"—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 30—About the most trying part of a senator's official duty is the shepherding through that body of private claims bills.

Usually such matters are of no interest whatever to anybody else in the senate. Yet often they are highly important to the continued political careers of the senator doing the job, particularly if he is a new senator.

Should he fail to get action on a legitimate claim of this kind, it creates an adopling circle of unfavorable comment back home on his senatorial efficiency.

And senate newcomers have to learn the ropes. They discover very quickly that a beaugrerent attitude will get them nowhere. What is needed is tact, patience in plenty and a keen eye to the parliamentary and psychological situation in the senate at any given moment.

A Lesson Learned

The Bystander was impressed just before the Christmas holidays by the quickness with which Goldsborough, of Maryland, learned that lesson.

He had a local bill. It was a minor affair, involving only a few thousands, and already had passed both house and senate, but had been lost en route to the white house. It was all to do over again.

Goldsborough tried to get his bill up for repatsage during the pre-holiday hurly-burly when nobody seemed anxious to resume the tariff debate. He was blocked by an objection.

Then he moved to take it up and was ruled out of order, improperly as the presiding officer later informed him. The trouble was that everybody knew no quorum of the senate was available and that an attempt at a roll call would just tie the session up in a knot.

Goldsborough looked peeved, but that wise old veteran, McNairy, of Oregon, talked with him a bit aside.

Biding his time, Goldsborough again got the floor only to face a warning from Wheeler, Montana, democrat, that he would object to the passage at that time of any appropriation bill.

It looked hopeless, but the Marylander continued to hold the floor, yielding gracefully to every senator who asked. That went on for nearly half an hour.

Easing it Along

Finally Swanson popped up with a small bill.

"I hope the senator will defer to the senator from Maryland," said Walsh of Massachusetts. "He has been on the floor for half an hour trying to bring up a bill himself."

"I have yielded to the senator from Virginia," Goldsborough said. "I am patiently waiting."

It proved that Swanson's bill also had a money angle. Wheeler did not want to block his Virginia colleague and could not consistently oppose the Goldsborough matter either.

A moment later Goldsborough's bill popped through without debate. Patience and a growing knowledge of the ways of the senate and of senators had won the day.

And that's just a sample of what happens every day. It might have taken days to force the bill through instead of easing it along friendly-like.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

What Is The Answer?

Mr. Editor: There are to be found those who work, act and strive to reach a certain goal. And it seems to be as elusive as a Will of the Wisp. You wish you might attain to a certain perfection in order that you may acquire the power for influencing for good those among whom our lot is cast, and by our example and our every day actions show the erring ones that the only way to live is the right way. No one deplores the condition that exists at the present time in this country more than I do. Our labors will only cease when we have attained perfection. That pinnacle will never be reached by mortal man, but we can get to a better understanding by advancing in a certain direction, by modifying our actions, one though a slow process of elimination arrive by slow and easy stages of the goal we are headed for. But we will never arrive by laws that are so drastic and that have been forced upon the people without due and deliberate consideration. Many do not or will not yield or understand the law that some people resent, what they think is an encroachment upon their rights and their privileges. It is an old axiom that you can catch more flies with molasses than you can with vinegar, and so, too, in the every day life. Men will not submit tamely like dumb driven cattle. We have got to face the fact that today we have announced to our shores men from practically another world, people who for many years have been abused and kept down almost to the level of a dumb animal. They have come amongst us to labor and we must, through our own example, try and teach them by slow and easy stages what it means to obey the laws of this, the greatest and most glorious country in the world. There are today sinister socialistic influences working silently, secretly, to poison the minds of these people of whom it can be truthfully said they are reaching out and wishing to be shown the light. Many may tell you that this so-called 18th amendment is an infringement upon their rights. And of two evils I am sure if they are forced upon us, I would rather bow the knee to Baal than worship the Shrine of Bacchus, for one is the exponent of plenty and prosperity, while the other is that which creates desolation, misery, and ruin. I was moved to write the foregoing due to the comment of C. D. in your issue of Dec. 12th, regarding a condition that I tried to point out which I may say is not a theory but a condition that has got to be gotten rid of by steadily moving on. It is equally true that all things come to him who waits, and by slowly plugging on right will eventually triumph over might. Do we not read that our whole social life is in effect but a long, slow striving for the victory of justice over force. Today the power of the press is beyond valuation, and all the people, who can, read the papers and through them get access to hidden facts that they would never have heard of otherwise. They read of the acrimonious discussion that is going among the lawmakers, of their big banquets, where they have wine as one of the essentials of their dinner. And so they read, and you can't prevent a man from thinking, that if the lawmakers do things that conflicts with the enforcement act, why force us to be opposite. Further the more we advertise this condition the more we keep it in the limelight of publicity.

No, I am not worrying about this, for even that will not bring any definite result, for as long as there is a demand, just so long will there be a supply. Don't be too optimistic and think we are making headway against these forces, for we are not, positively not! Even the very ones who are supposed to try and check the consumption of liquor, figuratively speaking, snap their fingers at the law. It is said at a political banquet that each guest was given a small bottle of "booze," enough for two "shots." This happened in one of the neighboring states. Does that look as though they were serious about stopping it? But it can be said in a spirit of levity that they are surely puting it down. I do not condone this, but the fact is that America is a vast country and with a tremendous coast line. With the Mexican and Canadian borders and the Pacific and Atlantic coast lines, with the hundreds of other channels through which it reaches a market, and with the aeroplanes that fly by night it has become a condition that is almost beyond the control of the force that is trying to handle it. Say what you will it is one of the prolific causes of the prostration of business. In my opinion it is wrong and un-American. This condition will soon cure itself, for this contraband will, through the avarice of the ones who are making it, will make it so exceedingly bad that there will cease to be a demand. Through this cause it will finally die of its own volition.

This will be my final letter on this subject. I believe in actions and not words for the men who try to do something and fail are infinitely better than those who try to do nothing and succeed. Let others who have made a study of this condition explain it as best they can, but it is here and that is sure. This explanation is sent though without any desire to offend, but with the sincere wish that right and justice will prevail.

Jokes From England

LONDON—J. Pierpont Morgan, of New York city won first prize recently at the Birmingham (England) stock show with a pen of lambs.

Mr. Morgan is, of course, the well known international financier. He is a popular figure in England.

The death of Raymond Hitchcock drew from the London press many tributes to his wit and histrionic ability. Hitchcock was a great stage favorite in the British capital. On one occasion he was accorded the high honor of presentation to the late Queen Alexandra. To the consternation of those about him, he said in that funny monotone of his:

"I'm pleased to have you meet me, Queen."

Her majesty was rather deaf, and didn't hear the remark. This was perhaps a fortunate circumstance for Raymond, since the queen was a somewhat austere personae.

Tay Pay's Snuff

The house of commons lost the last of its Victorian snuff-takers in the death of that universally beloved frishman, T. P. O'Connor, who was father of the house. Throughout his long life my old friend had used this form of tobacco, and he had some 80 wonderful snuff-boxes, presented by notables and organizations.

Every few moments of his waking hours, Tay Pay took a little pinch of the brown powder and smiled genially. And while he was unconscious on his deathbed, he repeatedly made motions as though he were taking snuff.

Death the other day claimed another interesting personality whom New York and Washington club and diplomatic circles knew well. He was Lieut. Col. John Faunthorpe, soldier and big game hunter, who died in Lucknow, India.

Faunthrope was one of the few remaining British die-hards who still cling to the monocle. The eye-glass, so long the trade-mark of the stage Englishman, has in the main gone into the discard, along with the drooping mustaches. But Faunthrope wore his monocle to the last; indeed, I often wondered if he didn't sleep with it in his eye.

Dousing The Jokester

The colonel was a keen wit (that is a curious fiction which says the Englishman has no sense of humor) and he got great delight out of pulling legs in a quiet way.

One of his prize stunts was to listen to a funny story and then, sticking his monocle into his eye, look at the story teller with the blankest, dullest expression imaginable. Talk about throwing cold water! The unfortunate victim was, of course, plunged into the depths of discomfort.

One day after the colonel had worked this trick very successfully, I got him on one side and demanded:

"Faunthorpe, what the deuce do you mean by doing that? You know perfectly well that was a rattling good story."

"Well, Mack," he chuckled, "I get a awful kick out of watching the expression on the other fellow's face."

YOUR HEALTH

"Sinus Infection" in Simple Terms

By I. W. Voorhees, M. D., New York
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

We are hearing much these days about sinus trouble. What does it mean? Is is a new-fangled ailment or an old one revamped?

Sinus is a word meaning cavity or space and most often refers to the spaces in the skull which are connected with the nasal chambers. The head is not solid, in spite of those flippant peopel who make a lame joke about it but contains eight spaces—two above the eyes, two below the eyes, two behind the fleshy part of the cheek, and two at about the center of the head. All of these are lined by the same pinkish mucous membrane which you see every time you look into your mouth or nose. This membrane contains myriads of glands which secrete mucus for lubricating purposes and to moisten the air passing through the respiratory organs.

When you have a severe cold bacteria live, thrive and grow on this lining of the cavities, and nature in her effort to kill them throws out great quantities of white blood cells, serum, etc., in the form of pus. If this pus cannot find an exit owing to closure of the normal openings of the sinuses, then severe headache from pressure within them ensues—the old-fashioned "gathered head." As soon as sufficient pus escaped from the nostrils or down the throat, pain is relieved, and the condition often clears up after some weeks. If it does not get well spontaneously it becomes a "chronic sinus infection" and usually requires operative relief at the hands of a specialist. Many cases of so-called "catarrh" are due to sinus infection of long standing, the exact nature and extent of which can only be accurately determined by stereoscopic X-ray pictures. When this diagnosis is definitely determined, the surgeon has gone a long way toward giving relief.

Severe colds in children should never be neglected, as children are just as apt to have sinus infections as are adults, and neglect of pus in the nose may have far-reaching consequences.

Increased understanding of what these infections are and improved technique for treating them makes it possible now to check them in the early stages, and it is only the cases that fail to have prompt and proper treatment that become chronic and develop serious complications.

Little Talks on Thrift

Success in Thrift an Indication of Sound Attitude Toward Life's Troubles

It may be said in all truth that with the vast majority of persons, those who cannot practice thrift are destined to failure in life. Circumstances may be kind to some and they may, through good fortune, be able to escape the logical outcome of thriftless habits. But it is not safe to rely on the caprices of luck for one's happiness and security in life, particularly after one has reached the years of old age.

It is not entirely a problem of finance. It is quite as much a problem of moral stamina.

With the rank and file of men and women, ability to save money is an indication of will power and ambition. People who fail to save money do not neglect this practice because they cannot save. They do it because they will not.

It is not that the saving of money in itself is of supreme importance. The point is that the habit of saving is an indication of a sound attitude toward life. It indicates clear thinking, ambition, force of character. Failing to save indicates indifference to one's well being—a failure to grasp the deep problems involved in individual progress.

Broadly speaking, it might be said that the person who cannot save money is destined to failure in life because he does not care enough about success to fight for it.

We should learn to look upon saving, therefore, as a test of ambition. Those who are willing to fritter away their earnings from day to day without provision for the future show a fatal indifference to their own fate.

It is well to remember at all times the solidifying effect of thrift. It gives substantiality to one's plans and direction and purpose to all individual progress.—By S. W. Straus, president American Society of Thrift.

BODY OF MRS. BUTLER BROUGHT TO NORWICH

The body of Mrs. Margaret R. Byrne, widow of William P. Butler, arrived in Norwich late Monday afternoon from Pelham, N. Y. The mourners were met in New London by a number of relatives and family friends, who had been shocked and saddened by the announcement Monday of Mrs. Butler's death. Mrs. Butler, for a number of years a resident of upper Washington street and of late years residing at 27 Linden parkway, had gone to Pelham for a holiday visit with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William S. Cotter. A week ago she was taken with a chill and pneumonia developed. The first intimation many of her Norwich friends had of her critical illness was when a request was made from the pulpit of St. Patrick's church Sunday, for prayers for her speedy recovery or happy death. The end came about 9 o'clock Sunday evening.

Mrs. Butler was the elder daughter of Joseph and Mary Byrne, and was born in Norwich. Her marriage with William P. Butler, a local insurance man, took place in this city and their residence was on Washington street. Mr. Butler died about ten years ago.

Mrs. Butler was a member of St. Patrick's church where her parents were among the original pew-holders; in their memory her brother, John F. Byrne, gave St. Patrick's its costly bell. She was an active and helpful member of the Catholic Woman's club of that parish and in a quiet way was interested in many lines of charitable work.

The sweetness of her nature was manifested in the beautiful resignation with which she bore two great bereavements in latter years— the death of her sister, Mrs. F. P. Dunn, of New London, and of her brother, Rev. Michael Joseph Byrne, a clergyman who had won nation-wide attention by his devotion and marvelous efficiency as chaplain of the federal prison at Atlanta and the great influence for good which he was able to exert upon the prisoners, for whom he brought about a number of reforms in the conduct and discipline of that institution.

Surviving Mrs. Butler, besides her daughter in Pelham, is a son, Matthew P. Byrne, of Norwich, and two brothers, John F. Byrne, of New York, and Andrew S. Byrne, of Norwich. Her brothers were members of the four Brothers Byrne, internationally famous in the "8 Bells" and in other stage successes created and promoted by John F. Byrne.

Mrs. Butler leaves also two grandchildren, Jean and William Cotter, of Pelham. The suddenness of her death has intensified the sorrow of her relatives and friends. Expressions of sympathy were heard on all sides Monday and the mourning family received numberless assurances of the same sympathy, after their sad home-coming to Norwich.

Numerous bequests are provided for in the will of the late Ida B. Ladd of Jewett City, which has been filed in the Norwich probate court office. Attorney Arthur M. Brown and Daniel L. Phillips of Jewett City are named executors. The bequests are as follows:

he sum of $300 is left to Frances M. Bliven of Plainfield.

To Elise E. Lord of Griswold is left the sum of $100.

To a friend, Rose B. Tracy of Jewett City, is left all of the jewelry not herein specified and also $100.

To Ida I. Foster of Jewett City is bequeathed the sum of $200.

To Phoebe H. Brewster, daughter of Frank W. Brewster of Norwich, is left a solitaire diamond ring Tiffany setting and all of the silverware marked C. H. W.

To Lucy Chapman, wife of Herman B. Chapman of Plainfield, is left $50. "I direct that all the rest and residue of my estate shall be sold and the proceeds thereof I give and bequeath to my cousins, Helen E. B. Swift and Phoebe E. Lewis, share and share alike to them and their heirs forever; always providing that if my cousin, Helen E. B. Swift, shall not survive then in that event I direct that the one-half of the residue of my estate bequeathed to her in this clause, together with the $500 bequeathed to her, be divided into three equal parts, one of which parts I give and bequeath to Doris Brown, daughter of Shepard Brown of Jewett City, and one of the eldest children of Shepard B. Palmer of Norwich, and further always providing that if my said cousin, Phoebe E. Lewis, shall not survive me, then in that event I direct that the one-half of the residue of my estate bequeathed to her in this clause, together with the $500 bequeathed to her in the will, be divided into two equal parts, one of which parts I give and bequeath to the daughters of Frank W. Brewster and the other to the children of the late John D. Brewster of Norwich."

There are two codicils to the will, the first dated Nov. 7, 1924, which provides that one three-stone diamond ring set in white gold be given to Sybil Palmer, daughter of Shepard B. Palmer of Norwich; a three-stone diamond ring set in yellow gold to go to Kate M. Ross. Instead of leaving the solitaire diamond ring, Tiffany setting, to Phoebe H. Brewster, the ring is given to Hannah E. Betting of Norwich. To May A. Blake and Ethel M. Burdick is left the sum of $100 each.

The second codicil is dated Oct. 22, 1928. By this she revokes a bequest of silverware in the will to Phoebe H Brewster and instead gives it to Hannah Brewster Betting.

To Jessie Swift Hiscox of Jewett City is left a small ring set with diamonds and $100 in cash.

Promissory notes held by her against Charles A. Betting of Norwich are ordered to be cancelled.

To the Poquetanuck Cemetery association is left the sum of $25 to be used by the association in the care of the burial lot of a grandfather Denison B. Williams.

HIBBARD N. ALEXANDER RESIGNS AS TAX COLLECTOR AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 30.—Tax Collector Hibbard N. Alexander today tendered his resignation to City Manager William A. Holt, the tax collector stating that his action was prompted because of his attention being demanded to his accounting business. The acceptance of the resignation was not made by the city manager because of the fact that many matters in connection with the conduct of the tax office must be settled before Mr. Alexander terminates his official duties. Mr. Holt also made it known that when Mr. Alexander's resignation becomes effective, Hull Manwaring assistant to Mr. Alexander, would undoubtedly receive the appointment. Mr. Alexander was appointed tax collector April 1, 1928, for the purpose of making a drive to collect back taxes. He used strenuous measures to collect the taxes, but he was successful, for $425,000 was gathered in. He received compensation of four and one-half per cent of all money collected.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 30.—Mrs. James DiMaggio, 108 Willetta avenue, reported to the police late this afternoon that a window of her home had been shattered by a stray bullet. As the complaint is the second to be received from that neighborhood within a week, Automobile Patrol Officer Frank Philopena was assigned to make an investigation. He found three boys in the vicinity of the DiMaggio home, two armed with .22-calibre rifles. The boys and the weapons were brought to police headquarters and turned over to Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield. The boys were shooting at random at Calkins park and one of the bullets entered the DiMaggio home. A few days ago, Mrs. Ernest Decker of Riverview avenue, notified the police of a window of her home having been shattered by a stray bullet.

Shapley Street Fire

The fire department was called out this evening for a fire in the residence, 7 Shapley street, occupied by Wilbur Otis and family and Jerry Edge and family, the latter colored. An accumulation of refuse stored in the cellar became ignited and when discovered the fire threatened to communicate to the living apartments. An alarm was sent in from Box 221, Main and Federal streets. Four pieces of apparatus and Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds responded and the fire was extinguished with chemicals without damage of consequence resulting.

Blame Defective Chimney

The residence of Thomas Millaris in Waterford was damaged slightly by fire last evening, caused, it is believed, by a defective chimney. The fire had made its way to the partitions but did not burn rapidly, which fact resulted in slight damage. The Quaker Hill fire department responded to a still alarm and subdued the blaze with chemicals.

Ernest Richard, of Groton, and Mrs. William Yogers of Waterford, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged Sunday and today.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. William Kenyon, Stratford, formerly of New London, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Hazel V. Kenyon, to E. Verne Chapman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Chapman, of Poquonoc Bridge.

FUGITIVES FROM JUSTICE CHARGE AGAINST FOUR

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON Dec. 30.— Herold Gifford, 22, of Everett, Mass.; William Levis, 22, of West Hartford; Arthur Noel, 23, of Lawrence, Mass; and Robert Arundel, 27, also of Lawrence, were in the city court today, on a charge of being fugitives from justice. Their cases were continued until Jan. 6 and in default of bail of $1000 each, the four men were committed to jail. Gifford, Levis, Noel and Arundel were arrested early Sunday morning when they were found in possession of a stolen automobile. The automobile is the property of M J. Manning, 26 Blue Hills parkway, Medford, Mass., and was stolen in Jamaica Plains, Mass., Dec. 27. Gifford, who declares that he is the thief and that he picked up the other three men, said that he removed the markers from the auto and substituted the markers of other cars that he found parked while en route to New London. When their cases come up in court next week officers from Boston will be on hand to take charge of Gifford and the others, provided that they are not wanted for crime elsewhere, for the Massachusetts authorities desire the custody of only the one in the gang who actually stole the auto. Gifford and Levis are deserters from Fort Ethan Allen, Vermont, having deserted Nov. 7 and have been roaming about the country ever since. Levis will probably be delivered at Fort Wright as a deserter next week. The gang admit knowing members of an automobile thieving ring in Boston who are also known to the police of that city as well as of New London, for two of their gang were arrested here about a year ago.

Burgess was arrested Saturday by Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith charged with the theft of $106 from Henry Erno, former proprietor of a speakeasy, but when the case was presented in court today the only evidence against Burgess was that he stole $4 and this he admitted.

The only other cases tried were for intoxication. There were two; one man was fined $10 and costs, and the other was discharged.

SOME OF BLACK DUCK BOOZE MAY HAVE LIT UP PARTY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 30—Mrs. Ruth Cummings, 34 Cottage street, was in the police court this morning charged with conducting a disorderly house. Jack Easley and Harry Terry, were charged with frequenting. Harry Stone, another coast guardsman who was responsible for the raid and arrests of the others, was charged with assault and battery. All of the cases were continued to next Thursday. The Cummings woman was unable to obtain a surety on her bond of $200 and went to jail. Stone furnished a surety on his bond of $500 and Easley and Terry furnished bail of $50, each. The arrests were made as a result of a fight at the house during the early morning hours, when Stone is alleged to have attacked George Rupert, another sailor. The latter was struck with a bottle and is now a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, suffering from lacerations of the eye and face.

From all accounts and from statements made by the police a drinking party had been in progress at the Cummings residence the greater part of the night. Shortly after 1 o'clock, a fight was precipitated by Stone, who wielded the bottle on Rupert, the weapon laying open the flesh on Rupert's face for several inches. The police were informed of the fight and Sergeant Samuel Hick, Automobile Patrol Officer Thomas Cavanaugh and Patrolmen Dennis Murphy and Frank Linehan, who were speeded to the house, found Rupert bleeding freely from his wounds. Stone was arrested and Rupert was taken to the hospital, where it was at first believed, that he would suffer the loss of an eye. Easley and Terry and the Cummings woman were at the house when the fight occurred, but they were not arrested until 9 o'clock this forenoon, when Captain Charles A. Pinney ascertained the facts leading to the arrests of Stone. The raiding force was sent back to the house and finding the woman there, with Easley and Terry, the three were arrested. The police claim that the liquor consumed at the home of the Cummings woman, was a part of the cargo of the rum-runner Black Duck, which was seized by a coast guard patrol boat off Narragansett Bay Sunday morning, and brought into port after thee members of the crew had been killed by machine gun fire and a fourth member of the crew was wounded.

WIFE CAN PAY, IS FREED, HUSBAND GOES TO JAIL

Victor Kowalczyk and his wife, Bronislawa, residing at 185 North Bank street, were charged with violation of the liquor law, the husband being specifically charged with manufacturing and keeping with intent to sell and the wife charged with actual sale. Kowalczyk was fined $200 and costs on each count and went to jail, for he could not pay. His wife was fined $200 and costs and paid. Kowalczyk and his wife were arrested Saturday when a raiding force went to their home following a Montville man making complaint to the state police that he had purchased hooch at the house and that it nearly blinded him. A search of the premises revealed a 30-gallon still, a barrel of mas and a quantity of hooch.

CASHED CHECK FOR SPREE—MADDEN MAY BE DROWNED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Dec. 30—Jack Madden, until about 10 days ago employed by the Thames Sheet Metal company, Hamliton srteet, is missing and it is believed that he has been drowned. Because of the fact that Madden cannot be found and two of his children are being provided for by a Connecticut avenue family, the police have been requested to assist in seeking some trace of Madden. The children will be provided for a few days longer and if the father is not found they will probably be sent to the county home, where four other children are now being cared for. Madden disappeared a few days before Christmas and the last seen of the metal worker was when he went to a Bank street store and cashed his personal check for $194, which comprised his savings. It is believed that Madden went on a spree, probably fell into the Thames river and was drowned.

STRONG BOY MIKE PASSI DEFEATS UNKNOWN WESTERNER

Wrestling fans have been thinking that Strong Boy Mike Passi has given up the mat gameff But his manager, Tex Eddie Ellis has him working each day on the ice-covered road, running for two miles, then to the rowboat Daisy, bending on the oars, with five men in the boat for one mile. Then comes a rub-down by Trainer H. Bracci for 20 minutes. Manager Ellis for breakfast feeds the strong boy with the 16-inch collar a dozen Shore avenue pancakes and a bale of hay known as Shredded Wheat, with Haley farm milk, a bowl of Prospect Hill peaches, with two cups of coffee. After that, Strong Boy Passi goes to bed for one hour. Manager Ellis claims he spends plenty to buy bags of oats for Noank's wonder heavyweight while training. "Keeps me broke all the time now! I load the bag up with sand and let this young giant of East Main street do his stuff and with those legs he sure breaks those bags of sand! Being young at the wrestling game, only 20 years old, and he has not gotten his growth yet. In five or six more years we will hope to see the Noank lad champion in this North American heavyweight wrestling class of the world." Under the watchful eye of his manager, Tex Eddie Ellis who knows every trick in that game, dirty or fair, this Strong Boy Passi has learned some tricks and holds as many as Strangler Lewis has used in the past ten years. Cold weather doesn't bother Wrestler Passi—in his bare feet, hard as iron, he goes running up to Mystic road on the snow and ice without any cap while the crowd is shaking, even with collegians' fur coats on and overshoes. An automobile got stuck, being without chains and was down in a bad hole. The strong boy, known as the pride of Noank, was doing his daily dozen and saw the young couple in the car in trouble. Getting hold of the rear end of the machine, he gave a lift and got the car out of danger, all ready for the Nash car to go again. The owner thanked him and he got a Christmas cigar, also a sweet smile from the young lady.

It is hard to get fellows to wrestle with him, for they are afraid the young giant will break a rib or two for them. A young fellow from Kansas City, Mo., who has a foot like a boxcar, takes a shoe size 17 and a horse collar, that is, a collar size 17 1-2 and has a hand like a Scotch ham, is only 18 years old but tips the scales at 192. He will never tell his name to any one. So Friday night at the Sardine club hall where a crowd of 200 fans who love to see wrestling on the indoor mat, were gathered to see Noank's heavyweight hope throw the biz westerner two out of three. Referee William Franklin explained the rules—no biting and have all finger nails cut. Strong Boy Passi was first to enter the ring wearing yellow tights. He was in his bare feet. The crowd gave him a West View cheer. A few seconds later in came the blondy-haired boy from the west, wearing a mask over his eyes and having on black tights. The crowd gave Mr Who? a real ovation. He was weighing around 192 pounds and the strong boy, Passi weighed in at 195 Around 8:30 the timer's bell rang. The men shook hands and the masked wonder caught Passi with a leap frog hold that had the new heavyweight from the village guessing. He tried to shake clear but the more powerful western mystery man put Strong Boy Passi in a tight place. After 12 minutes Noank's hope was cleared; so he got the headlock on the mystery man and he got free. Before Refeger Franklin turned around again he was laughing at the crowd; so that made Noank's wrestler mad. The western lad had all meat on his body and no bones, and a head like a watermelon, hard to get a good hold of. The bag of sand breaker got his third headlock. The crowd thought that the masked man would not get free again. He twisted and pulled for all he was worth, but it took seven minutes before the giant was free. The crowd sure cheered him. Both men were working hard getting out of tight places. The masked wrestler got a tight army-lock so that the strong boy was stuck. The more Big Mike Passi twisted this young Mr. Who? would turn the arm. The pain was getting worse, one could tell that in Passis face for a few tear drops fell. But he would not give in for 12 minutes until he waved to Referee Franklin that it was no use. The masked wrestler from the Golden West won the first match in 56 minutes of hard wrestling. How the crowd let loose. It was like the day the World war ended. A 5-minute rest seemed good to both mat-men. Then the gong rang for the second match. Big Passi caught an Elm street bodyhold that had the young giant with the mask catching his wind; but he was game and got free after 16 minutes of hard work. However, he was weak and caught hold of the right foot and tried a toe-hold but the Noank giant's foot was hard as a rock. He tried to bend his toes, but they were stiff as a piece of ice. The masked marvel said "Do you ever try water on them?" and the crowd had a great laugh but Manager Ellis was mad over the remarks. The trick was for Strong Boy Passi to get mad and lose his head. But again Noank's wonder threw his violin-cases around the wrestler's body. He pinned Mr. Who? to the mat in 28 minutes and 6 seconds, making one fall apiece. The rest was needed, for both sounded like a broken-down fire horse out of wind.

The last match came. Shaking hands they started in to see who was the better man. The crowd was cheering for Strong Boy Passi to win and the young westerner wanted to win so he tried a western cork-screw and had the black-haired wonder in a whirl for 20 minutes. Then the village hope got a North Dock ankle hold, with the yww-nwrqudYnwiq-flb-fthydg, ETAO Main street split and Mr. Masked Man was about done. He was working hard but no use; the coming champion Passi had the western wonder all sewed up and it took 41 minutes of wrestling before the giant from Kansas City watched the referee hold up Strong Boy Passi's hand as the winner. The wrestler went and shook hands with Noank's new find, in the wrestling game. He received applause never before given a wrestler along the shore. Mr. Who? with the mask on walked out of the hall, so no one can tell yet who he is.

This makes two matches Strong Boy Passi has won and Manager Ellis is some pleased over his new find. He hopes to have him among the top ones before spring set in.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Spooky Puts Happy Jack Out.

There still are those who think that right
Is nothing more or less than might.
—Happy Jack Squirrel

Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel wasn't happy No, sir, he wasn't happy. He had possession of his new house—the house that Farmer Brown's Boy had built especially for him and put in the maple tree in the front yard. But still he wasn't happy. You see, all day long Spooky the Screech Owl had set somewhere near at hand ready to take possession if Happy Jack should come out. Happy Jack knew that if Spooky once got inside he would stay there. So Happy Jack was in a way a prisoner in his own house.

But this wasn't the worst of it. Happy Jack kept thinking about the coming night. How he did dread the coming of the Black Shadows! You see Happy Jack is afraid of the dark. On the other hand, Spooky the Screech Owl loves the dark. That is the time when he goes out hunting. He sleeps by day and hunts by night. All this Happy Jack knew He understood perfectly why Spooky was hanging around. He was just waiting until it should be dark. Then he would come right into that house and Happy Jack dreaded to think what might happen with Spooky using those stout, sharp claws and that hooked bill, while he, Happy Jack, couldn't see to fight.

At last the Black Shadows came creeping across the Green Meadows and up to the maple tree in Farmer Brown

TAX SELLING MADE CLOSING PRICES IN STOCK MARKET HIGHLY IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Dec. 30—(AP)—Selling for tax purposes was unexpectedly small in today's session of the stock market—the last session in which regular transactions may be made for that purpose—and shorts were prompted to cover their commitments. Urgent bidding for leading shares in the last hour of trading sent dozens up 2 to 10 points. Trading was swelled to the largest volume in 10 days, transfers totalling 4,159,860 shares.

Tax selling was widely in evidence, however, and closing prices were highly irregular. The establishing of losses to lessen taxable income was most notable in the number of issues traded. Small lots of scores of inactive issues were dumped overboard, and as the market is thin in such shares, several broke to new lows. The number of issues traded was the largest since the frantic days of November. Tax sales made tomorrow must be for cash, as regular transactions will not be cleared until Jan. 2.

Much of the short interest has retrained from covering at this time, for the same reason that many persons long of stock have been selling, that is, to hold down income taxable during 1930. Shorts who successfully refrain from taking their profits until after the turn of the year will not be taxed on them until 1931.

On the whole, the session represented little more than the shifting of balances in preparation for the turn of the year. The day's news was not of a character to influence the market. The Stutz involuntary bankruptcy petition had been partially foreshadowed by the recent market action of the stock, which, between September and early December had declined from 12 to 2 1-2.

The new York Reserve bank's preliminary report on department store sales in New York metropolitan area for the first 24 days of December was particularly interesting, showing an increase of about 2 per cent over a year ago, which is rather better than had been hoped for. The final November figures on wholesale trade, for this reserve district, however, showed clearly the extent of the recession. Sales were 6 per cent smaller than for the previous November, the largest decline since June, 1928. Diamond dealers reported a decrease of nearly one half.

Credit conditions remained firm, but rates held steady with call money unchanged at 6 per cent, although funds were placed in the outside market at 6 1-2. About $40,000,000 in loans was called. These rates compare, however, with 12 per cent at this time a year ago, with 14 per cent asked in the outside market. Money brokers believe the rate may be held at 6 per cent through the week, and relaxation is confidently expected next week.

Utilities and electrical manufacturing stocks were in the forefront of the day's advance, such issues as American and Foreign Power, Standard Gas, General Electric, Westinghouse Electric, Columbia Gas and Stone and Webster rising from 3 to 7 points. Some of the chemicals were characteristically buoyant, Allied Chemical and Columbian Carbon rising about nine points. Other notable strong spots were National Biscuit, up 7, and Otis Elevator, up 10. U. S. Steel, American Can, International Telephone, and National Cash Register were among shares mounting 2 to 4 points.

Fox Film A was again under pressure, sagging to a new low at 19 1-8, but closing at 21 7-2, off only 1-2. Bears took advantage of reports that negotiations with the bankers who advanced $90,000,000 in short term credits, some of which are understood to be now due, were temporarily deadlocked. Among other shares touching new lows were Continental Motors, Goodrich preferred and U. S. Rubber 1st preferred, Grand Stores, Kahn Department Stores preferred, National Surety, Twin City Rapid Transit, and Pressed Steel Car preferred, the last named breaking 8 points. Sears Roebuck and Anaconda were under pressure for a time, both selling off about 3 points, but these losses were regained.

Commodity markets were inclined to sag. December corn dropped more than 2 cents on rather heavy liquidation, while other positions sagged moderately, reflecting increased receipts. Wheat futures eased about 1-2 cent, reflecting favorable winter crop reports and large contract deliveries. Cotton closed practically unchanged.

Leading foreign exchanges sagged, reflected completion of the year-end transfers but business was quiet, pending the turn of the year. Sterling was an exception to the trend, being quoted a shade higher. Attention was focused upon a decline of about 1-8 cent in French franc cables. A slight further decline would carry the franc below the gold export point. The present case, however, is generally regarded as temporary

NEW YORK, Dec. 30—Arrangements were made today for the sale of a seat on the New York stock exchange for $405,000, a decrease of $18,000 from the previously recorded sale.

The New York Coffee & Sugar exchange will close tomorrow at 1 p. m. The haw silk exchange will close at noon, while all other security and commodity exchanges will maintain their full trading sessions.

General Motors corporation common and preferred stockholders at the end of the year totaled 198,600, divided into 176,693 holders of common stock and 21,907 holders of preferred. At this time last year, stockholders totaled 71,185. During 1929, the number increased to 105,363 at the end of the first quarter, 125,165 at the end of the second quarter, and 140,113 at the end of the third quarter.

Stockholders of the Ohio Oil Co. have approved the creation of 600,000 shares of 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock of $100 par value, which will be offered in exchange for stock of the Illinois Pipe Line Co. The exchange is to be made on the basis of three shares of Ohio Oil preferred for one share of Illinois Pipe Line stock.

Dow Jones & Co. states that the situation in Fox Film and Fox Theatres has apparently reached a temporary deadlock which should be broken within a few days. Conferences between Fox interests and representatives of holders of some $90,000,000 of short term obligations, certain of which are now understood to be due, have been held without any conclusion having been reached. Despite the appointment of a trusteeship, William Fox still retains control, and banking interests are understood to feel that control of management would be essential to any banking plan of reorganization.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Notwithstanding that the United States wheat visible supply today decreased 3,049,000 bushels, three times as much as many traders looked for, wheat values declined. Operating as a weight on values was the fact that export business in North American wheat today was of scant volume, hardly 300,000 bushels. There was uneasiness also about indications of 11th hour unwieldy big deliveries tomorrow on Chicago December contracts for rye, corn and oats.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous, 1-4c to 3-4c under Saturday's finish. Rye closed 3-4c to 3 1-4c down, corn 1-8c to 2 1-4c off, oats showing 1-2c to 2 1-8c drop, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 10c.

Provisions were easier on account of scattered selling.

ANDOVER

There was a large Christmas tree in the town hall last Thursday night with gifts for all the children. A very nice entertainment was given by the pupils of the three grades of the grammar school. The hall was filled with parents and friends.

Howard Turner, a student at Amherst college is spending the holidays at the home of his aunt Mrs. E. H. Cook.

Herbert Thompson, of Chancellor, Va., is at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Thompson, for a week.

Miss Sara Rosenblum, of New York university, is spending the holidays at her home here.

Miss Frances West is in Hartford for the holiday vacation.

Mrs. Emily Cobb has returned to her home after spending some time at Silver Lane, at the home of her son, George Cobb.

A large community tree was placed on the little green, near the corner, opposite the post office, Tuesday, and lighted by the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting Co. The selectmen of the town placed the tree, which is very handsome.

The Egyptians had a monetary system about 17 B. C., a thousand years before the first Greek coins were made according to a German Egyptologist.

SECTION OF GRANT COURT WHERE EXTENSIVE BUILDING HAS BEEN DONE

The above photograph shows part of Grant court on the West Side where for the past year or so there has been extensive building going on. This section of the city has attracted many home builders by its ideal location and the ease with which building can be done. This district is what was once part of the old Maples farm and only a few years ago was a garden and pasture land. A roadway was cut through and the land subdivided and sold as building lots. Houses appeared rapidly until today it is a small community in itself.

The above picture shows only one side of the street but there are as many houses on the other side and a number in back of those shown. The land is within the city limits and has all the conveniences of water, gas and electricity.

OIL COMPANY TO BUILD DISTRIBUTING STATION ON NEW HAVEN R. R. PROPERTY

With five permits being granted during the last week in December, the year 1929 draws to a close and leaves behind one of the most active years in building history in regards to the number of new dwelling houses erected. There seemed, despite the business depression, a trend toward erecting new dwelling houses in the city as well as in the town. Many sections of the town and city have shown marked development along building lines and many new houses have been erected. Certain sections of the city have shown more activity than others and the trend of the building has been in the Norwich Town section with other developments in the West Side and in Thamesville.

December, as was expected, showed a decided falling off in building in the city. At the office of Fire Marshal Henry R. Taft there were 13 permits granted during the month for an estimated outlay of $32,900 as placed by the applicants. In October, there were 54 permits granted, in November 29, and in December 13, making a total of 96 permits for the quarter, the estimated total is about $100,000.

During the past week, five permits were granted, two of them being to the Mexican Petroleum Corp of New York, which is opening a distributing station in this city. The two permits call for a combination office, garage and storage building and another permit covers three storage tanks of a total capacity of 75,000 gallons of gasoline and light oils.

The following building permits were granted by Fire Marshal Taft:

To the Callahan Oil company, to construct a fuel oil storage tank of 25,000 gallons capacity on land owned by the New Haven railroad just off Laurel Hill avenue. The tank will be set on cement piers and slung in a steel cradle. The tank will be 10x30 feet. The estimated cost is $650.

To the Mexican Petroleum Corp., to erect a 30x80 combination building of garage, office and warehouse on land owned by the New Haven railroad off Laurel Hill avenue. The building will be on concrete piers and will have a steel frame with 24 gauge galvanized corrugated iron sides with 22 gauge galvanized corrugated iron roof. The estimated cost is $5,000.

To the Mexican Petroleum Corp., of New York city, to erect and construct three 10x30 fuel storage tanks for gasoline and light oils on the property owned by the New Haven railroad, off Laurel Hill avenue. The tanks will be set in a steel cradle mounted on concrete piers. The estimated cost of the tanks is $7500.

To Robert T. Lillie, to erect a frame one-story gasoline filling station on the Westerly road. The station will be 26x24 feet with 14-foot canopy. The building will be covered with composition shingles. The estimated cost is $800. (This permit approved by zoning board of appeals).

To George A. Burlingham, to erect two portable metal brooder houses, 12x12 feet each, in the rear of his home on Maple street. The estimated cost is $300.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

During the past week there were five sales of real estate in Norwich as compared to one sale for the corresponding week in 1928. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $9,250 and $14,200.

In New London during the past week there were four sales of real estate as compared to four sales for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks $35,850 and $105,330.

New London

Building activities representing $1,366,593 in value were carried on in this city during the fiscal year Oct. 1, 1928, to Oct. 1, 1929, according to the annual report of Building Inspector William Gunn to City Manager Holt.

The report shows that during this period there were 455 permits issued by the council. Of these 97 were for one family houses, seven for two family houses, one for a four family house and three for apartments with stores. The one family houses represent $718,500 which will be added to the city's grand list. The two family houses represent $67,000 and the one four family house is listed in value at $14,000.

The list of permits granted include 143 private garages valued at $75,410. There are also two public garages included with a value of $19,000.

According to the list one new church was added to the previous list at a value of $9,000. Four new gasoline stations are also included at a total value of $49,000 which indicates that service stations represent substantial realty values as built today.

There were 123 permits issued for additions and alterations to residential buildings, valued at $119,945, and 64 permits issued for alterations and additions to non-residential buildings, represented in alue by $195,455.

Other permits issued and the value represented include one amusement and recreation place at $600, three apartments with stores at $22,000, three stores and other mercantile buildings at $8,200, one institution at $9,400, one public building at $26,583 and one store building with tenement above at $14,000.

Besides these permits the building inspector reports that there were 20 electric signs inspected 426 weights and measures sealed and 43 certificates of occupancy issued.

The report further shows that the biggest month of building activities was in April when permits to the value of $217,755 were granted. These included 11 one family houses to a value of $87,000 and additions to non-residential buildings to the value of $84,425. Also three apartment houses and stores to the value of $22,000.

The number of permits issued for each month together with the value represented, are as follows:

October, 41, $40,355; November, 24, $60,000; December, 43, $152,775; January, 21, $38,500; February, 15, $68,450; March, 47, $141,105; April, 43, $217,775; May, 50, $110,575; June, 31, $87,000; July 55, $97,485; August, 35, $144,358; September, 57, $150,375.

Work is now nearing completion on the construction of a four-family house being built for Alfred and Katherine Hallett, in Williams street, north of Mohegan avenue. The new house is of frame construction and is of modern design with improvements and conveniences including steam heat, hardwood floors and built-in features. The exterior has been finished with tan stained shingles.

Work has been completed on the construction of a new warehouse and a new garage on the property of the Gulf Refining company in Pequot avenue. The new warehouse, which is of brick and steel and concrete construction, is 30 by 120 feet. The new garage is 30 by 45 feet. The work was done by the company from private plans.

A residence being built for Robert R. Congdon in Shirley lane has been enclosed. The structure is designed for single family occupancy and will have all improvements and conveniences including steam heat, brass pipes throughout, hardwood floors, tiled bathroom and built-in features.

Westerly

With the ending of the 1929 year there has been a lull in applications for building permits, no large construction jobs having been started. Of the two building operations begun the last of the year, one in Westerly and the other at Watch Hill, attracting more than passing interest, have been the near-completion of the Wilcox Memorial entrance to Wilcox park and large fountain, directly opposite the Westerly town hall and off Broad street; and the getting under way of the large summer home on Watch Hill, to be ready for occupancy Aug. 1, 1930, located on the sightly elevation near the Watch Hill coast guard station for Mrs. George G. Snowden, of Philadelphia, Pa. This is to be a 35-room, 2 1-2 story house with ground measure of approximately 90 feet by 200 feet. Much progress has already been made on the foundation.

LIMESTONE FELT STANDS TEST AS INSULATION

The relative merits of various insulating materials probably will be a bone of contention just as long as various firms continue to manufacture them. One holds that the best type is made from cane fibre, a second sounds the praises of product made from the shredded fibes of the evergreen, while others extol asbestos, numerous mineral ores and even a merging of seaweed with other ingredients. From time to time these various types have been described in these columns and the claims of the manufacturers passed on to the reader.

Following this policy we submit yet another one which employs limestone as its basic ingredient, but which emerges from the process of manufacture as soft as a bath sponge and as non-inflammable as a brick wall. It is used for a number of insulating heating systems and steam and hot air pipes. The results were quite interesting and convincing.

This particular insulating material is manufactured under unusual conditions. The limestone is melted to the fluid state in a retort, then blown through crescent-shaped orifices in a cold room which causes it to take the form of minute glass fibres, each about the thickness of a hair. It is then felted by water process to prevent the fibre from breaking, and in the end it assumes the form of a soft mat, which is cut in varying thicknesses, depending upon the particular uses to which it is to be put.

Insulating experts agree almost without exception that dead air cannot be improved upon as insulation and that the smaller the air cells the more effective the material becomes in preventing heat and cold penetration. Just to show how impervious this particular insulating felt is to heat an interesting demonstration was conducted. A small handful of loose felt—not in matted form—was selected and a copper cent placed in the center, against which the flame from a blow torch was directed until it had attained a temperature of approximately 1,600 degrees. Although the coin became white hot and its surface began to disintegrate none of the heat penetrated to the palm of hand.

In another test two tiny hot air heaters were used—one barren of insulation and the other covered with insulation of felted limestone. Whereas the thermometer in a heat pipe of the former could not be forced above 208 degrees the mercury, in the other it rose to more than 260 degrees and was still rising when the test was concluded. Moreover, while the heat had completely died out in the former within five minutes after the heat was turned off a noticeable volume of heat still issued from the insulated heated for some time later, illustrating that concentrated heat with no loss through seepage imposes a much lighter burden on any heating plant. The same tests have been conducted with heaters covered with asbestos and other types of asbestos "wool," with results fully as impressive.

The answer seems to be that the millions of dead air spaces in the limestone fibre serves as an almost impenetrable blanket against heat and cold. The manufacturers declare it to be twice as effective as 85 per cent. magnesium, and six times as effective as asbestos. It also has been shown to be completely fire resisting. In heating systems, its manufacturers claim, it conserves from 20 to 40 per cent. of the heat due to the almost complete absence of heat leakage.

A SIMPLE TEST FOR YOUR HEATER

Would you like to know whether that steam or hot water system in your new house is functioning 100 per cent? Here is a simple test that will show any home owner in a few moments whether he is getting maximum efficiency. Start a fire under the boiler, and if the circulation of vapor, steam or water is uniform, as it should be, the radiator farthest from the furnace should become fully heated not more than three to five minutes after the radiator nearest the heating plant. If this result is not obtained, have the entire system checked by a heating specialist. This is important in installations having thermostatically controlled automatic heating devices if the desired uniform temperature is to be maintained.

New Cable Desirable

In the work of bringing the electric wiring system up to date and providing the much desired outlets for lights, switches and appliances, a non-metallic sheated cable may be used. Produced under license by many leading manufacturers, this cable is durable, flexible and easily handled; cost for installing in old walls is reasonable.

Round Flues Are Best

The average homeowner probably couldn't tell you the shape of his chimney flues if his life depended on it, yet it makes a lot of difference in household heating. All flues are built in one of four shapes, square, round, rectangular or oval. Smoke and gasses from the furnace or stove rise through the flue in the form of a spiral. Hence a round flue accommodates this motion with minimum resistance and maximum safety. A square, oval or rectangular flue might poduce a friction that could result seriously if the chimney became clogged. Soot constitutes something of a fire hazard, depending upon how thickly it is caked on the flue. The most economical fuels are those which burn clean with little or no residue in the form of smoke or ashes.

Paneling With Wallpaper

If wood paneling for living or dining rooms is beyond your means why not investigate wallpaper designs which produce paneled effects? Numerous excellent designs are to be found in the moderately priced papers which create fully as pleasing an atmosphere as does the genuine wood paneling. It enjoys this advantage, also; one may replace it if one's tastes demand a change.

SUMP PUMP PREVENT DAMPNESS IN CELLAR

In some localities damp conditions exist in cellars in spite of every effort by builder, owner or municipal authorities to overcome it. Whatever the cause may be, or however zealous the efforts to overcome it, a seepage persists which results in damp cellars and not infrequently in damage.

It appears, however, that this condition may be overcome, and at relatively low cost, through the employment of sump pumps of hydraulic cellar drainers, which can be installed without much trouble, and which effectively dispose of the problem. A number of varieties may be had from plumbers and dealers in home service equipment, the initial cost of which is very low and the operating costs negligible.

As a general thing they are located in floor sumps easily constructed by sinking a piece of sewer crock from 15 to 18 inches in diameter and cementing the bottom to prevent undercutting and settling. The pump then is piped to the nearest sewer outlet regardless of whether this opening is above or below the level of the cellar bottom, and a motor switch cord is plugged into the most convenient light or wall socket. After that the device takes care of itself, save for a periodical checkup.

It has been demonstrated that cellars which are kept constantly drained in this manner become as dry, and may be kept as dry, as houses in which such methods are not necessary. The theory is that by concentrating the seepage at one point the rest of the cellar gradually dries itself out, and it never returns to the former condition unless the sump pump or hydraulic drainer is removed.

These devices are particularly useful in newly developed areas where sewers have not been installed and particularly where there are no storm water sewers. There are many such areas, even in portions of cities which have undergone extensive building development. Even in spring, when melting snow and insufficient drainage causes water to back into cellars, the pumps are capable of keeping well ahead of the seepage.

INGREDIENTS USED IN BRICK MAKING

Most bricks today are made from clays and shales. Different compositions in these materials produce different color effects. For instance, the presence of iron oxide in a clay produces a buff color. Other ingredients are responsible for all the wide range of color tones that makes brick one of the most versatile of all building materials in the production of interesting color schemes.

Face brick manufacturers go even farther than the makers of the so-called common brick in the introduction of special ingredients to insure certain desired color tones.

Until within the last half century all bricks came under the present classification of the common brick. Then some manufacturer with a vision and an artistic temperament conceived the idea of not only hightening the color of his product artificially, but also of roughening the surface to add to its attractiveness.

When Airing the House

Here is an economical trick worth knowing when the home heated by automatic oil-burning equipment is being "aired" in cold weather. If the customary room temperature is 68 or 70 degrees, set the thermostat control at 55 or 60 degrees before the windows are thrown open. Then the burner will not attempt to maintain the usual uniform indoor temperature in the face of the inrushing cold air. When the airing process is completed and the windows closed, set the thermostat indicator back to its former position. By doing this, no fuel is wasted during the airing.

It should be mentioned that the Palace intends to play "So Long Letty" on Wednesday Thursday and Friday also, along with the new and hilarious comedy romance, "Oh, Yeah," in which Robert Armstrong, James Gleason, Patricia Caron and Zasu Pitts, the inimitable are featured. This has played by itself in other cities and has been a tremendous hit, but here it is as part of a double feature bill. Think of that!

Are you all ready for the big New Year's eve frolic and gamboi at the Palace theatre tonight at midnight? The Palace theatre manager, Mr. R. B. Hamilton, is all set to receive the guests with a bang-up program, and lots of entertainment on the side. Never in the history of this old city has any playhouse prepared for such a gala event as is going to take place at the Palace tonight and into the morning. It will be more than a midnight show. It will be a thorough ringing out of the old year and ringing in of the new, a big event for the town.

If you've had trouble during 1929, come and let the Palace entertainment sweep it out of your memory even as the surge of time sweeps you out of one year into the next on the wings of midnight. If you have not done so well in the past, let the entertainment at the Palace be the inspiration for bigger things during the coming twelve months. No matter if you made a million dollars last year, no matter if you did every thing you ought to do, come to the Palace anyway along with all the other less perfect ladies and gentlemen who want to start the new year and all its accompanying resolutions in the right manner.

The seats are reserved, and the entertainment is of the best. You'll see a great Vitaphone musical comedy, full of stars, laughter, melody and everything else that Vitaphone makes taste so good. Charlotte Greenwood is starred in this uproarious dance, and she has a great cast to help her. She has Grant Withers, Patsy Ruth Miller, Harry Gribbon, Claude Gillingwater and a host of others, in "So Long Letty."

You'll see novelty acts of beauty, rhythm and melody also, acts such as belong to such a big occasion as a New Year's eve frolic and gambol at a Warner Brothers theatre. There will be orchestra music of the finest too, by John Egan and his Gang, and lot of fun and noise makers to speed the old year on its way and joyfully greet the new one. Altogether the midnight frolic promises to be a red letter event, and fortunate will be those who have got their tickets already and are going to be on hand.

Exposed Metal On Ford Cars Rustless Steel

"Rustless steel, a material familiar to the housewife in cutlery, has been brought to a high state of perfection to increase the beauty of new bodies for Model A Fords to be shown here," said O. C. Wolfe, local Ford dealer today. "The improved metal will supplant the use of nickel or chromium plating on these automobiles."

"The new Ford bodies, painted in new and attractive colors, will be placed on view today," said Mr. Wolfe, who emphasized the fact that no change in price will be made.

"The new hood is higher and longer than that now in use, and a distinctive feature is the moulding, which starts at the radiator and runs on a straight line back to the cowl moulding.

"Another feature, and on which adds much to the appearance of the hood, is the arrangement of the louvres. They are long, of graceful lines and effectively set off in a panel.

"The new fenders designed along ultra modern lines, contribute to the beauty of the car. They are distinctive, wide, with high crowns and follow the flowing lines of the car in graceful curves.

Ford Autos

DETROIT, Dec. 31. — New Ford bodies will make their appearance for the first time today (Tuesday, Dec. 31) in dealers' showrooms throughout the United States.

Added beauty of lines constitutes the outstanding feature of these new bodies. Mechanically, the Ford retains the same chassis and engine that have established the performance records of the Model A with such changes as have been built in since its introduction.

The new lines of the Ford are most readily apparent in a deeper and narrower radiator, a higher and longer hood and streamline mouldings that sweep gracefully rearward without a break.

The instant impression of a car that sits and rides lower results from a lowered top, smaller wheels, larger tires and new fenders, while increased riding space has been provided through greater interior dimensions. Fenders of new design add a great deal to the flowing sweep of the car, while the running board and side dust shield or valance fit snugly to the body. Also, the fenders flare up from the chassis frame in a pleasing line to a higher elevation than formerly. Rear fenders also sweep down gracefuly over the wheels to a point two inches lower than previously.

One of the distinctive changes is found in the new sturdier 19-inch wheels, a reduction in dimensions of the earlier wheels. This change, when coupled with larger tires, brings the car closer to the ground, thereby attaining a still snugger adherence to the road-bed and permitting of increased riding comfort and safety.

While an effect of new length and lowness results from the lowering of roof-lines there is no curtailment of head-room inside. The interior reflects improvements as much as the exterior. Throughout the line, greater leg-room and riding space have been achieved. Adjustable seats have been added to all closed types to permit increased ease of riding, entrance and exit.

Another of the innovations of the new Ford bodies is the use of rustless steel for exposed metal parts. This is found in the radiator shell, headlamps, hub caps, cowl finish strip and tail-lamp. It is said that the new steel does not corrode, tarnish or rust in any kind of weather and that it cannot wear off, crack or scale because it is the same metal throughout.

Bodies will be available in a variety of new colors. Among these on the cars to be seen for the first time Tuesday are Kewanee green, chicle and copra drab, thorne brown, Bronson yellow, moleskin, Andalusite blue, maroon and black.

Broadway Theatre

The master hand of that genius of directors and producers, Flo Ziegfeld personally "cracked the whip" in the production of that masterpiece of talking filmcraft, "Glorifying the American Girl," which will be shown at the Broadway for the next three days, starting with the New Year's eve midnite show tonight. Telling a connected story of a little music store song-plugger with a golden voice, who catches the eye of a vaude-hoofer while dancing at the annual store picnic, her chance in vaudeville, on the "five-a-day," her chance meeting with Ziegfeld's scout, her grand chance with all the exciting, dramatic and heart-breaking incidents of her struggle to be "glorified," this remarkable feature opens a new era in so-called "musical shows," in that it dares to step out of the usual routine and subordinates the revue and musical sequences to the proper development of the unusual and thrilling story. The backstage shots, the rehearsals, the dressing room scenes are so different from the usual run, and so real as to be startling, so natural and lacking in artificiality are they. Mary Eaton, the beautiful blonde who won so many friends at the Broadway last summer in "Cocoanuts," is the little song-plugger about whom the story revolves, and in the revue scenes, Eddie Cantor, howlingly funny in his clothing store skit, familiar to all "Follies" fans, Helen Morgan, she of the weepy voice and ivory piano, and Rudy Vallee, sheik of sheiks, all have their opportunity, to the delight of the audiences, wherever shown. An interesting feature of the film, is the scene in the lobby of the New Amsterdam theatre at the premiere of "Glorifying," with numerous screen and stage notables pausing a moment in the brilliant lobby to greet the radio announcer. The revue scenes are gorgeously done in technicolor, the wonderful scenic settings and rainbow costumes, together with the lovely flesh tints of the "Glorified Girls" being faithfully reproduced. The surrounding program of talking featurettes, shown Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, was specially selected for this showing, and is an entire new bill, none of the short features being retained from the midnight show. New Year's day the program will be continuous from 1:30 p. m. At this time the Broadway management wishes all its patrons and friends a prosperous and happy New Year, with health, wealth and happiness in fullest measure.

Midnite Show At Broadway

All roads lead to the Broadway tonight, where at 11:30 the opening gun in the program to banish Old 1929 and welcome Baby 1930 will start the big midnite show a-rolling. With a long and varied program of vitaphone specialties, embracing song, dance and comedy, all lively and in keeping with carnival time, the way will be paved for the showing of Flo Ziegfeld's personally directed talking masterpiece, "Glorifying the American Girl." Fully pre-viewed in another column of this paper, "Glorifying" with its perfect dialogue and snappy fast moving dramatic plot against a gorgeous revue background, will win new honors for talking pictures, and establish a new record in production. Lovely Mary Eaton, who starred here not so long ago in "Cocoanuts," with Rudy Vallee, Helen Morgan and Eddie Cantor are the shining lights of the production, with hundreds of "glorified girls" in the wonderful color scenes. Carnival novelties and noise-makers in plenty will be supplied at the door, to insure a noisy welcome for the Infant Year.

Breed Theatre

"Alias Jimmy Valentine," a talking picture, in which William Haines appears in his first big dramatic role, will come to the Breed theatre tomorrow for a four day engagement. The star breaks away for the first time from the breezy farce parts that have made him famous, and reveals himself as a dramatic actor of unusual intelligence and ability.

Jack Conway directed the picture from a script founded on the tremendously popular stage play of the same name. It employs an excellent supporting cast. In addition to Leila Hyams, the feminine lead, there are Karl Dane, of "Big Parade" fame; Tully Marshall, the noted character actor, and Lionel Barrymore, the stage and screen star.

Haines plays the young master cracksman who goes to rob a small town bank, but stays to start life afresh. He gets a job in the bank and finally becomes cashier. Incidentally, he falls in love with the president's daughter. His only enemy, Detective Doyle (Barrymore), arrives in town, and exposes Haines, but his employer refuses to believe the accusations of Haines' past.

MACHINERY OF AMERICAN OLYMPIC BODY DUE FOR AN OVERHAULING

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 30—(AP)—The complicated and in some respects archaic machinery of the American Olympic association, is due for an overhauling, apparently by the mutual consent and agreement of the factions that have waged more than one spirited war over its control in the past.

The first steps designed to bring this about, in advance of the 1932 Olympic games at Los Angeles, were taken today at a conference called to consider changes in the constitution of the association.

A long series of recommendations for alteration of the association's structure was outlined in a joint statement signed by Avery Brundage, of Chicago, national president of the Amateur athletic union and Brig. Gen. Palmer E. Pierce of New York, president of the National Collegiate Athletic association.

Four years ago, General Pierce, with the allied forces of the National Amateur Athletic federation and western conference, led an unsuccessful fight to wrest control of the Olympic association from the A. A. U. The defeated foes withdrew at the time from the association as a protest. Peace subsequently was brought about and today's sessions marked a step toward effecting a compromise of rival interests.

Two of the most important proposals developed by the conference were, first, that a permanent standing committee of the American Olympic association be established, with adequate representation from the colleges, to take charge of the raising and handling of funds for American Olympic participation; and, second, that this same committee not only complete its work at least a year before the American team is selected, but that it also give consideration to the possibility of raising a capital sum of $2,000,000 for the permanent funding of the American Olympic participation.

The purpose of these proposals is to bring about complete separation between all financial considerations and decisions having to do with the selection of the American representatives in the Olympic games.

The conference also agreed upon a proposal to split up the association's membership into two classes—one composed of the active sports governing bodies, with full voting powers; the other composed of associate members, without voting power, including groups or individuals interested in the participation of America in the Olympics, but not promoting any sport on the Olympic programs.

Along with this, a readjustment of relative voting strength of the voting members was proposed, together with a two-thirds vote requirements on decisions of the association.

Seventy-four constituent members of the American Olympic association were invited to proposed constitutional amendments, those selected for further consideration will be scrutinized by the executive powers of the association, but the actual show-down on the entire re-organization scheme will not take place until the quadrennial meeting of the A. O. A. next winter.

EAST-WEST TEAMS HAVE STIFF PRACTICE SESSIONS

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Rival teams of east and west today charged down for the last two days of the training grind before the gridiron's annual east-west grid game at Kezar stadium, New Year's day.

On the campus of St. Mary's college coach Percy Locey of the Western team sent his men through two strenuous workouts. The Eastern eleven was hard at it down on the Stanford farm after a full day away from the practice field.

Uncertainty over the starting lineups still existed in both camps. Although Locey seemed to have his more definitely in mind than Andy Kerr, an injury to Tommy Dowler, speedy little halfback from Colgate, has formed Kerr to change his backfield plans. Dowler had been counted on as one of the East's principal threats.

Sagurski, Minnesota's big tackle, has been brought back to the fullback position by Kerr to remedy the condition brought about by Dowler's injury.

From the way Locey has been working his men in practice likely starters for the West are: Holmgren (Whitman) and Churchill (Oklahoma) ends; Richards (Nebraska) and Ackerman (St. Mary's) tackles; Schwartz (California) and Brombelow (Texas Christian) guards; Seghetti (St. Mary's) center; Herding (Gonzaga) quarterback; Clark (Colorado college) and Olson (Nebraska) halfbacks; Pomeroy (Utah) fullback.

Shrine officials announced today they expected a crowd of more than 75,000 at the game.

MILLS SELECTED AS HEAD COACH AT GEORGETOWN

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Georgetown joined the ranks of colleges which favor the Rockne system of football coaching today by selecting Tommy Mills, assistant to Rockne at Notre Dame since 1926, to succeed Lou Little as head football coach. The announcement that Mills had been selected for the post was made by the Rev. Joseph O'Brien, faculty director of athletics at Georgetown.

Mills will serve for a term of three years, Father O'Brien said. The selection came as a surprise as Mills was not well known among the ranks of coaches and had not been mentioned as a possible successor to Little, who resigned recently to coach at Columbia.

The new Georgetown coach is a graduate of Beloit college where he got his football experience. He played in the backfield. After he was graduated in 1905, Mills studied law for a while at the University of Wisconsin then turned to football coaching at Omaha high school.

After three years of high school coaching, Mills went to Creighton university at Omaha in 1915 as head coach. He served there five years before returning to his alma mater, Beloit, as head coach. In 1926 Knute Rockne invited him to become an assistant at Notre Dame and he has been there since then to the end of the 1929 season. A large part of his duties at Notre Dame were concerned with scouting rivals and for that reason he did not become well known as a coach. He also aided Rockne in coaching the Notre Dame varsity in between scouting tours.

In addition to his work as assistant football coach at Notre Dame, Mills also served as coach of the baseball, boxing and wrestling teams at the South Bend institution. He is a member of the national boxing committee.

Mills himself had nothing to say regarding Father O'Brien's announcement.

"I will have nothing to say until I return to South Bend and confer with Notre Dame officials," Mills said. He indicated that no announcement could be made until that time.

PITT PATHERS ARRIVE FULL OF CONFIDENCE

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 30—(AP)—Determined to rebuild the prestige of eastern football from the ruins of the Army defeat at the hands of Stanford Saturday, the Golden Panthers of Pittsburgh, 29 strong, arrived today at the scene of their scheduled Tournament of Roses battle with the University of Southern California New Year's day.

The invading squad shows signs of only slight fatigue as a result of their long train ride.

They went to the Rose Bowl for a snappy practice session.

Coach John "Jock" Sutherland, who is bringing his team to the annual east-west clash, for the second time, declined to predict an outcome for the impending contest.

"My men apparently are in good condition—no colds, no injuries—and they will be ready for a real fight," said the taciturn eastern mentor.

"The weather?" he repeated the question.

"Just say the weather will have no effect whatever on the outcome. Contrary to predictions of Southern California sports writers the climate will not decide Wednesday's game."

Captain Albert Di Mello echoed the statement of his coach. "We will have no alibi on the climate. We are in great shape and expect to win."

A large crowd greeted the invaders including two former Pitt coaches, Glenn "Pop" Warner, and Tiny Thornhill, Stanford mentors.

In the meantime, Coach Howard Jones' Trojan gridsters held a secret practice session at Bovard field, Los Angeles.

The U. S. C. coaching staff declared the men of Troy ready.

Coach Sutherland said he probably would start Joseph Donchess and Paul Collins at the ends; Charles Tully and James McMillin at the tackles; Captain Albert Di Meolo and Ray Montgomery, guards; Ralph Daugherty, center; Edward Baker, quarterback; Octavious Uansa and William Walinchus, halfbacks, and Tom Parkinson, fullback.

The Trojan team will probably be the same that faced Carnegie Tech with Frances Tappaan and Garrett Arbelbide, ends; Frank Anthony and Cecil Hoff, tackles; Captain Nate Barrager and Frank Galloway, guards; George Dye, center; Russell Saunders, quarterback; Ernie Pinckert and Harry Edelson, halfbacks, and Gaius Shaver, fullback.

Six members of the Panther team, Donchess, Montgomery, Uansa, Parkinson, Charles Edwards and Felix Wilph, journeyed here two years ago when the easterners were beaten by Stanford, 7 to 6.

WELL KNOWN HOCKEY TEAM TO APPEAR HERE TOMORROW

Owing to last-minute arrangements, the Connecticut Aggie hockey team will not appear at the Park open-air skating rink New Year's afternoon. Coach Dole sent word that his men have not had enough practice, and would appear at a later date. That would indicate that the secrecy with which the Norwich team has been developed has not been successful.

However, immediate action was taken and a just as snappy if not faster team has been scheduled for New Year's afternoon. The Glastonbury Hockey club is sending its well-known and powerful sextet in unique uniform against our Norwich Canadian phantoms.

The following line-up will most likely start for Norwich tomorrow:

S. Giddion, center; S. Palmer, left wing; C. Addion, right wing; W. Werth, left guard; D. Walker, right guard; G. Sponagle, goal tender.

Intercollegiate Hockey

At Lake Placid: Yale 7; Michigan 1.

And today is the last day of the year.

Tomorrow we start a brand new year. Is it going to be a repetition of 1929 or are we going to try to get out of the rut.

You know the longer you stay in a rut the deeper the rut gets and the harder it is to get out of it. You know that old phrase of "What was good enough for my father is good enough for me" went out about the time hoop skirts did.

With the world progressing as rapidly as it is you've got one whale of a job to keep up with it and if you want to go places and do things you've got to bear down on the gas. And ruts never did get anyone places as fast as concrete pavements.

Of course you folks who like to travel in the same old rut are going to say that you'll get there just the same if not so fast. Sure you will, but when you get there you'll find that the folks who took the concrete pavement have gotten there long before you and have taken all the cream.

Now when you make your resolutions for the New Year incorporate one about getting out of the old rut, getting in tune with the march of progress. If every individual does this our old town will start to go ahead the way it ought to, for each and every one of us is a part of it.

Oh sure, I'm going to make a lotta resolutions. And the very first one is that I'm going to try to be a booster and not a knocker, except in cases where a knock is the only way to get results.

I'm going to resolve to refrain from saying any more about the firemen knocking down the Plant-Cadden clock. But I hope somebody resolves to restore it as it is missed by the public in general.

Also I'm going to resolve to lay off making wise-cracks about our cops, they're doing the best they can and they're a pretty good bunch of boys at that. They keep the town in good order even if there is a break or two now and then.

And there's a lot more but I won't recite them.

FAST BASKETBALL GAME AT PUTNAM TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Dec. 30—A fine sport dish was prepared by basketball mentors today when it was announced that the Divisional Headquarters Co. team, captained by Jack Cronin, star backfield ace of the Providence Steamrollers, would meet the championship Celtics professional five, which won the Quinebaug Valley league championship two years ago, at Putnam high school gymnasium in a New Year's Eve frolic Tuesday night.

The military unit is composed of Putnam high school stars and Cronin will be an added attraction. The Celtic lineup will be composed entirely of former Putnam high school athletes. On the same bill will be a second game between the Putnam high school five and the Alumni quintet, which defeated the former in a close contest a week ago. Bill Shann, of Rutgers prep, Dutch Donovan, of St. John's and Dominick Bove will don Alumni colors, while the high school five will be headed by Capt. Carmen Leo, Eastern Connecticut's highest scoring forward of 1928.

GRIFFITH MAY BOX SHARKEY AT MIAMI

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Madison Square Garden's efforts to select a suitable opponent for Jack Sharkey in the Miami, Fla. show February 27 may wind up this week with Tuffy Griffith decided upon as the logical nominee for the honor.

It was understood in boxing circles here that Griffith already has come to an agreement with the Garden corporation but that Sharkey is not particularly anxious to meet the Sioux City slugger who beat Johnny Risko here last Friday night.

William F. Carey, Tom McArdle and other officials of the Garden corporation are planning to confer with Sharkey in Boston on Friday and an agreement may be reached at that time.

PRESIDENT OF A.A.U. STRONGLY PRAISES REPORT ON ATHLETICS BY CARNEGIE

By TED VOSBURGH
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 30—(AP)—Speaking at a general discussion of college and school athletics as described by the Carnegie Foundations famous "Bulletin 23," Avery Brundage of Chicago, president of the Amateur Athletic union, today predicted "an era of amateur athletics that will far surpass what we already have."

Agreeing that abuses exist, Mr. Brundage related how the Chicago Athletic association was forced to abandon the sport of track and field because of the demands of athletes who had received subsidies at college and sought similar inducements from the club.

"If all the hullabaloo of the football season is designed solely for the physical training of some 40 or 50 men on the squad," said Mr. Brundage, "it's all wrong—it's all foolishness."

The need, he declared, is for development of a higher standard of amateur sportsmanship among all those connected with this and other sports, whether in a competitive or administrative capacity or merely as a spectator.

Taking an optimistic view, Mr. Brundage said:

"We are learning that the public and the press demand when we have rules that they must be lived up to" and forecast a general improvement through a closer adherence to the principles of amateurism in amateur sport.

"Bulletin 23" was hailed by Dr. Charles W. Kennedy of Princeton as "one of the greatest services that could be performed for amateur sport in this or any other country."

While noting improvement in the conditions, as described in the report, Dr. Kennedy declared "there is still a very great responsibility resting upon us."

"True amateur athletics are a refreshing influence "in these days when there is almost nothing that does not have a price tag attached," Dr. Kennedy said. He urged that every effort be made to keep them free of commercial taint.

As to the contention that a student athlete is entitled to share some of the gate receipts as a reward for his "services," Dr. Kennedy declared:

"We do not look at it that way at Princeton. We owe the athlete nothing. On the contrary he receives from the university the privilege of bearing the Princeton colors and he must bear them in the right way."

Dr. Howard J. Savage of the Carnegie Foundation, author of Bulletin 23, reiterated its charges of recruiting and subsidizing. Other speakers were Matthew Woll, president of the Sportsmanship Brotherhood which arranged the luncheon discussion and vice president of the American Federation of Labor; Charles C. Tillinghast, headmaster of Horace Mann school here; Chauncey C. Shean, coach at Erasmus high school, New York; and Walter E. Short secretary of the New Jersey State Interscholastic Athletic association.

Devereu Milburn, famous polo player; Ray Barbuti, Olympic 400-meter champion; Romeyn Berry, Cornell graduate manager of athletics, were among the prominent sport figures present and Dan Chase of the Brotherhood, Lee Hammer of the Russell Sage Foundation, presided.

AFFIDAVITS ALLEGING ABUSIVE CONDUCT FILED

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Affidavits alleging abusive conduct by Magistrate Francis X. McQuade were filed in the state supreme court today by Leo J. Bondy, treasurer, and Charles A. Stoneham, president of the National Exhibition company, owners of the New York Giants.

The affidavits were filed in support of Mr. Bondy's motion to include McQuade and Daniel E. Finn, county clerk elect, as defendants in the suit which a group of minority stockholders in the company has brought against Bondy and Stoneham for an accounting of $500,000 of the company's funds. The group is headed by William F. Kenney.

"The board of directors of the National Exhibition company refused to elect or continue McQuade as treasurer," Bondy's affidavit said, "because he had proven himself unfit to hold such office and because his conduct became such that no decent man could associate with him, and because he was a detriment to the interests of the corporation and of the stockholders."

Bondy's motion was made on the ground that although none of the defendants had done any wrong, McQuade once was treasurer of the company and both he and Finn were stockholders and hence liability would be theirs as well as anybody's else. Justice Joseph M. Callahan is considering the motion.

BARBUTI AND MISS HICKS HAVE LONG BEEN MARRIED

NEW YORK, Dec. 30—(AP)—Ray Barbuti, Olympic 400 meter running champion, and Miss Marian Sylvia Hicks, sister of Helen Hicks, star golfer, have been married for more than nine months without the knowledge even of close friends.

The information came out today when the Olympic hero revealed that the wedding took place March 24 at the Episcopal church in Great Neck and that he and Mrs. Barbuti now are residing in Kew Gardens. It was on Long Island that the couple met, married and are making their home. Barbuti formerly lived in Inwood and Miss Hicks in Hewlett, a nearby Long Island town that has been made famous by the exploits of her golfing sister.

Barbuti, who starred in football and track at Syracuse university as well as winning America's only flat race victory at Amsterdam, now is in the insurance business in New York.

HELLER FIVE WILL BE "Y" OPPONENTS NEW YEAR'S

The Heller Brothers five of Willimantic, the most famous of the brothers combinations playing basketball today will be the opponents of the local Y. M. C. A. five at the Y. M. C. A. floor on New Year's afternoon. This attraction should be one of the best of the basketball encounters seen in the eastern part of the state this week. The visitors are fast and all the members are college stars and know their basketball.

The Y after dropping a state league game to Bridgeport last Saturday expects to take it out on the Hellers tomorrow afternoon. Incidentally they are seeking revenge for a one-point defeat administered early in the season.

YALE DECISIVELY BEATS MICHIGAN AT HOCKEY

LAKE PLACID CLUB, N. Y., Dec. 30—(AP)—Yale decisively defeated the University of Michigan here today, 7 to 1, in the first of a three game hockey series being played in connection with the eighth annual college week winter sports contest.

Palmer caged one of his long shots, but most of Yale's scores came through hammering at the goal after the rebound. Bostwick was th only player to score twice.

Michigan's single goal came in the first period. A light snowfall interrupted the passing occasionally and both teams used plenty of spares. Few penalties were called. Yale used a full squad of 16 players and Michigan called on nine of the ten men it had on hand.

COACHES VOTE FOOTBALL RULES BE LEFT ALONE

NEW YORK, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Football coaches, meeting in annual convention today, decisively voted that the rules of the game should be left as they are. The question came before the convention on a report of the rules committee of the Coaches' association, headed by Glenn Thistlethwaite, University of Wisconsin, recommending three changes in the code, the most far-reaching being the proposed elimination of the point after touchdown.

Chairman Thistlethwaite presented the report and spoke vigorously for the abolition of the extra point. On motion of R. W. P. Brown, Boston university, who suggested that in view of the recodification of the rules, now virtually complete, no changes should be made in the rules, the proposals were defeated overwhelmingly. The decision was by upraised hands and no totals were announced but the vote seemed about four or five to one.

William A. Alexander, Georgia Tech, was elected president of the association, succeeding Hugo Bezedek, Penn State; J. F. Meehan, New York university, was made vice-president, and Clarence W. Spears, University of Minnesota, second vice-president. W. H. Cowell, University of New Hampshire, is the new secretary and treasurer.

Coaches named to sit as an advisory committee with the football rules committee are: Robert C. Zuppke, Illinois; Glenn Warner, Stanford; J. R. Sutherland, Pittsburgh.

The report of the rules committee of the Coaches' association marshalled an array of facts and statistics against the extra point after touchdown. Searching of records for the 1928 season showed the committee that an average of seven plays was necessary to score each point registered during the season and it seemed out of proportion to have one play yield one point after touchdown.

The two other changes proposed classifying penalties so that if two fouls were called on the same play, one major and the other minor, instead of the ball reverting to its original position the difference between the two penalties be assessed. The other proposal would have given a team in possession of the ball within five yards of the sidelines, the option of putting it in play 15 yards from the sideline with the loss of a down.

Two football "schools" were conducted during the afternoon session, "offense" being in charge of Bob Zuppke with Dan McGugin, Vanderbilt, conducting the "defense."

The speakers on the offensive program were Al Kruze, Pennsylvania; Harry Kipke, Michigan; Marvin A. Stevens, Yale; Harry Stuhldreher, Villanova; Eddie Casey, Harvard.

To stop the place kicking, punting, quarterback strategy and forward and lateral passing outlined, a defense was assembled by Dana X. Bible, Nebraska; Burt Ingwesen, Iowa; Gilmour Dobie, Cornell; Clyde Littlefield, Texas; Pat Page, Indiana, and Lou Young, Pennsylvania.

Tom Lieb, Notre Dame, spoke of conditioning and training football players, stressing the danger of leaving football games on practice fields "We do not scrimmage our varsity after the first game at Notre Dame," said the man who pinch hit for Knute Rockne in some of the season's most important games. "If we are going to get our men hurt it will be in a game, not on a back lot."

Mal Stevens, the Yale coach, spoke in a whimsical vein on strategy. "A good team makes a good quarterback, more often than a good quarterback makes a team," he said. He recalled a Yale-Princeton game when a Yale center, somewhat battered, had difficulty in recalling a play when the quarterback called the signal. The quarter shifted to another. He did not get that, either. Then in sheer desperation, he called a pass. It worked, and won the game.

"Notre Dame showed itself the greatest team in the country," said Stevens, "when it stopped Army after a quarterback error." He pointed out that Frank Carideo, an admittedly great quarterback, tried to plunge through the line on third down deep in his own territory. He failed to gain and had to kick on fourth down. The kick was blocked and Notre Dame then had a chance to show its greatness by stopping the Army attack.

Stevens summed up with three words of advice to quarterbacks: "Mix 'em up."

Stuhldreher declared that a superstition that a forward passer must have big hands is all wrong. The forward pass, he said, is thrown with the fingers and a passer needs most of all to develop the sense of touch in the ends of his fingers.

As chairman of the stabilising committee, McGugin declared criticism of college athletics found in the recent Carnegie report will be answered by the steadily increasing high standard of scholarship among athletes. The Vanderbilt coach suggested that coaches should be responsible only to administrative heads of colleges and universities.

A. G. Sampson, Tufts, reporting for the committee on ethics, urged that football coaches refrain from distrust of opponents. Some feel it necessary he said, to approach officials before a game to urge that they look for violations of the rules the opposing team may commit.

The committee on ethics also held that it is unfair practice for a team to remain off the field until after the time scheduled for the start of a game.

W. A. Alexander, speaking for his associate coaches on the advisory committee of the rules committee, praised the rules committee for the consideration shown the coaches during the deliberations in connection with the rules. The coaches, Alexander pointed out, were given the utmost freedom and in no sense were regarded by the rules committee as innocent bystanders.

HARTNETT'S ARM IS BACK IN SHAPE

CHICAGO, Dec. 30—(AP)—Leo, "Gabby" Hartnett zipped a baseball over an imaginary second base 200 times within 5 minutes today and his $18,000 salary wing, which kept him out of the Cub line-up all last season because of weakness, was pronounced in perfect condition once more.

Dr. Louis Eastman, who has been attending the big, peppery Cub catcher during the long medical ordeal, offered a professional opinion that Hartnett was fit and ready to don the mask and take his turn behind the plate.

The Cubs figure Hartnett's return is all they need to make another victorious drive for the National league pennant in 1930. With "Gabby" changing with the veteran Zach Taylor, the Cubs believe they will have the strongest back stop combination in the Heydler circuit.

"There are no doubts whatsoever that Hartnett's arm is in perfect condition now," Dr. Eastman said. "Neither is there much of an outside chance of complications. Ever since his arm went lame there have been conflicting reports that he was cured, but this time I guarantee it. He is ready to go and unless I miss my forecast, he will be better than ever."

Hartnett a six foot one inch husky weighing 190 pounds, had a great season in 1928 and was heralded as one of the best catchers of baseball. In that year, he batted .302, fielded .989 and was an important cog in 14 double plays. The first week of the 1929 training season, however, he was tossing the ball with his usual speed when his right arm suddenly went limp. Cub trainers could do nothing to restore it.

He went to several specialists, but his arm still was useless. His loss nearly wrecked the Cubs, whose utility catchers failed to make the grade or were injured. Once the Bruins possessed only a third string catcher to call and catch the curves of Guy Bush, Pat Malone, Charlie Root, et al.

Dr. Eastman took over the case and by months of research and examinations found what he claimed to be the trouble—a focal infection in the intestinal tract. This was remedied, he said, and Hartnett's arm returned to normal.

Hartnett was in a jovial mood today as he went through the demonstration that finally convinced himself and Dr Eastman that his arm, worth an $18,000 a year contract, was in condition again. After he threw a baseball 200 times, the estimated number a catcher throws during a game, he insisted he felt no twitch or soreness afterwards.

"I'm as good as ever," he beamed. "I feel good enough to give Arthur 'The Great' Shires a battle and I think I've learned my lesson about throwing my arm away. I'm only 29 years old and believe I have a few good seasons of baseball a major league left in that right wing of mine."

YANTIC

LAND BOUGHT FOR $100 SOLD BY MILL CO. FOR $1,800

William Selowitz has purchased for $1,800, the triangular tract of land on the Fitchville road, situated south of the roadway near the superintendent's house and extending to a point opposite the home of the Misses McHale. The land was bought from the American Woolen company. It was sold to W. T. Williams by Ichabod Stoddard about twenty-five years ago for $100, showing some increase of the value of land here in recent years.

A few houses in Yantic were elaborately lighted during the holidays. One of the prettiest effects was from the home of Mr. and Mrs Frank Johnson, on the Franklin road; this had an illuminated arch over the front entrance, and a very handsomely decorated tree in the bay window.

Along the Bean Hill roadway was a very handsome doorway effect at the home of Mrs. Delia White. The old fashioned door had a huge wreath while evergreens were twined gracefully around the veranda and were studded with colored lights, making it very attractive.

Several from here enjoyed tobogganing and coasting at East Great Plain, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. S Manton and children, Rhoda and Burton, of New York, who are spending the holidays at Spruce lodge, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fishbone.

William F. McHale, of New York, is spending the holidays as the guest of his sisters, the Misses McHale, of Oakland avenue.

The community tree on Hebron green was a pretty sight over Christmas. Other Christmas lights and trees that were beautiful were those at the homes of the Hilding Brothers and Fitch N. Jones, Carlton B. Jones, Jr., and Miss Marion Gott.

Miss Ruth Silvia Jones, daughter of Mr. Carlton B. Jones, of Hebron, was united in marriage Dec. 26 with Everett T. Keith, in the South Methodist Episcopal church, South Manchester, at 4.30 p. m. A reception for 30 was held at Hotel Bond, Hartford, for them. Following their honeymoon they will reside on Henry street, South Manchester, after Jan. 1.

POETRY

A Song For New Year's Eve

Stay yet, my friends, a moment stay—
Stay till the good Old Year,
So long companion of our way,
Oh stay, oh stay,
One little hour, and then away.

The year, whose hopes were high and strong,
Shakes hands, and leaves us here.
Has now no hopes to wake;
Yet one hour more of jest and song
For his familiar sake,
Oh stay, oh stay,
One mirthful hour, and then away.

The kindly year, his liberal hands
Have lavished all his store,
And shall we turn from where he stands,
Because he gives no more?
Oh stay, oh stay,
One grateful hour, and then away.

Days brightly came and calmly went,
While yet he was our guest;
How cheerfully the week was spent!
How sweet the seventh day's rest!
Oh stay, oh stay,
One golden hour and then away.

Even while we sing, he smiles his last,
And leaves our sphere behind.
The good old year is with the past;
Oh be the new as kind!
Oh stay, oh stay,
One parting strain, and then away.

—William Cullen Bryant.

This Life

It's not my life, this life that goes
From day to day, or slow or swift;
This life one moment like a rose,
And next with clouds that lower and drift.

It's not my life, but theirs who lean
Upon its service: they belong
To all its freshness and its green,
To all its effort and its song.

I hold it only as one holds
Some trust within his heart and strives
To mold it to the many molds
That suit so many varient lives.

More urgent, then, for me to see
It wavers not, but goes straight on
Toward the beauty setting free
Man's spirit like a bird of dawn.

It's not my life; but theirs who need
My help so much, I cannot spare
One moment for time's trivial greed;
But eons for its daily care.

—Baltimore Sun.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"I see by the paper that policemen are going to be vaccinated."

"What for? They never catch anything."—Montreal Star.

Sally—Oo! Is that a bull down there at the other end of this field?

Edgar—Yes, it is. Will you stop using that lipstick?—Life.

Higgs—I always say that nothing is ever lost through politeness.

Biggs—What about a man's seat in a crowded bus?—Richmond Herald.

Burglar—Your money or your life.

Author—Here is my "Life" written by myself, cloth bound, $1—Der Lustige Sachse, Leipzig.

"And will you love me as much as this when we are married?"

"Darling, how can you doubt me? I've always liked married women best."—Tid-Bits.

Clerk—Shall we give samples of cloth to women who are thinking of ordering bathing costumes?

Manager—Yes, but cut 'em small; we don't want 'em to use the sample to make the suit.—Exchange.

An employe of a large industrial concern was given a paper to sign. "Lots of reading on it," he observed as he carefully persured the text.

"Huh!" remarked the clerk who had handed him the paper. "I'll bet you didn't read your marriage license as carefully as that."

"Maybe not," was the reply, "but ever since I signed that I'm reading everything."—From the Boston Transcript.

When his chimney failed to draw and his fire kept going out repeatedly, Harvey Shafer, a farmer living near Morrestown, Pa., investigated and found the chimney flue almost completely obstructed. The mass in the chimney proved to be a giant honeycomb, and it was necessary to remove a section of the chimney to get the comb out intact. The comb contained more than 50 pounds of honey and was three and one-half feet in length.

Yes, Plymouth has bananas; it grows them. Charles T. Stevens has a husky banana plant in one of his greenhouses, having raised it from a slip, just as is done when the plant is cultivated in warmer regions. The plant is nearly ten inches in diameter and is 20 feet high. Unless untoward occurrence prevents, it will present later on at least one bunch of bananas. Mr. Stevens successfully cultivated an ancestor of this plant several years ago and raised two goodsized bunches of bananas.

SCOUTS ENJOYED HIKE TO GARDNER LAKE

Under the leadership of Scoutmaster Walter Weidman, and Troop Committeeman Albert Bourne of the Duwell Athletic club, 15 members of the Duwell troop of Boy Scouts, went to Gardner Lake Monday to pass some of their outdoor tests. Tracking, scout pace, knife and hatchet, fire building, and cooking, were some of the activities in which the scouts engaged, many of them passing some of the tests, and some of them all. The trail had been laid previously to the arrival of the scouts at the lake, and led for a half or three quarters of a mile through the snow-covered woods. Signs had been placed a hundred paces apart bearing a number and the name of a bird, which the scouts were obliged to copy as they found them.

Trail signs from the Scout manual were also used, and the boys who took the test in tracking were unanimous in saying that they felt as though they had passed a real test in following the trail. After the boys had returned to camp, a game of capture the flag was played on the ice, which was eight inches thick.

Before darkness fell, the boys collected wood for fires on which to cook their meal of meat and potatoes. Some had difficulty in getting a good fire started on account of the dampness of the wood from the snow which clung heavily to all the branches, but none had any difficulty in cooking the food they brought, or in eating it after. All appetites were unimpaired by a full afternoon out of doors.

When the fires had been put out, and all refuse and papers properly disposed of, the boys went to the cabin of Mr. Weidman and William A. Ricker, well known locally for his devotion to out-of-door sports, where indoor games were played and hot cocoa served. The boys attending the hike were James Calkins, Henry Butkiewicz, Frank Wilson, Malcolm Counihan, William Galligan, Melvin Cook, Edwin Lawton, Frank Barron, Earl Johnson, John Lavidone, John Golembrewski, Walter Strenkowsky, George Debbis, Russell Culver, William Smith, Raymond Pearson.

TWO DIVORCE PETITIONS IN SUPERIOR COURT

Papers in two divorce petitions have been brought in the superior court. Florence Perkins Hammond of New London asks a divorce from Paul S. Hammond of Stonington on grounds of desertion. They were married Sept. 28, 1923, and desertion is alleged since Nov. 25, 1926.

On grounds of intolerable cruelty, a divorce and custody of a minor child is sought by Edward L. Benson of New London from May (Taggart) Benson of New London. The couple was married Sept. 28, 1918, and cruelty is alleged since September, 1927.

NO ACTION TO COLLECT EAST HAMPTON'S BACK TAXES

After a consultation held with Judge Thomas C. Flood, attorney for the town of East Hampton, the committee composed of the board of selectmen and three citizens decided to take no action in regard to collecting back taxes amounting to $44,000 or to force 8 per cent of the taxpayerse to reply to statements sent them by H. N. Alexander of New London, until an appropriation is made. A special town meeting Thursday night will be asked to appropriate $1,000 for this purpose. At a special town meeting held last Monday night a resolution was offered by Ambrose M. Starr which stated that the committee which was chosen to have H. N. Alexander be empowered to collect all uncollected taxes but no provision was made for an appropriation to do the work. Mr. Alexander said that it would cost the town another thousand dollars and six months time to do the work.

Mr. Alexander told the committee that if he knew that the tax records of former Tax Collector Watrous were in such a perplexing condition he would not have done the work for his figure of $250.

WATCH NIGHT SERVICE AT SALVATION ARMY

Announcement was made Monday evening by Captain Percy Day that the Salvation Army will conduct a Watch Night service at its citadel on Cliff street this (Tuesday) evening. The service will begin at 11 o'clock and will consist of a programme of music and vocal selections. It will follow the regular evening service.

Held Children's Service

There was a most attractive children's service Christmas eve at the First Evangelical Lutheran church. Many adults participated in the service. Herman Stelzner, assistant superintendent of the Sunday school, recited a Christmas poem and welcomed the audience. A tableau featuring the shepherds, kings and angels was presented. The audience joined in the singing of the old Christmas carols with great enthusiasm. The singing was accompanied by the organ and a musical quartet which also played in the early morning service.

Home Prettily Decorated

One of the beauty spots on the West Side section of the city during the Christmas holiday season was the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Crowe of West Main street. A wealth of azure blue lights shone forth a cheery greeting to all.

HELD PARTY FOR MOTHERS AND CHILDREN

Saturday from 3-5 p. m. a Chrsitmas party for the mothers and children of the cradle roll and beginner's departments was given in the Noyes parish house at the Central Baptist church.

Games, Christmas recitations and songs by the children furnished the entertainment of the afternoon. At 4 o'clock Santa Claus arrived and was given a warm welcome. Before leaving, Santa distributed gifts and candy from a heavily trimmed Christmas tree. Ice cream and cookies were served to every one present. In spite of the inclement weather there were 60 present and all expressed themselves as having had a wonderfully good time. Mrs. C. Edward Smith and Mrs. James M. Young Jr., were in charge.

LOCAL GIRLS' CITY CLUB HELD DELIGHTFUL SOCIAL

The regular weekly meeting of the Girls' City club, under the auspices of the Woman's City club, took the form of a Christmas party Friday evening at their clubroom at No. 9 Washington street. There were about 30 girls present, some of whom were guests of the club members. A number of amusing games were played and a prize was won by Lillian Bergeron. Club songs were sung, followed by a tree from which each member received two gifts and each guest a box of candy. Refreshments were served and the evening's program wound up with dancing. Both members and guests unanimously voted the party a success. The members of the club took great pleasure in preparing and providing four large baskets of food which were taken by the girls to a worthy family at Christmas time. The next meeting takes place on Friday evening, Jan. 3, at 7:30 p. m.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)
